Dewey Tour Looks Like Hot Pursuit Of Truman

Building Service Employes Union Of AFL to Back GOP Candidate

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's campaign itinerary tonight took on all the color of a hot pursuit of President Truman's trail across the country.

Not only will he arrive in Des Moines, Iowa, just two days after Mr. Truman gets there, but he will cover much of the same ground the President has mapped for his trip to the coast.

Dewey spokesmen, about to unveil more details of the Governor's itinerary, described all of this as purely coincidental. If Mr. Dewey is breathing on Mr. Truman's neck it's because the President just happened to stick it out, they insist.

Dewey in Jubilant Mood

Bubbling with good humor but still warning his Albany coterie against overconfidence in the election's outcome, Dewey meanwhile packed his luggage for one last long weekend in New York and Pawling before heading west on September 19.

In New York Friday he will qualify for November voting in advance lest he be campaigning out of the State during the October registration period. He will confer Saturday with Gov. Robert F. Bradford of Massachusetts on a possible later trip to Boston and then make a beeline for his Pawling farm.

There were two reasons for the Governor's jubilant mood. This was one of his lucky days.

First, his Republican headquarters in New York, quite by accident, received a new telephone exchange listing—Oregon 9-4422. It so happens the Governor clinched his nomination in the Oregon primary and the Dewey people view the number as a good omen.

Indorsed by AFL Union

Next, the Governor received his first noteworthy labor indorsement. A seven-man delegation from the Building Service Employes International Union, AFL, called at the State Capitol to tell Dewey the general executive board of the union, representing 175,000 members, has voted to support him for President.

William L. McFetridge of Chicago, general president of the union, told reporters the union indorsed the late President Roosevelt in 1944. He said he believes some other AFL unions will back Dewey.

AFL President William Green himself is backing President Truman and a private AFL committee headed by President George Harrison of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, recently told Mr. Truman his group representing an "overwhelming majority" of AFL unions is supporting him.

Dewey strategists, however, still believe the Governor can fight it out with Mr. Truman on even terms for the "conservative" trade union vote. They say they are not interested in the left wing CIO

First Miner Gets Pension; Lewis Presents Check

The bitterly contested $100-a-month pension program for John L. Lewis's United Mine Workers finally went into operation yesterday.

The first pension check was made out to a 62-year-old miner from Rock Springs, Wyo., Horace Michael Ainscough, who had spent 53 years in the mines.

Lewis presented the check in person. Ainscough thanked the UMW president, saying, "Thank God for the day John L. Lewis was born."

10-Hour Silence Follows S O S Of 15,000 in Volcano's Rain

VOLCANO'S VICTIM—Burned by molten lava from Hibokhibok, Vincente Liquad, a Camiguin Islander, is led from first aid station after being bandaged. Liquad's home town, Barrio Abo, was buried under tons of lava.

Manila, Sept. 9 (AP).—Deadly gases from a volcano late tonight imperiled the lives of 15,000 Filipinos marooned on the tiny island of Camiguin.

Ten hours had passed without word of their fate.

News of what could be one of the great disasters of modern times came in a frantic radio appeal for rescue ships. It was broadcast from a Philippine Navy patrol craft a little before 11 p. m. (10 a. m. E. S. T.). There was no second message.

The island is about 450 miles by air southeast of Manila and a dozen miles north of the coast of Mindanao.

The brief appeal was signed by Arturo Alcaraz, Philippines government volcano expert, who has been on the scene since Mount Hibokhibok began erupting September 1.

Addressed "to all ships at sea," it said:

Officials Face Contempt Charge

10 King George Negro Pupils Barred From White School

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

King George, Va., Sept. 9.—An unsuccessful attempt to register 10 Negro pupils at the all-white King George County High School was made here this morning in a dramatic but orderly incident.

While a tense crowd of about 100 whites and Negroes waited outside the school, white school officials met with Negro leaders and informed them that Negro students could not be registered because of Virginia's Constitution and State Code, requiring segregation.

Negro leaders countered that the United States Constitution specifies "equality," and that Federal Court orders on equal school facilities for Negroes must take supremacy over State laws.

As anticipated, the situation reached an impasse which will go back to the Federal District Court, probably in a motion asking that King George County school officials be held in contempt of a court directive last July to provide equal school facilities for Negroes in this county.

In Gloucester County, just north of Yorktown, Va., and about 60 miles southeast of here, Negro leaders today attempted a similar effort to enroll 26 students from the Gloucester County Training School at the white Botetourt High School at Gloucester.

The result there was almost identical. In King George County,

Talmadge Win Won't Wreck Georgia, Atlanta Editor Says

Editor of the Atlanta Constitution

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 9.—Herman Eugene Talmadge's smashing unit vote victory, and comfortable popular vote margin in Georgia's Democratic primary of Wednesday, is being taken right in stride by a State used to politics of a fire-and-brimstone variety.

The more timorous are at the topmost peak of their ivory towers writing wistful editorials about the white knight in shining armor who, free of all wicked political connections, will come one day to rescue the maiden fair. Others are crying havoc and all of us are sitting back waiting for the editorial comment from our neighbors north of the line which will see in the Talmadge victory a smashing triumph for the Ku Klux Klan and its associated stupidities.

The truth of it is that nothing unusual will happen. The Thompson campaign, which gave the State an exhibition of corrupt use of whisky money and road contract shakedowns not seen since the years before the war, had been clad with the white robes of virtue simply because it was against Talmadge. Actually, with former Gov. E. D. Rivers associated with it, not even the onetime "peerless leader" could give the Thompson camp a clean bill of health.

Thompson himself was never

Old-Guard Clash With Dewey Expected on Personnel Policy

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth of a series. To find out what kind of a boss Thomas E. Albany, N. Y., Sept. 9.—If he's elected President, Thomas E. Dewey eventually would clash head-on with the reactionary congressional forces in his party over Federal personnel and administrative problems. No safer bet could be made.

Dewey takes a broad-gauged and realistic view of Government. He does not agree with the worn reactionist theories that the clock can be turned back to the so-called good old days; that any hack can handle any Government job.

Instead, the GOP nominee believes that the Government must compete with industry for the Nation's best brains; that the Government must train its key people so they will be able to perform the many complex jobs, and that the

Forrestal Favors More Warplanes

Approves Plans For 213 Bombers, Jet Fighters to Cost $103 Million

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Spurred by the continued international tension, defense chiefs have agreed upon an expansion of the Nation's warplane building program.

Defense Secretary James Forrestal, it was learned last night, has approved an Air Force proposal to release 103 million dollars in withheld 1948-49 aircraft appropriations to order 213 additional jet fighters and long-range piston bombers.

At the same time, USAF chiefs decided to place the radically new type Boeing XB-47 jet bomber into mass production and asked Forrestal to release another 97 millions to build the 47 and other craft.

White House Approval Due

White House approval of spending the additional plane money is necessary, but is expected—at least as to the 103 millions already indorsed by Forrestal.

Final decision on the types to be built with the remainder of 1948-49 appropriations is significant on several counts.

All of the 103 millions just cleared by the Office of Defense will go for reorders of combat planes now in production which can be delivered in a relatively short time. They are Boeing B-50s, Lockheed F-80s and Republic F-84s.

A long backstage controversy has been under way in aviation circles over allocation of funds. One group, citing the lessons of the Berlin airlift, urged using some of the money tentatively earmarked for combat craft to build new type transports. They contend there is overemphasis now on fighters and bombers.

Another group advocated placing orders for more jet bombers and newer jet fighters not yet in production rather than the reorders of the B-50s, F-84s and F-80s.

The top-level decision, however, was that the world situation requires that Air Force combat groups be modernized as fast as possible, without waiting for better craft not yet ready for mass production. And while new transports are required, they are not as vital as bombers and fighters, ruled USAF chiefs.

B-50s an Improved B-29

Officials said that approximately 100 of the Lockheed F-80 Shooting Stars, a like number of Republic F-84 Thunderjets and some 13 of the big B-50s will be ordered with the 103 million dollars when fully cleared. (After certification of the funds by Forrestal and President Truman, the Bureau of the Budget must actually release the funds).

The B-50s are a greatly improved version of the B-29, with larger and more powerful engines. Those to be ordered are the "C" series of the B-50 containing a turbine device which gets many more miles to the gallon and hence much greater range. The B-50C, in fact, shows such better performance in this respect that it is to be renamed the B-54.

The additional Shooting Stars also will be the C series, with more powerful engines which USAF chiefs say boost the speed from 550 to 600 miles an hour.

With President Truman's backing, Secretary Forrestal last July released only $1,345,165,000 of the $1,542,000,000 voted by Congress for Air Force plane procurement. He warned against upsetting the national economy by an over ex-

Truman Got 'Light Vote' Story From a Propaganda Letter

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

What was the basis for President Truman's statement in Michigan that Republican workers were being told to discourage a heavy vote in November?

In a speech at Pontiac on Monday, calling on American labor for an all-out vote, Mr. Truman said:

"A light vote favors the Republicans. You know, they have got out a pamphlet to their workers in which they urge their workers not to get out the vote. They say a heavy vote helps the Democrats and a light vote helps the Republicans. Now bear that in mind."

The basis for this statement, The Washington Post learned yesterday, was a four-page bulletin, or news letter, published by the National Precinct Workers, Inc., of 332 South Michigan ave., Chicago.

The bulletin, whose author said it was one of a series sent out to "several thousand" Republican precinct captains throughout the country for a charge of $1 a year, came into the possession of Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

McGrath told President Truman about it.

The bulletin contained such statements as these:

"A careful analysis of recent voting patterns indicate (sic) that a very large turnout in the 1948 election will mean a Democratic victory.

"The great danger to the Republican cause lies in the over-optimism on the part of party leaders. All statistics indicate that the Republican Party is the minority party in America. There are not enough Republicans in the country to elect a President. If the Dewey-Warren ticket is to win, more Democrats and independents must be converted.

"The record shows that in all sections the Democratic strength in an election grows as the size of the vote increases . . .

"The result of the midterm 'off year elections' support (sic) the statistical theory that a heavy turnout of voters means a Democratic victory. In the 1942 congressional elections, 22 million fewer votes were cast than in 1940. Result: Democrats lost 45 seats in the House . . ."

A reporter in Chicago, making inquiries about the National Precinct Workers, Inc., learned it was headed by Frank J. Mackey, who twice (in 1936 and 1940) ran for Congress as a Republican but

German Is Slain And 22 Wounded; 200,000 Attend Big Demonstration

Berlin (Friday), Sept. 10 (AP). One person was killed and 22 were injured by bullets and stones in a bloody street clash last night between Berlin civilians and Russian soldiers, supported by eastern Berlin police, official reports said early today.

The clashes occurred near the historic Brandenburg Gate after 200,000 Germans had demonstrated in a nearby square against the Communist drive for power over the blockaded city.

British sector police headquarters said six injured civilians, including three with gunfire wounds, were in hospitals.

Counter-Rally Called

The deputy police chief of the Soviet sector said five of his policemen were injured, one seriously. In addition, he said, approximately 10 police suffered abrasions from hurled stones and one woman received an arm injury.

The Soviet-licensed news agency (ADN) said two of the Communist policemen were wounded by gunfire. The eastern sector deputy chief did not specify the nature of the wounds of his policemen and no eyewitness accounts of the rioting said members of the crowd exchanged gunfire with the troops and police.

The demonstration dwarfed all previous rallies in postwar Berlin. The Communist-sponsored Socialist Unity Party (SED) last night called on "the workers of Berlin" to mass for a big counter-rally at noon Sunday.

Part of the home-going crowd stoned three Russian soldiers in a jeep. They tossed rocks at the massive memorial the Russian army built on the conquest of Berlin. One demonstrator climbed the memorial and tore down a Soviet flag.

Fire Tommyguns

Soviet troops who rushed to the scene fired their tommyguns. The Soviet-controlled police fired pistols.

Russian-controlled German police fired pistols on demonstrators on the Soviet side of the historic granite gate which is the dividing line between the Russian and British sectors of Berlin. Russian military police drove a jeep through the gate into the British sector and fired tommyguns into the air until British-controlled police and soldiers persuaded the crowd to disperse.

British sector police said Fritz Scheurmann, a 16-year-old German youth, died from gunfire wounds in the stomach while en route to a hospital. The Soviet-licensed news agency (ADN) said two Communist policemen were wounded by gunfire and claimed "one is presumed to have been injured fatally."

New Election Call Is Given By DeGaulle

Auto Workers Battle Police With Stones In March on Paris

Paris, Sept. 9 (AP).—An official spokesman for Gen. Charles de Gaulle called tonight for new national French elections.

This was the first time De Gaulle had intervened during a cabinet crisis.

Jacques Soustelle, secretary-general of De Gaulle's French People's Rally (RPF), made a statement to the press at a moment when:

1. The veteran Radical Socialist Henri Queuille had accepted formally the nomination for Premier of France.

2. Labor unrest flared throughout France and her colonies.

On the outskirts of Paris, workers of the Renault automobile factory quit their jobs and began a march toward the center of the city. A large police contingent met them along the route. They attacked the police with paving stones and overturned a police car. Before the group was dispersed, a dozen workers and 20 policemen were injured.

Several workers got cracked heads in an earlier battle with police near the palace of President Vincent Auriol. One was reported hospitalized.

Soustelle's statement said:

"After last October's municipal elections (in which the De Gaullist forces won about 40 per cent of the vote) General de Gaulle declared it necessary to give the nation its voice as soon as possible.

"Today it is even more necessary to harmonize national representation with the popular will.

$10,000 Posted For Polk Killer

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—William J. Donovan, former head of the Office of Strategic Services, announced tonight that the Overseas Writers Association had offered a $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of George Polk, Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent.

Donovan recently returned from his third trip to Greece as counsel for the association, headed by Columnist Walter Lippmann. He made the association's offer in a broadcast over the CBS network.

Donovan said that on his trip "we told the Greek authorities that they had failed to explore, earnestly and carefully, all the possibilities" to the solution of the slaying.

Polk was found dead in Salonika, Greece, four months ago, his body trussed and a bullet hole in his head.

His mother has termed his death a "political murder."

Still Some Arguing On Rights, However, He Tells Conference

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday told his weekly news conference that the United States will not yield in any degree to Russia in the present critical Berlin situation.

He also revealed that formal or "de jure" recognition of the government of Israel is under consideration by the Administration. He declined to state whether such action would be delayed until after the election in Israel in October or not.

Dubinsky Quotes Him

Mr. Truman's comments on the Berlin situation came after considerable prodding by reporters. Early in the conference he referred all such questions to Secretary of State Marshall's conference of Wednesday.

Marshall Wednesday served notice that Communist efforts to create chaos in Berlin to break up or embarrass the four-power conferences now going on there, would be resisted firmly.

An hour after his news conference, Mr. Truman received David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers (AFL), and discussed the Berlin situation with him.

Afterward, Dubinsky told reporters that when he suggested to Mr. Truman that steps be taken to protect German trade union leaders "in the event we are pushed out of Berlin," that Mr. Truman replied:

"We will not be pushed out of Berlin."

Only 'Attempted' Duress

The President told his news conference that present discussions with the Russians are just a continuance of negotiations that have been going on since the end of the war.

They will continue, he said, with the hope always of establishing a permanent peace. It can't be settled in any other way, he commented.

When one reporter suggested that the situation was confusing, "because I understood that we would not negotiate until the

Foreign Situation a Factor

Billion Wiped Out in Values As N. Y. Stocks Drop Further

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—Stocks declined further in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange today. Losses ranged to more than two points, wiping out around one billion dollars in market valuations.

The worsening foreign situation and adverse domestic news were blamed for the continuing decline in securities prices. Sentiment was depressed considerably in Wall st. on the overnight announcement by the Federal Reserve Board ordering its member banks to increase their reserves against deposits. The spread of strikes throughout the Nation also contributed to the gloomy outlook.

The session was the most active in more than a month. Transactions rose to 1,200,000 shares, the most since August 11, from 880,000 shares yesterday.

All sections of the list took part in the sharp decline, with the oil issues hit hardest. Losses in that group ranged to more than 4¼ points. Skelly Oil dropped 4¼ points to 111.

United States Steel led the decline in its group with a loss of 1½ points to 79⅛. Automotive issues weakened with Chrysler losing a point and General Motors showing a fractional loss.

Union Pacific dropped 2¼ points to 89. Santa Fe and Illinois Central were down more than a point each and Nickel Plate lost a point. Allied Chemical lost 2½ points.

Yanks Are 'Cut Up' In Reich Mock War By 'Foe' From East

Grafenwoehr, Germany, Sept. 9 (AP).—It was made quite clear tonight on the basis of practice maneuvers, that the United States armed forces in Germany would be helpless if any kind of superior force slammed into them from the east.

What made it so clear was what happened to the First U. S. Infantry Division when the mythical problem was this:

An "aggressor" trying to shove the division back to the Rhine River had attacked with tanks, artillery and air support. The division was seeking to sacrifice itself to prove that ground would be lost only at great expense in time, money and men.

The division got in real trouble after only two days' "fighting," and was likely to be cut to pieces between now and Friday afternoon.

It was cut up by six paper divisions "charging" in from the Czech border.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

By Sam Stavisky

Queuille Wins, Retains Respect Of Associates, Also Political Opponents

In the good old United States, country doctors are renowned for the number of babies they deliver and the best sellers they write. In la belle France, country doctors are noted for the number of babies they deliver and the prominence they attain in politics.

Henri Queuille (pronounced approximately "ker-yuh," with accent on the first syllable), who yesterday was called upon to form a new French government in a time of labor pains, is a physician-turned-politician who, through two wars and four decades of public service, has won and retained the respect of associates and political opponents alike.

Queuille

A Radical Socialist—which is to say, a moderate conservative—who has participated in a score of governments in ministerial or subcabinet posts, the premier-designate is nonetheless a relatively unknown as an international figure.

Those who know Henri Queuille say he is the epitome of the country folk who make up 55 per cent of France's population. One former associate describes him as a country boy dressed up in his Sunday suit who still retains the flavor and plainness of the people who live close to the land.

From Central France

Monsieur Queuille hails from the Department of Correze, and agricultural, mountainous region in Central France given to grazing of cattle and making of cheese. Like so many of his kinsmen in that rugged country, the premier-designate is a small, wiry man, about 5 feet 7 inches, his thin face adorned by mustache. He is shy, retiring, and despite the chain-smoking habit, calm. He is married, father of a son and daughter, lives on a modest estate. At 64, he is still energetic, [illegible] shy; able, without being brilliant.

Like other country physicians who've turned up in the French political arena, M. Queuille got his start by building up a large and appreciative rural practice. He was first elected to the Chamber of Deputies in 1914, and thenceforth was considered a spokesman of the farmers. A steady cog in the wheel of government for many years, M. Queuille achieved the high point of his national popularity when his name was widely mentioned for the presidency of the republic in 1939.

Fled France to Join de Gaulle

In 1943, at the age of 59, M. Queuille made a perilous escape from occupied France to join General de Gaulle in London. Hitherto, he had taken an inactive role in the war, abstaining from the vote which established the Vichy occupation government. Now, in response to de Gaulle's call for representatives of all French parties to join him, M. Queuille showed up to speak for Herriot and the Radical Socialists. He later became a member of the French Committee of National Liberation formed at Algiers.

At various times, Henri Queuille has been Minister of Agriculture, of Food, of Health, of Post, Telegraph and Telephones. He was Minister of Public Works and Tranportation in the second, two-day government of Premier Schuman, whom he was called to succeed.

These cabinet positions were for the most part administrative, rather than policy-making posts. They were jobs which demanded a maximum of good sense—M. Queuille's prime characteristic, according to a ranking official who served with him.

It was this quality of horse sense which made the country doctor the accepted conciliator of intraparty disputes and which has brought him the premiership in a time of interparty crisis.

Jerusalem Quiet After Night Firing

Jerusalem, Sept. 9 (U.P.)—Isolated mortar shelling and intermittent machine-gun fire were directed by Arab forces at various Jewish areas of this city last night, according to an Israeli brigade headquarters statement. No casualties and no damage were recorded.

All was quiet this morning in the Holy City's continuing "truce war."

Signboards in Hebrew now posted in the various forward areas facing the Arab lines state: 'Caution, you are now within the line of sniper's fire.'

Truman Maps Intensive Tour To West Coast

President Truman will outline his farm program at Dexter, Iowa, in the heart of the Midwest corn and hog belt Saturday, September 18, two days before Gov. Thomas E. Dewey speaks at Des Moines, 40 miles away.

The Dexter speech, which will be part of a farm conservation field day and State plowing contest, will be the jump-off for an intensive stumping tour of the West, Mr. Truman told his news conference yesterday.

The Sunday after Dexter he will rest at his home at Independence, Mo. The next day he will speak at Denver, Colo., in the morning at an hour not yet set.

On September 21, he is scheduled at Salt Lake City and Provo, Utah, the next day at Reno, Nev., Sacramento, Calif., and San Francisco, and on September 23 at Los Angeles.

These appearances will be the major stops on his way to the coast. But he plans to hit the "whistle stops" in between. Yesterday he said he expects to talk in Davenport, Iowa, at 6:30 a. m. on the day he is scheduled at Dexter. Later he plans a long-promised visit to Oxford, Iowa, a small town just west of Iowa City.

When asked yesterday about how many speeches he plans to give each day, the President, looking jaunty and refreshed, remarked that he thought Labor Day might prove a pretty good example.

Reporters who had been with him on his Labor Day trip to Michigan groaned. He made seven speeches that day.

On his way from Denver to Salt Lake City talks have been scheduled at Colorado Springs, Pueblo, Canyon City, Texas Creek, Saluda, Buena Vista, and Glenwood Springs, all in Colorado, on September 20.

After Los Angeles he plans to talk his way back to Washington, it was indicated. Three speeches have already been promised in Oklahoma, Gov. Roy Turner of the Sooner State and chairman of the Nation-wide Truman-Barkley clubs announced two weeks ago.

He is expected to make several speeches in Arizona and New Mexico—the latter State where his former Secretary of Agriculture, Clinton P. Anderson, is running against former Republican Secretary of War Pat Hurley to succeed Carl Hatch in the Senate.

After Mr. Truman's news conference, a caller, David Dubinsky, president of the AFL International Ladies' Garment Workers, asked the President to make a New York address at a rally of the Liberal Party there October 26.

Mr. Truman spoke before the same group at Madison Square Garden four years ago on the same platform with Henry A. Wallace. Wallace, now a presidential candidate on the Progressive ticket, then was supporting the Roosevelt-Truman ticket.

Dubinsky told Mr. Truman that Wallace's new party is "losing ground" in New York. "He would have got more votes two months ago than he will get now," Dubinsky said. Dubinsky is planning a campaign to get out the Democratic vote in New York City, he said.

DeGaulle Asks New Elections

Certainly the voting laws must be overhauled. But it is inadmissable that under the pretext of doing this, an election should be delayed.

"The French People's Rally holds there is no other democratic solution than to hold general elections as soon as possible. It condemns any and all combinations (of government) which, in delaying the elections, prolong the system of permanent crisis which endangers the republic and the very life of France."

Queuille accepted the premiership nomination after getting the support of the Socialist Party.

Success for the new Premier in forming a cabinet would mean a setback for De Gaulle's party and the Communists. Both would be left out of the government again.

The Communists, strongest single party in France were squeezed out 18 months ago. Followers of General De Gaulle unsuccessfully demanded revision of the French constitution as their price for support of Queuille.

In forming the fourteenth French cabinet since the war, Queuille has the support of the Socialists, the Popular Republicans (MRP) and his own Radical Socialists (Conservatives). It appears he also has swayed small moderate groups.

vote—that Mr. Truman and Mr. Wallace can battle over that.

The CIO executive board only last week voted 35 to 12 to support Mr. Truman, again renouncing Wallace's third party.

Dewey bid directly for AFL support in a recent statement for the American Federationist. Slapping indirectly at the CIO left wing, he said he anticipated "a close cooperative relationship with the responsible leadership of the AFL."

But it was his Labor Day proclamation that brought the AFL Building Service Employes to his side. It accorded labor "the status and dignity it needs in a community," cited fair and impartial administration of New York State laws, conceded today working men and women need special protection from Government and promised to keep bread and butter problems of labor out of politics.

"These principles amply demonstrate that Governor Dewey is fully cognizant of the aims and needs of the working men and women of the United States and that they are entitled to the dignity and a place of equal important with all citizens of the United States," said a resolution adopted by the executive board of the union.

It said Governor Dewey has shown himself a wise and able administrator and "his calm strength will replace indecision and jittery irresolution in governmental affairs.

Strong Leadership Needed

"The welfare of our country and the welfare of labor are one and the same," said the resolution. "In the critical years that are ahead, with their postwar problems and the peace of the world at stake, this Nation must have wise and strong leadership."

McFetridge told reporters his union had never "seen eye to eye" with the Taft-Hartley Act and counsel for the organization are perparing some amendments for Congress to consider.

He said Governor Dewey gave the delegation no assurances on Taft-Hartley revisions, but "We are hopeful and confident he will support any amendments that are necessary."

Thomas G. Young, an official of the union and vice president of the New York State Federation of Labor, said a number of vice presidents of the State federation will support Dewey.

"I am deeply gratified by this expression of cooperation by one of the greatest unions in America," Dewey told the delegation.

Dewey Backed By 69% of U. S. Newspapers

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—Thomas E. Dewey may have more newspaper support this year than any other presidential candidate in five recorded campaigns, a preliminary survey in Editor and Publisher indicated today.

Answers in this week's issue of the magazine from two fifths of the Nation's dailies showed 69 per cent of them behind Dewey, and 16 per cent for President Truman.

Less than 4 per cent favored States Rights Democrat J. Strom Thurmond. Henry Wallace had only two newspapers. Eleven per cent of those answering were not committed.

This compared with 60 per cent who backed Dewey against President Roosevelt in the magazine's final 1944 survey and 66 per cent who supported Wendell Willkie against Roosevelt in 1940.

Talmadge Assured Of Governorship

Atlanta, Sept. 9 (AP).—Herman Talmadge returned to power in Georgia today on a "white supremacy" platform and a wave of resentment against the Federal civil rights program.

His nomination for Governor in yesterday's Democratic primary was overwhelming and a special session of the Legislature seemed assured to inaugurate him early in November.

Gov. M. E. Thompson, his rival since the hectic days of the "dual government" 20 months ago, conceded defeat and agreed to plans for a speedy inaugural immediately after the general election.

Unofficial returns from 1709 out of 1763 precincts gave him 347,709 to 303,787 popular votes for Thompson, and a county unit margin of 316 to 94.

There were more than 142,000 Negroes registered to vote out of the 1,194,000 total and their ballots generally were conceded to Thompson, but it was not enough.

Thompson rolled up a big margin in densely populated Fulton Fulton counted only six unit votes. (Atlanta) County, leading Talmadge 41,733 to 25,000 there; but Elsewhere the traditional Talmadge rural counties fell into line and the 35-year-old heir of the "white supremacy" platform even captured some urban counties his father could never carry.

In Georgia it takes 206 county unit votes to nominate a Governor. The smallest, farming counties, each have two; intermediate counties have four and the eight metropolitan counties have six. The Democratic nomination is equivalent to election.

Seven of Georgia's 10 Congressmen and United States Senator Richard B. Russell were unopposed for renomination, and three incumbents who were contested all won easy victories.

The three are Representative Eugene Cox of the Second District, Representative W. M. Wheeler of the Eighth and Representative James C. Davis of the Fifth.

Talmadge Win Won't Wreck Georgia, Atlanta Editor Says

appealing, a good, honest schoolteacher, he had done an acceptable job, but he attracted no support. Very few persons were for Thompson. A great many were against Talmadge. Georgia has been divided roughly into Talmadge and anti-Talmadge camps for a quarter century. This time, with the greatest registration in history, well over one million, only about half the voters were interested enough in what they considered a bad choice, to come out and vote. Even the Negroes, intimidated only here and there, were not enthusiastic. In Atlanta, for example, where there was no intimidation or hint of it, only half the registered Negro voters came to the polls. They reflected white opinion, namely that Thompson was a political accident who was being manipulated by the shopworn political forces and for them it was no great issue. There is great mourning among the anti-Talmadge group, but everyone is up and doing, expecting no heavens to fall.

Klan Influence Slight

The Ku Klux Klan at best has about 15,000 members and was not a factor. Old Doc Greene, the wistful grand dragon, hung around the Talmadge headquarters. Three times an effort was made to get the dragon to depart, on the theory that he was not a good ad, but the Doc stuck it out. Even so, not even the Talmadge people, while they had taken his votes, were making a pal of him.

Southern politics, in the one-party States, has always been a politics of protest and in that pattern Georgia has long been a leader. Tom Watson sparked the Populist revolt of the eighties and nineties which almost smashed the Democratic Party in the State. Georgia, like the other Southern States, is going through the retreat from cotton and what amounts to an agricultural revolution. Industry is coming ahead and unions have more strength. But, industry's workers come from the farms, and reflect the farm psychology. Hence, the CIO, which hates Talmadge, sat back in impotence while all the CIO automobile unions and a good 30 per cent of the textile union members, whooped it up for Herman as they had for Old Gene.

Civil Rights "Threat"

Georgia, along with the South, is in a state of transition. That goes for politics, too. The Truman Civil Rights proposals were very effective in solidifying the Talmadge ranks and putting them to work. The threat of an FEPC put most of the industrial workers and owners behind him. Thompson was crying "me, too" and trying to prove that no one hated the civil rights proposals more than he, but the presence of Ellis Arnall, who had seconded Henry Wallace's nomination at Chicago in 1944, made the Thompson camp vulnerable. It may be noted in passing that the platforms of both candidates were so alike they could well have been written by the same man and on no single pertinent issue did they differ at all, another reason why Thompson didn't get any "for" votes but only the negative ones. Henry Wallace's entry into neighboring Southern States also had an effect. The average Southerner is in something of the mood of the bull at the bullfight after the picadors and the banderillos have finished with him. The civil rights proposals and Henry Wallace's bumbling parades have aroused a lot of them to furious defense of their worst politicians.

Even the State's liberals, while they wanted Thompson to win, privately admit it probably is better for the State he didn't. Had he won he would have been a schoolteacher lost in the political woods. Young Talmadge is just 35. He is far shrewder than his father. He speaks grammatically and uses big words with ease. He is politically ambitious. He plans to run for the United States Senate two years from now when the present term will end. That will be against Senator Walter F. George if he chooses to run. But the Talmadge people hope his age will cause him to retire. The Talmadge organization will then have to choose for the 1950 Governorship between Robert Elliott, national committeeman from Columbus, Ga., and Lieut. Gov. Marvin Griffin, nominated with Talmadge and who ran far stronger than even Talmadge. Griffin carried even Fulton County of which Atlanta is the county seat, which Talmadge lost by more than 10,000 votes and Griffin was even more anticivil rights than Talmadge.

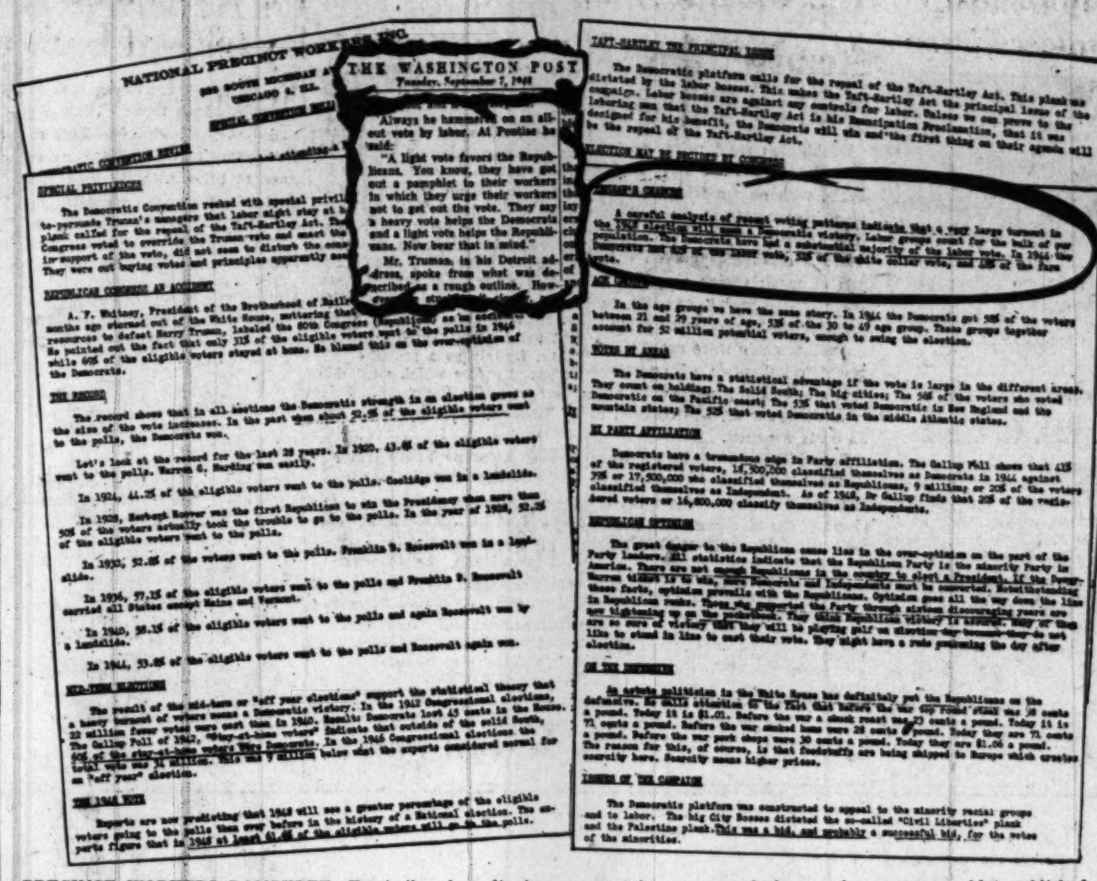
No Feeling of Despair

So, one and all hope that young Talmadge, with that ambition before him, will try to make a really outstanding Governor and will adopt a policy of conciliation. He has said he wants the qualified Negro to vote and have full rights so long as segregation is maintained. His position is that of the dominant majority and it is also that of a majority of the Negroes, although their voice is not heard. Most of Georgia's Negroes, like those of the South, are rural Negroes. It is noteworthy the Atlanta Daily World, a militant Negro publication, was critical of the Ray Springle articles as harmful rather than helpful.

So while a lot of Georgians are unhappy about the Talmadge victory, there is no despair and there is no feeling that slavery is at hand. The Talmadge organization looks good for about six years, but they feel it will be a better brand of Talmadgeism than that of the late Gene Talmadge and the State got along under six years of his administration. The anti-Talmadge forces remain strong and full of fight and there will be no lying down and giving up. The fight will go on. The Klan will try to derive all the benefit it can out of the racial situation, and it will be helped by antilabor mill owners. But there is no chance at all the Klan will have any great influence in State government.

Meanwhile, the Republicans likely will run a man for Governor. He will get a good vote, but has no chance to win. That will be a start toward the greatly desired two-party system. But until the racial problem is made less acute by migration and more jobs, and until the State is less of a have-not State, our politics will continue to be explosive and based on protests rather than issues. The liberal is gloomy—but not buried.

President's Statement on Vote and Its Source



NATIONAL PRECINCT WORKERS, INC.
THE WASHINGTON POST
Tuesday, September 7, 1948
Always he hammered on an all-out vote by labor. At Pontiac he said:
"A light vote favors the Republicans. You know, they have got out a pamphlet to their workers in which they urge their workers not to get out the vote. They say a heavy vote helps the Democrats and a light vote helps the Republicans. Now bear that in mind."
Mr. Truman, in his Detroit address, spoke from what was described as a rough outline. How-

REPUBLICANS CONFESS AN ACCIDENT
A. F. Whitney, President of the Brotherhood of Railr months ago rhymed out of the White House, muttering that resources to defeat Harry Truman, labeled the 80th Congress (Republican) as an accident.
He pointed out the fact that only 33% of the eligible voters went to the polls in 1946 while 60% of the eligible voters stayed at home. He blamed this on the over-optimism of the Democrats.
THE RECORD
The record shows that in all elections the Democratic strength in an election grows as the size of the vote increases. In the part then about 52.8% of the eligible voters went to the polls, the Democrats won.
Let's look at the record for the last 28 years. In 1920, 43.6% of the eligible voters went to the polls. Warren G. Harding won easily.
In 1924, 44.3% of the eligible voters went to the polls. Coolidge won in a landslide.
In 1928, Herbert Hoover was the first Republican to win the Presidency when more than 50% of the voters actually took the trouble to go to the polls. In the year of 1928, 52.3% of the eligible voters went to the polls.
In 1932, 52.6% of the voters went to the polls. Franklin D. Roosevelt won in a landslide.
In 1936, 57.1% of the eligible voters went to the polls and Franklin D. Roosevelt carried all States except Maine and Vermont.
In 1940, 58.5% of the eligible voters went to the polls and again Roosevelt won by a landslide.
In 1944, 53.8% of the eligible voters went to the polls and Roosevelt again won.
MID-TERM ELECTIONS
The result of the mid-term or "off year elections" support the statistical theory that a heavy turnout of voters means a Democratic victory. In the 1942 Congressional elections, 22 million fewer voted were cast than in 1940. Results: Democrats lost 45 seats in the House.
The Gallup Poll of 1942, "Stay-at-home voters" indicate that outside of the solid South, 60% of the stay-at-home voters were Democrats. In the 1946 Congressional elections the total vote was 34 million. This was 9 million below what the experts considered normal for an "off year" election.
THE 1948 VOTE
Reports are now predicting that 1948 will see a greater percentage of the eligible voters going to the polls than ever before in the history of a National election. The reports figure that in 1948 at least 61.6% of the eligible voters will go to the polls.
TAFT-HARTLEY THE PRINCIPAL ISSUE
The Democratic platform calls for the repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act. This plank was dictated by the labor bosses. This makes the Taft-Hartley Act the principal issue of the campaign. Labor bosses are against any controls for labor. Unless we can prove to the laboring man that the Taft-Hartley Act is his Emancipation Proclamation, that it was designed for his benefit, the Democrats will win and the first thing on their agenda will be the repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act.
ELECTION MAY BE DECIDED BY CHANCE
A careful analysis of recent voting patterns indicate that a very large turnout in the 1948 election will mean a Republican victory. Labor groups count for the bulk of our population. The Democrats have had a substantial majority of the labor vote. In 1944 the Democrats had 62% of the labor vote, 53% of the white collar vote, and 43% of the farm vote.
AGE GROUPS
In the age groups we have the same story. In 1944 the Democrats got 58% of the voters between 21 and 29 years of age, 53% of the 30 to 49 age group. These groups together account for 52 million potential voters, enough to swing the election.
VOTES BY AREAS
The Democrats have a statistical advantage if the vote is large in the different areas.
They count on holding: The Solid South; The big cities; The 56% of the voters who voted Democratic on the Pacific coast; The 53% that voted Democratic in New England and the mountain states; The 52% that voted Democratic in the middle Atlantic states.
BY PARTY AFFILIATION
Democrats have a tremendous edge in Party affiliation. The Gallup Poll shows that 43% of the registered voters, 16,900,000 classified themselves as Democrats in 1944 against 29% or 17,500,000 who classified themselves as Republicans, 9 million; or 20% of the voters classified themselves as Independent. As of 1946, Dr Gallup finds that 28% of the registered voters or 14,800,000 classify themselves as Independents.
REPUBLICAN DIVISION
The great danger to the Republicans comes like in the over-optimism on the part of the Party leaders. All statistics indicate that the Republican Party is the minority Party in America. There are not enough Republicans in the country to elect a President. If the Progressive ticket is in the race, many Democrats and Independents must be converted. Notwithstanding in Republican ranks. Those who supported the Party through sixteen discouraging years are now tightening up on the pocketbook. They think Republican victory is assured. Many of them are so sure of victory that they will be playing golf on election day because they do not like to stand in line to cast their vote. They might have a rude awakening the day after election.
ON THE DEFENSIVE
As astute politician in the White House has definitely put the Republicans on the defensive. By their attention to the Taft-Hartley Act before the war the Gop found steak was 38 cents a pound. Today it is $1.01. Before the war a chuck roast was 53 cents a pound. Today it is 71 cents a pound. Before the war ground beef was 29 cents a pound. Today they are 71 cents a pound. Before the war pork chops were 30 cents a pound. Today they are $1.06 a pound.
The reason for this, of course, is that foodstuffs are being shipped to Europe which creates scarcity here. Scarcity means higher prices.
TENSION OF THE CAMPAIGN
The Democratic platform was constructed to appeal to the minority racial groups and to labor. The big City Bosses dictated the so-called "Civil Liberties" plank and the Palestine plank. This was a bid, and probably a successful bid, for the votes of the minorities.

Truman Got 'Light Vote' Charge From a Propaganda Bulletin

failed to win his party's nomination.

Mackey said he got into the field of political literature in 1946 when he and his associates published a 125-page book called the "Republican Precinct Workers Handbook." This was prepared by John L. (Bunny) East, Republican chairman of Cook County, who is now at work revising it.

Mackey said that among the purchasers was Senator Edward Martin of Pennsylvania, who in 1946 was Governor of the Keystone State.

At Martin's office on Capitol Hill yesterday, it was stated that about 200 of the handbooks were purchased by the Republican State Committee of Pennsylvania and distributed among the party workers.

Mackey said that his oorganization had no connection with the Republican National Committee. He added, however, that when County Chairman East's revised "Republican Precinct Workers Handbook" comes off the press, he hopes to be able to sell copies to the GOP high command.

(William C. Murphy, publicity director for the Republican National Committee, said the National Precinct Workers, Inc. "is not sponsored or supported by the Republican National Committee and has no connection with it." Murphy added that the committee is doing its utmost to get out a big vote.)

Mackey said that the bulletin or news letter which his organization publishes sought to analyze matters "vital to the Republican Party." Frequently, he said, it differs with the official Republican viewpoint.

"Several Thousand" Subscribers

He said it was published occasionally, whenever anything came up that was "pertinent," and was distributed to Republican precinct captains all over the country.

Asked how many subscribed to it, he said "several thousand."

Mackey vigorously refuted President Truman's statement that the bulletin urged GOP workers to strive for a light vote.

"If we tried to get the Democrats to stay away from the polls," he said, "that would be one certain way of getting them to vote."

He said that the observation in his bulletin—to the effect that the Republicans have a much better chance when the vote is light—is borne out by the records.

The thought he was trying to get across, Mackey said, was in the last paragraph of his bulletin. This said:

"Since the Republican Party is not the majority party, Republican victory is dependent on the success or failure of a selling job. If 20 per cent of labor can be convinced that the Taft-Hartley law is labor's dog.

Decision on Probe Of Texas Election Due After Sept. 13

By The Associated Press

Politically-torn Texas was still confused yesterday over its Democratic senatorial primary. The latest development was an announcement by the Justice Department here that it won't decide until after September 13 whether it will investigate the voting.

Lyndon Johnson, young Congressman, is leading former Governor Coke Stevenson by a handful of votes—slightly over 100 out of about one million cast. Both have asked for an investigation.

Assistant Attorney General Alexander Campbell said the department is "reviewing" complaints of irregularities in the August 28 balloting, but will not make up its mind what to do until after the Texas Democratic State Convention meets September 13 to certify the results of the runoff.

U. S. Sues 3 Farm Tool Firms

The Justice Department announced yesterday the filing of civil anti-trust suits against three big makers of farm machinery.

The defendants were named as International Harvester Co., J. I. Case Co., and Deere & Co.

The suits, filed in Federal Court at Minneapolis, allege the companies supressed competition by agreements with retail dealers which prevent rival manufacturers from using those market outlets.

Attorney Clark said the most serious effects of the alleged exclusive arrangements is to limit the selection which farmers might otherwise have in the purchase of farm machinery.

In Chicago, John L. McCaffrey, Harvester president, issued a statement saying:

"I do not believe any company in this country has made a greater effort or a more consistent effort than International Harvester to observe both the spirit and the letter of the anti-trust laws."

At Racine, Wisc., A. J. I. Case Company spokesman said the firm had made no changes in its sales practices for the last 30 years "except during the war to comply with some government regulations."

At Moline, Ill., Deere and Company officials declined to comment.

Mrs. Hunt Heads GOP

The job of Republican campaign manager for the Midwest in charge of women's activities yesterday was given to Mrs. J. W. Hunt, of Oswego, Ill.

Campaign manager Herbert Brownell, jr., and associate campaign manager Mrs. Charles W. Weis, jr., said Mrs. Hunt will work with A. T. Howard, the Midwest campaign manager, at the Chicago headquarters.

Auto, Flour Output Cut by Strikes

By The Associated Press

Strikes cut deeper into flour and automobile production Thursday and there were no signs of early settlement.

Meanwhile, a New York metropolitan area trucking strike cut sharply into the delivery of drygoods and reduced newsprint supplies of New York City's newspapers to a matter of days.

These were the developments by industries:

Automotive: An estimated 50,000 Detroit auto workers remained idle for the second day. The strike, called by 170 independent union plant guards at the Briggs Manufacturing Co., threw 25,000 Briggs' workers out of work. Chrysler Corp. sent home 19,000 workers and Packard 6000 when assembly lines were halted by a shortage of bodies. The guards are seeking 15 minutes paid preparatory time.

Grain Handlers Strike

Flour: A strike of 1200 grain handlers at six Minneapolis-St. Paul mills entered its second day after peace efforts of Gov. Luther Youngdahl failed. Industry spokesmen said the strike would not affect bread supplies for a long period, as other mills in the area are operating. The strike was called by the AFL American Federation of Grain Millers in support of demands for at least a 20-cent hourly wage boost.

Trucking: The National Retail Dry Goods Association said the strike of AFL truck drivers in the New York metropolitan area had curtailed dry goods deliveries to retail outlets about 35 per cent. Large department stores are being supplied by parcel post and railway express. New York was faced with a possible coffee shortage, but the threat of a milk shortage was lifted when the AFL teamsters' union assigned 32 drivers to trucks delivering fiber containers.

Shipping: No progress was made toward settling the strike of 28,000 West Coast CIO longshoremen. Harry Bridges, union leader, said the union plans to "officially transmit to the employers any offer to resume negotiations and end the strike."

Votes Counted Today

This will be done, said President Harry Bridges, after votes are counted today on the union referendum on two proposals by the ship owners.

Longshoremen voted along on: (1) Whether to accept the last offer of the ship operators, and (2) on the ship owners' demand that the union file anti-Communist affidavits under the Taft-Hartley law. A strong negative vote on both issues is predicted.

Oil: Programs were mapped for rationing gasoline in the West because of a five-day wage strike of 15,000 CIO oil workers in California refineries. Glenn Bowers, State conciliation supervisor, said the tone of conciliation meetings had been cooperative, with both sides making a serious effort to conclude their arguments.

At Washington, the Government announced that a temporary embargo on the export of gasoline, including aviation fuel, and other oils from West Coast ports will go into effect September 11 at 12:01 a. m. (PDT).

Besides gasoline, the fuels affected include kerosene, gas oil and distillate fuel oil.

The United States Department of Commerce has requested the Canadian government to suspend temporarily the importation of these products from United States West Coast ports.

Organization of a District of Columbia Department of the American Federation of the Physically Handicapped, with H. Richard McCamant of 2713 29th st. se. as president, was announced yesterday.

Other new officers are: Stanley A. Golden, 1864 South 12th st., Arlington, as secretary-treasurer; Gunnar E. Rath, 3912 Ames st. ne.; Mary Jim Werdig, 109 13th st. se.; Robert Conklin, 2921 7th st. se.; Mary A. Gray, 1328 22d st. nw.; Frank Stuber, 5105 Crittenden st., Edmonston, Md., and Winnie Dale Durant, Meridian Park Apartments, vice presidents.

Meat Prices, Steady Here, Due to Rise

Washington meat prices yesterday were generally at last week's levels, with only a few small declines in some items.

One chain grocery store dropped prices 2 cents a pound on three cuts of meat: Chuck roast, to 65 cents; ground beef, to 63 cents, and shoulder lamb roast, to 57 cents.

Another chain store cut the per-pound retail price of quartered butter to 83 cents while solid butter, selling for 83, was reduced to 82 cents a pound.

But while there was little change in the local price picture, Sidney Kolker, chairman of the meat division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, predicted meat prices would increase shortly.

He said he saw no real possibility of a downward break in meat prices before next spring.

The Dun & Bradstreet index, which represents the wholesale cost of a pound of each of 31 foods in general use, dropped 4 cents for the week ended September 7. The index was $6.86 for that week, as compared with $6.90 for the preceding week.

Food Cost Drop Is Reported 'On Way'

Lower food prices are "on the way," according to three of the Nation's largest farm organizations.

This good news for consumers was announced jointly by the National Grange, American Farm Bureau Federation and National Council of Farmer Cooperatives.

Their forecast came as the Labor Department reported a decline in wholesale prices for the second straight week.

Average wholesale prices for 900 basic commodities dropped 0.6 per cent for the week ended last Saturday, largely as a result of slipping food prices which went down 2 per cent for the week. Prices for commodities other than farm products and food went up 0.1 per cent.

Wholesale prices were still 8.1 per cent above those of late August last year, however, and the department's wholesale index stood at 167.4, with the year 1926 used as a base with an index figure of 100.

Farm Price Supports Given 2-Party Defense

Des Moines, Sept. 9 (AP).—Key spokesmen on both sides of the political fence came to the defense of farm price supports in Iowa speeches today.

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, a Democrat, and Representative Hope (R., Kans.), chairman of the House Agricultural Committee, took issue with those who contend price supports are causing high food prices.

UE Pledges To Fight for Draft Repeal

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—The CIO Electrical Workers today approved a resolution backed by its leadership pledging the union to fight for repeal of the peacetime draft.

The vote, taken by a show of hands, appeared to be by a 5-to-3 margin. This was much less decisive support than the union convention had given other controversial measures backed by the UE top officers.

The resolution said "The draft is a part of big business' war against the American people . . . It is a part of a 'guns, not butter' plan to force a war economy upon this country."

Delegates opposing the resolution said that in view of Russia's standing army it would be foolish to lay the United States open to attack. They declared Russia was occupying country after country as Hitler did.

The convention also adopted resolutions favoring a national bonus for World War II veterans and the return of price control.

25 Spanish Refugees Arrive in Venezuela

Caracas, Venezuela, Sept. 9 (U.P.).—A group of 25 Spanish political refugees, opponents of the Franco regime, arrived today in the port of Macuro aboard a frail sloop with an Auxiliary motor.

There were 3 women and 22 men aboard. All were weak from hunger, since their provisions were exhausted several days before their arrival.

An Open Letter Wherein Bond Answers a Big Question for a Lot of Men!

Dear Mr. Phipps:

You ask "what's going to happen to Fall suit prices? Will they skyrocket along with milk and butter and beefsteak?"

You echo what all America shouts - "it's high time somebody slammed on the brakes". You're right - it is high time! And that's not just lip-service, Mr. Phipps. We at Bond's are doing it!

You've heard how fine worsteds - the kind you like to wear - are up an average of 50 cents a yard. That's a lot of money. You've read plenty about rising labor costs. Well, tailors have to eat the same as coal miners and steel workers.

So what's the answer? You can slice it two ways. Add these increased costs to all your price tags - and let the public pay. Or sit tight, keep prices down, get more business - and let higher volume cut your expenses.

That's "the Bond way", Mr. Phipps! Once again we're holding the price-line. Once again, we expect to rub out a big chunk of our increased costs by serving more men. You've seen it work, right here at Bond's, every time inflation made the headlines. In 1937, when almost every clothier boosted prices and Bond didn't! Ditto, in 1941. And now, in the Fall of 1948, you're getting the most convincing proof of all!

Step into any Bond store, ask for one of our popular Style Manor Suits, and you'll see the same smooth worsteds, the same fine needlework - and the same familiar price tag - 37.75.

Set your sights on our famous Park Lane Quality, and you'll find America's topflight fabrics handsomely tailored in 81 different sizes and models - at one low price you paid last Spring - 45.75.

Decide you want the luxury and fine hand-detailing of our Rochester fashioned Executive Group Suits, and we'll show you a grand selection at a price you'll recall with pleasure - 51.75.

Yes, that's swimming against the tide. Somebody must lead. And you, Mr. Phipps, naturally look to Bond - America's largest outfitter to men - to show the way. We will not disappoint you!

London Views Berlin Crisis As Worsening

By R. H. Shackford

London, Sept. 9 (U.P.).—The British government described the deteriorating Berlin situation as "extremely serious" today as Western diplomats debated three possible next moves in the East-West crisis.

After 48 hours of special conferences here, representatives of Britain, France and the United States still had not decided whether to:

1. Call off the entire attempt to reach agreement with the Russians through diplomatic channels and discontinue the talks in Berlin and Moscow.

2. Continue the talks in Berlin and/or Moscow, overlooking the hooliganism of Communist mobs in Berlin.

3. Continue the talks in Berlin and/or Moscow but calling the Russians to account for the Berlin rioting and demanding that they halt it before further discussions on currency and the blockade.

Authoritative sources emphasized that the order in which those three choices were listed had no significance.

crisis. The other occurred August 20 when Russian sector police fired upon German civilians who stoned them during a black-market raid in the downtown Potsdamer Platz.

In tonight's demonstration, anti-Communists first jeered at the three Soviet soldiers who were driving by jeep to take up sentry duty. They were driving inside the British sector toward the Russian war memorial near the Reichstag. One of the Russians stood up in the jeep with a tommygun and warned the crowd to stand back.

Paving stones then began to fly at the vehicle but it reached the monument where another crowd of Germans surrounded the three soldiers. The crowd threw stones over the heads of a protective cordon of British police. One rock smashed the jeep's windshield.

The crowd then surged toward Brandenburg Gate, where an anti-Communist began climbing up the huge memorial to tear down a Communist flag flying there. The American reporter said a second anti-Communist climbing up the gate either fell or was shot down.

There was a scuffle. American correspondent witnesses said the Russian-controlled police thereupon opened fire. At least 10 shots were heard.

The flag was pulled down amid shouts of approval from the crowd.

Another jeepload of Russian military police then drove through the gate into the British sector and fired tommyguns. Nobody was seen to fall. The crowd dispersed.

The mass meeting before the shooting was held within 50 yards of the Soviet sector. The British yesterday announced that no future German political demonstrations would be permitted within a half-mile-wide belt along the Soviet border, but that the ban did not apply to the meeting already arranged for today.

The demonstrators came in trucks from all three western sectors, and booed every mention of Maj. Gen. Alexander Kotikov, the Soviet commander.

They repeatedly shouted "Pfui on communism" and "Back to Moscow with the Red dictatorship."

Cheers greeted Socialist Ernst Reuter, city assemblyman who would be mayor except for Russian veto. He shouted:

"We tell the Communists we will come back to the east (Russian) sector of Berlin and we will come back to the east zone of Germany.

"We will fight on against communism until the power of darkness is broken and smashed . . . we will see the day when the now blockaded trains will go from Berlin to Frankfurt and to Leipzig and to Dresden."

Some hearers shouted, "And to Moscow too."

Brig. Gen. Jean Ganeval, the French commandant, declared Kotikov was a liar whose word could not be trusted.

Ganeval's statement was made in connection with his charge that the Russian commandant broke his pledge of safe conduct for 19 west sector German police who were removed from the besieged City Hall yesterday under French escort and then ambushed and captured by Soviet soldiers and Communist police.

Eyewitness Tells of Menacing German Mob

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

BEFORE SHOTS WERE FIRED—This was a tense moment in Berlin yesterday near Brandenberg Gate, dividing line between Russian and British zones in the center of the city. German anti-Communists mill around a Russian jeep which has just driven through the gate into the British sector. The Germans, some 200,000 strong, are streaming home from a huge mass meeting in front of the Reichstag to protest recent Communist riots in the Soviet sector. One of the Russians stands up in the jeep with a tommy gun and orders the crowd to stand back . . . Shortly after this picture was made, the Germans stoned the jeep and its Russian soldiers. The Russians opened fire. (Photo radioed last night from Berlin.)

By Henry Burroughs
Associated Press Photographer

Berlin, Sept. 9 (AP).—I was standing near the Reichstag building taking pictures of the great German throng streaming home from their anti-Communist meeting today when I heard a great shout.

I moved closer to see what was the trouble. The crowd was closing in on a Russian jeep carrying three Soviet soldiers. The crowd was booing them as the jeep moved slowly through the massed humanity.

The jeep stopped and suddenly the crowd began throwing stones at the Russians. The soldiers jumped out of the jeep brandishing tommyguns. Those nearest them moved back. The soldiers got back into the jeep and it moved ahead toward the Soviet memorial in the British sector. The crowd taunted them.

When the jeep reached the memorial, another part of the crowd surrounded it.

The Soviet soldiers left their jeep again and advanced menacingly. They held their tommyguns at the ready. The Germans faded back, but continued to boo and laugh at the angry Soviet troopers. Then someone threw another rock. It crashed through the windshield of the jeep. British soldiers rushed up and formed a protective cordon around the Red memorial.

I felt the tension rise in the crowd. They seemed utterly fearless. A few hundred yards away another great crowd of Germans was milling around the Brandenburg Gate, entrance to the Soviet sector.

I hurried over. As I approached I heard at least 10 shots. They sounded like pistol shots.

The crowd around the gate was running pell-mell into the British sector. High up on the bomb-scarred Brandenburg Gate I saw a man making his way to the big Red flag which flies there. He got near the flag and two shots were heard. The man on the monument kept moving. He flung the flag to the ground. As it fluttered down a great cheer arose from the crowd. Then a Russian jeep whirled up and five Soviet tommy-gunners jumped out. This time they didn't just brandish their guns. They used them.

The Russians fired once. I think the shots must have been high for, as we scattered, I saw no one fall.

The Germans broke up and ran in panic. The tommygunners swung toward another group. Methodically and grimly they drove the crowd away from the gate. Behind the Russians were uniformed Soviet sector policemen.

British soldiers came up the border of their sector and helped disperse the crowd.

Export License Rule Curbed

An official of the Office of International Trade said yesterday its export license procedures had been tightened after a Senate committee was told of laxness in the past.

Witnesses before a subcommittee of the Senat Executive Expenditures Committee described how badly needed nails were exported as "shoe tacks," permits to export two million pounds of lard were issued against a 199,000-pound quota, and a perforating machine was continued in use after it was known to have been forged.

Chairman Ferguson (R., Mich.) said "it is impossible to tell what went out of this country under the export system."

Here's how to make perfect coffee

"Now that's what I call good coffee!"

If you haven't heard this said about your coffee, you've missed one of the nicest compliments that could be paid you.

Why deny yourself this praise? You can acquire the art of making good coffee in no time at all. Here's how . . .

What about your coffee-maker?

FIRST—the condition of your coffee-maker is very important. A coffee-maker that is old or worn out, or difficult to clean, will not produce a fine cup of coffee. So take a good look at your coffee-maker. If you can't make it scrupulously clean, and odorless, you should get a new one.

SECOND—how do you clean your coffee-maker? If you just give it a quick hot water rinse after using, it is not enough. Here's why—a quick rinse will not remove the coffee oils that have a tendency to cling to the inside of a coffee-maker. If they aren't removed, they'll become stale, and eventually impart an undesirable taste to the coffee brew. So wash the coffee-maker thoroughly with hot soapy water after using. Then scald, and set it out "to air." A coffee-maker that has not been used for some time should be thoroughly washed before using.

Keep the coffeepot "sweet" by a more thorough cleansing at least twice a month. If coffee-maker is porcelain, enamelware, or glass, put all parts of the utensil in a large kettle and boil for a few minutes in a solution of about a tablespoon of washing or baking soda and a tablespoon of ammonia to each quart of water. If a large kettle is not available, fill coffee-maker up to the spout with the cleaning solution, place on stove, and boil. If the coffee-maker is a type that will not stand direct heat, just let it soak in the hot cleaning solution in the dishpan. With aluminum coffee-makers, polish the inside with steel wool and boil in a solution of vinegar and water (about ¼ cup vinegar to 1 quart water). Coffee-makers with built-in electric units should never be immersed in water.

Measure—don't guess

Do you measure the coffee and the water? It's very important to do this, because if you are not careful you may get too strong coffee one time and weak coffee another time. For each 6-oz. cup of water, we recommend 2 level tablespoons of coffee. This is the same amount as 1 heaping tablespoon but is a far more accurate way to measure. By using a measuring cup, you may vary the water—more or less—to obtain the strength that suits you best. Measure this way and your coffee will be the same every time.

Time coffee-making carefully

Coffee should be in contact with water for a definite length of time, depending on the type and capacity of the coffee-maker, as well as the strength of beverage desired. After the correct timing has been determined, stick to it; otherwise results will not be uniform.

Look before you buy

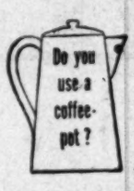
Hills Bros. Coffee comes in 2 GRINDS: (1) "Regular Grind"—suitable for any method of coffee-making if directions on the label are followed. (2) "Drip and Glass-Maker Grind"—if you prefer a finer grind for a Drip-Pot or Vacuum-Type Maker (not recommended for Percolator or Coffeepot). When you decide which gives results that please you most with your method of coffee-making, we advise against switching back and forth, as you are likely to notice some variation in taste and will suspect something wrong with the coffee.

The final answer

Hills Bros. Coffee is a blend of the world's finest coffees. Uniform flavor is developed by Controlled Roasting—an exclusive Hills Bros. process that roasts coffee "a little at a time" . . . continuously and evenly. Vacuum-packing brings it to you fresh.

The final step in "perfect coffee manufacturing" is in your hands—when you brew the beverage. If you follow these directions with Hills Bros. Coffee, you'll always have perfect aroma, flavor, and strength—delightful coffee that will make everyone say—"Now that's what I call good coffee!"

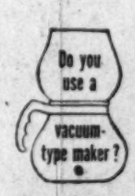
What kind of coffee-maker do you use?



"Regular Grind" Hills Bros. Coffee is best for coffeepot or saucepan. Measure in the required amount of coffee and add the measured amount of cold, hot, or boiling water. Place on heat, stir well and just bring to a boil. Stir again, remove from fire, and add a dash of cold water to settle the grounds.

Steeping method. Preheat pot by rinsing with hot water. Pour boiling water on coffee. Stir well. Stir again in 5 minutes. Steep 5 to 10 minutes more. Place pot on part of stove where coffee will keep hot but not boil.

"Regular Grind" Hills Bros. Coffee is recommended. Start with cold or hot water. Percolate gently 7 to 10 minutes after steady "perking" begins. Insufficient percolation results in a weak, thin beverage, while over-percolating produces a "cooked" or "stewed" taste and unsatisfactory flavor. Experiment to determine the exact "perking" time that gives best results in your percolator, then be careful to "perk" for the same period every time the coffee is made. Otherwise the coffee will taste one way at one meal and different at another.



Use either grind. Bring water in lower bowl to boiling. Reduce heat (if electric, turn off, but leave bowl on unit). Then place upper bowl containing filter and ground coffee on lower bowl. When the water has risen into upper bowl, stir thoroughly (about 30 seconds).

In approximately 3 minutes (5 minutes if "Regular Grind" is used) remove completely from heat so coffee brew will return to lower bowl. Remove upper bowl and serve. (For best results always operate Vacuum Coffee-Makers at not less than two-thirds capacity.)

Use either grind. Preheat pot by rinsing with hot water. Measure coffee into filter section. Then measure fresh, briskly boiling water into upper container. If less than ⅗ capacity is made, the water may drip too fast, giving weak brew. When dripping is completed, remove upper section. Stir brew and serve.

Never boil nor overheat coffee. This drives off the aromatic substances from the coffee and is detrimental to the quality of the beverage. You'll be disappointed, too, if you let coffee cool and then reheat it.

LOOK BEFORE YOU BUY

Hills Bros. Coffee comes in 2 GRINDS: These are:

1 Regular Grind 2 Drip and Glass-Maker Grind (With Yellow Band)

The type of grind is printed at the top of the label on the Hills Bros. Coffee can.

"Regular Grind" for any method of coffee-making. Do not use "Drip and Glass-Maker Grind" for percolator or coffeepot.

Soviet Shows Air Might Over Europe

By Wes Gallagher

Berlin, Sept. 9 (AP).—Soviet planes prowled the skies of northern Europe today and Soviet ships cruised in the Baltic off Denmark in the greatest show of Russian strength since the end of the war.

There was little doubt in military minds here that the Soviet activity was a carefully planned military show designed to impress Europe with Soviet armed might in view of the east-west crisis in Berlin.

The moves also were apparently designed to take some of the edge off the Anglo-American airlift to Berlin and the impressive joint British-American air maneuvers over Britain in the last week.

Criss-Cross Over Berlin

Coupled with Anglo-American Army maneuvers at Grafenwohl, the picture reminded many of the Europe armed camp of 1938 and 1939. At Grafenwohl, in the American zone of Germany, a defensive force is practicing warding off a superior "aggressor" force attacking from the east.

The usual Soviet practice is to cloak their armed forces with the greatest secrecy. Today, however, high-flying Soviet fighters criss-crossed over Berlin, leaving vapor trails in the sky. Some Germans, mindful of the trails left by thousands of American bombers during the war, took it as an omen.

Another estimated 60 Russian planes appeared over the Danish Island of Bornholm between 8 a. m. and noon. They flew low over Roenne, the island's main city, one as low as 700 feet. Another plane circled a Danish naval vessel at a height of about 75 yards.

Danes Sight Red Warships

Danish naval authorities said seeveral Soviet cruisers and destroyers appeared off the island just outside territorial waters.

Bornholm, "The Pearl of the Baltic," was occupied by Russia from May 7, 1945, to April 5, 1946. There are no soldiers on Bornholm now, the Danish garrison of about 1500 men having been sent back to Copenhagen last week. The new garrison will not arrive for some time.

The island population was somewhat jittery as news of the Russian naval movements became known. However, there was no nervousness in Danish military and naval circles, which regarded the movements as part of announced large-scale Soviet maneuvers.

Reds Give Advance Notice

The Russians gave advance notice in Berlin of their aerial manneuvers. It is estimated by Allied sources that the Russians could put up from 3000 to 4000 planes over northern Europe if they wanted to. There was no indication how many were airborne today over Berlin, Denmark, in the Berlin airlift corridors or elsewhere.

MAJ. GEN. ALEXANDER KOTIKOV, blockade was over—that we would not negotiate under duress," Mr. Truman declared that the blockade is not duress.

It is attempted duress, he added. The action of certain civilians and Russian Berlin policemen is outside of these negotiations, he said.

Cost of Airlift to MATS

In another phase of the critical Berlin situation, the Nation was told that the Military Air Transport Service had made 20,179 flights into the blockaded city, carrying 134,401 tons of food and coal.

The cost of the operation is estimated at $13,626,900.

Maj. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, MATS commander, told a news conference that the amount covered the period from July 23, when MATS was called upon to aid in the airlift to Berlin, through Wednesday.

Asked if the air lift can be increased still more, Kuter replied:

"The answer is yes." he added:

"It is too soon to attempt to draw or to present ultimate conclusions as to the success of operation 'vittles' and it is probably also too soon for any authorities accurately to evaluate the impact of this effort on troubled world politics.

"Of one thing we feel sure. There no longer is any doubt of the ability of Strategic Air Transport to mobilize quickly and efficiently and apply to force of its power anywhere and under any conditions."

Marxists Run Last in British Union Election

Margate, England, Sept. 9 (AP).—The annual Trades Union Congress defeated two office-seeking Communist labor leaders today. The general council of the congress also rejected a resolution proposing a new British-American-Soviet conference to restore wartime unity.

The TUC represents about eight million organized British workers.

Arthur Horner, Communist secretary general of the National Union of Mineworkers, ran last in a field of five candidates for three seats allotted to the union on the executive committee of the congress.

W. C. Stevens, of the Electrical Trades Union, another Communist, finished last among seven candidates for the Engineering, Foundry and Vehicle Building Union's three seats on the executive committee.

The general council substituted a statement offered to the conference suggesting the three-power meeting. The substitute said the "congress is profoundly disquieted" by current divisions among the four occupying powers of Germany, and urged "all governments to cooperate to the utmost of their power for the realization of the common aim of all peoples in the establishment of a just and enduring peace."

The conference approved by a large majority the Labor government's policy of holding the line on wages and prices. Some unions have been agitating for wage increases.

pansion of aircraft production. Congress had appropriated 822 millions more for air power than Administration chiefs felt advisable.

July Contracts Adjusted

It was stated then that military appropriations would be reviewed in September and again in December before additional money would be released. As the result of an adjustment of the plane procurement contracts placed in July, 200 million dollars is now available for additional orders whenever the White House gives the go signal. Of this sum, Forrestal now has recommended release of 103 millions and has Air Force proposals for spending the remaining 97 millions under study.

Officials understood that approximately 40 million dollars of the latter sum was asked for a production order of Boeing XB-47s. Two experimental models of this "hot" new bomber have been built and have proved very successful in tests.

The craft have swept-back wings which increase their speed, six jet engines, and rocket-boosters in the tail.

Boeing Contract Ready

An Air Force spokesman said last night that negotiations are under way now with the Boeing Co. to place the B-47 into production, and that signing of the contract is dependent upon allocation of funds.

Other craft which the Air Force wants to build with the remaining money in the 1948-49 appropriations are some helicopters, trainers and some "bush" type transports, like the three-engined Northrop Pioneer. The latter is designed to land on short, undeveloped runways.

The decision of the Air Force to build no more normal-type cargo transports will come as a disappointment to those who hold that the Air Force program is "unbalanced." They point out that in fiscal 1947-48, only 27 Boeing C-97s and 10 Lockheed C-121 Constellations were ordered. Ten Northrop Pioneers also were bought.

What's the best way to color margarine?

RIGHT IN THE CHURN IT'S MADE IN!*
But until the law lets us have it, the best home way is by NUCOA'S "Bowl Mix"!
RIGHT! Here's why...
1. NUCOA'S "BOWL MIX" protects fine FLAVOR and TEXTURE.
We tolerate no short cuts on quality in the making of Nucoa. Why should you tolerate them in coloring it? Nucoa is churned, chilled, made into pounds and triple-wrapped so that it comes to you with the finest churn-fresh flavor and texture any spread can have. It is not melted and poured into a trick coloring package, because we know you would not like the flavor and texture of delicious Nucoa impaired this way.
2. NUCOA'S "BOWL MIX" is as QUICK as any way—and MORE APPETIZING.
Let Nucoa stand at room temperature until it is soft (not soupy—but soft enough for quick sandwich spreading). Remove it from package to a large bowl and with a large fork or spoon, cream in the color from the pure color wafer. Takes less than a minute and a half! No other method is quicker; no other method so well protects the texture.
3. NUCOA'S "BOWL MIX" gives you the BEST MARGARINE—at LESS COST.
When you buy margarine in a trick coloring package, you pay extra for the package! When you buy Nucoa, you buy its finer flavor; year-round, churn-fresh goodness; rich food energy and dependable Vitamin A. You get the margarine you're proudest to put on your table—actually cheaper!
* Obtainable yellow (where not prohibited by state law) at higher cost, to cover high Federal taxes and license fees.

Powers Ask Delay In Colony Parley

London, Sept. 9 (NYHT).—The three western powers suggested to Russia tonight that the four-power Council of Foreign Ministers meet at Paris Monday—instead of Friday as Russia proposed yesterday—to discuss the split over the future of Italy's African colonies.

British officials said it was certain, however, that the Foreign Ministers themselves would not attend the meeting. The conference is regarded merely as a formality to meet the demands of the Soviet Union before the whole problem is placed before the United Nations Assembly, which convenes at Paris September 21.

The three-power decision to suggest Monday as the date for the conference was reached at a meeting at the Foreign Office this morning. The meeting was attended by Sir Noel Charles, former British Ambassador to Italy; Rene Massigli, French Ambassador at the Court of St. James's, and John Utter, representing Lewis W. Douglas, American Ambassador here.

(In Washington, Secretary of State Marshall, in a memo to the Soviet Embassy, said the United States was "wholly agreeable" to the Paris meeting. But he said the American delegation could not be briefed and dispatched in time to get to Paris Friday.

(President Truman backed up Marshall's statement that bipartisan agreement has been reached on the attitude the United States will take on the knotty problem of Italy's three former African colonies, Eritrea, Libia and Italian Somaliland.

(The President said Marshall was definite and correct, but he declined to elaborate. When a reporter asked whether this meant the Administration has taken the same line advocated by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential nominee, Mr. Truman said he had nothing more to say.

Maas Asks U. S. Policy Based on Law

A fixed United States foreign policy based on statutes enacted by Congress was urged yesterday by Col. Melvin J. Maas, former Minnesota Representative.

Maas told the Military Order of the World Wars, meeting at the Mayflower Hotel, that if United States foreign policy "is to contain communism, the law ought to say so and say how far we are willing to go."

"To prevent a third World War," he declared, "we must have a fixed foreign policy, the means to support it and the will to support it. And the world must know we are willing to support it."

The United States, Maas, said, has no military policy and never did have one and "can't under present conditions because we have no foreign policy." The framers of the Constitution, he said, left foreign policy in the hands of the President because in their time "the theory of foreign affairs was that kings dealt with kings."

The result of that mode of thinking, he declared, was that United States now "makes foreign policy from day to day and differently for different countries." The nations of Europe, he said, "can't be sure today's policy will exist tomorrow" with the result that the small European nations feel "it is better to be a junior partner of Russia than her slave when we abandon them."

Maas, a colonel of Marine Corps reserve aviation, said the "most astonishing fact in history" was that the United States "which twice saved the world" failed to make peace secure. After World War I, he said, "we turned the peace over to the defeated victors. They botched it; they even laid the foundation for World War II at the peace conference."

"Great Britain, Russia and France were again defeated in World War II, he said, "when we saved them again. And in less than two years we were letting ourselves be bullied by a nation which had been defeated and had been saved only by us."

The United States emerged from both wars, Maas said, "the most powerful nation on earth" in military and industrial strength. This strength, he declared, was abandoned after both conflicts.

India Warned Of Hyderabad 'Blood Bath'

Karachi, Sept. 9 (AP).—Pakistan's Foreign Minister warned today that an Indian "might-is-right" policy in Hyderabad would plunge the subcontinent into a communal blood-bath.

Sir Mohammed Zafrullah Khan told newsmen India is threatening the big princely state with open aggression without taking stock of consequences. Completely surrounded by India, Hyderabad is ruled by a Moslem but has a predominant Hindu population. India is demanding its accession.

"They (India) must foresee," Zafrullah Khan said, "that carrying a threat to Hyderabad is bound to plunge their country into a communal blood-bath which would spread wider and would have worse consequences than occurred in the east Punjab last year."

(Hundreds of thousands died in Punjab riots incident to the partitioning of old British India into Hindu India and Moslem Pakistan.)

U. S. to Evacuate Nationals by Air

New Delhi, Sept. 9 (AP).—The United States Embassy said today aerial evacuation of American and British Commonwealth nationals from Hyderabad would start in a few days. About 40 Americns and 300 British are in the troubled area.

The embassy said the step was being taken "in view of the latest developments regarding Hyderabad."

After nearly 44 years' Government service, William Hannold Cheesman, technical editor of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Soils and Agricultural Engineering, Agriculture Department, will retire today.

Cheesman

He became associated with the bureau in 1942 after 29 years as editor-in-chief of the Bureau of Biological Survey of the Agriculture Department, and its successor organization, the Fish and Wildlife Service of the Interior Department.

Cheesman, a native of Elmer, N. J., was graduated from Dickinson College in 1904, going to work for the Civil Service Commission a year later.

Deal on Berlin Entry Denied by Hopkins

The final installment of "The Secret Papers of Harry L. Hopkins" in Collier's, out yesterday, asserts there was no secret agreement to permit the Russians to enter Berlin first.

Hopkins' notes say: "It is equally untrue that General Bradley paused on the Elbe River at the request of the Russians so the Russians could break through to Berlin first.

"Bradley did get a division out toward Potsdam, but it far outreached itself; supplies were totally inadequate and anyone who knows anything knows we would have taken Berlin had we been able to do so."

In Moscow, when Hopkins was sent there by President Truman in May, 1945, Hopkins warned Stalin that United States-USSR cooperation on the Roosevelt model couldn't continue if American public opinion continued to deteriorate because of the manner in which the Soviets were making decisions in their zone without reference to the other major powers.

This brought out complaints by Stalin against western actions.

Stalin thought the American attitude toward the Soviets had cooled now that the Russians "were no longer needed" to fight the Germans.

Hopkins' notes record Stalin objected to the "brutal" and "scornful" manner in which lend-lease had been ended. He said, however, he quite understood the American move to close down the aid.

He also agreed to back Chiang Kai-shek as the Chinese leader because he felt "no Chinese Communist leader was strong enough to unify the country."

Baby Born 15 Minutes After Death of Mother

Salem, Ohio, Sept. 9 (AP).—Two doctors who didn't even take time to put on aprons or rubber gloves were credited today with saving the life of a baby girl by Caesarean section 15 minutes after the death of the mother.

Drs. L. C. Ziegler and Paul Corso took over the job of saving the baby while the attending physician, Dr. W. S. Elliott of East Palestine, tried futilely to save the mother, Mrs. Florence McRoberts, 45, of Enon Valley, Pa. She died Tuesday of a heart artery failure.

Scandinavia Plans Military Cooperation

Stockholm, Sept. 9 (AP).—An important step toward military cooperation for the joint defense of Norway, Sweden and Denmark was agreed upon by their foreign ministers today.

After a two-day conference, the three agreed that instructions should be given to their top military men to investigate how military cooperation could be brought about.

Hoffman Says ERP Stopped Reds in Europe

Paul G. Hoffman said yesterday Italy and France "would have been in the hands of the Communists six months ago if it had not been for the hope of the Marshall Plan."

"If that had happened, all of western Europe would have been imperiled," Hoffman added. "The reality of the Marshall Plan has removed that peril."

Hoffman, chief of the foreign aid program that sprung from a proposal by Secretary of State Marshall, spoke at a meeting called by Secretary of Commerce Sawyer to increase the flow of scrapiron to steel mills. The ECA administrator said scrap must be provided because "steel is the key commodity in a modern economy."

"If an enduring peace is to be won," Hoffman said, "reasonable prosperity must be maintained in the United States and reasonable recovery achieved in Europe.

"A depression here or a failure of recovery abroad would set in motion forces which would play directly into the hands of Russia."

Recalling a comment by John Foster Dulles, foreign aid adviser to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, GOP presidential candidate, that Russia wants not war, but peace—but chaos and confusion — Hoffman said: "Depression invites both."

Hoffman said scrap must be raised here because Europe—principally Germany—can furnish no more than one million tons at the most of a United States need for 30 million tons of scrap a year.

Sawyer told the audience of 200 officials of industrial trade associations that scrap metal is "our chief strategic raw material."

The scrap drive was supported by Undersecretary of the Army William H. Draper, jr., and Chairman Thomas J. Hargrave of the Munitions Board.

Hargrave said the United States probably will have $1,300,000,000 of the $3,400,000,000 goal stock pile of strategic materials by the end of 1948.

Europe Financing Criticized by Gutt

Unbalanced budgets and overliberal credit policies in some European countries are still a threat to European recovery, Camille Gutt, Director of the International Monetary Fund, said yesterday.

Gutt

Gutt returned recently from a six-weeks' visit to France, Britain, Italy, Belgium and the Netherlands.

The pressure of inflation is not so great as it was a year ago, Gutt said, but it is still serious in certain countries which he did not name. "Europe will have to watch its fiscal and credit policies," he said.

Gutt found great improvement in industrial and farm output in every country he visited. Italy, he said, was the only one in which factory production was still below prewar levels.

He said the combined effect of increased production and American aid could be seen in a higher level of consumption and investment.

"The standard of living is better than at any time since the war," he reported.

He also found it encouraging that the five countries he visited were investing twice as much in plant equipment as they did before the war.

He reported that Marshall Plan aid had met Europe's immediate dollar crisis, but that Europe needed to pay more attention to selling its goods in the Western Hemisphere at prices low enough to attract buyers.

Yugoslav Invaders Routed, Greeks Say

Athens, Sept. 9 (AP).—War Minister George Stratos said tonight a group of Yugoslav troops had invaded Greece and had been thrown out. He appealed for international help to prevent a general war in the Balkans.

Stratos said the invasion came yesterday in the Kaimatchlan area.

(In Belgrade Yugoslav officials were silent on the reports.)

The War Minister charged Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria with repeated border violations and cautioned that the Allies and the United Nations should act before an incident touches off general fighting.

He said Greece would consider accepting an international military force to seal the 500 miles of Greece's borders with her three neighbors.

Stratos said the Yugoslavs captured one peak from the Greeks in thrusting across the frontier. Greek forces counter-attacked and regained the summit. The War Minister said eight Yugoslav soldiers and one officer were left dead in Greece by the retreating forces and three Yugoslav soldiers were captured.

Stratos said that there had been repeated incidents of gunfire against Greek troops from inside Albania and continued assistance by Yugoslavia and Bulgaria to the Greek guerillas.

The War Minister said these acts "are provocations on the part of neighboring states of the eastern block."

He said the Greek government had decided not to violate international law but was appealing to the United Nations and the Allies to end the situation. The general staff ordered Greek troops not to enter Yugoslavia or let shells fall on Yugoslav territory.

Greek Plane Bombed Town, Albania Says

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 9 (U.P.).—The official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported from Tirana today that Albania had charged Greece with bombing Albanian territory in violation of international law and the United Nations Charter.

According to Albania, a three-engined Greek plane dropped 12 bombs near the village of Koshovitze September 6, wounding three persons and damaging three houses.

Tanjung said a telegram of protest had been sent to U.N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie.

Douglas Sees Bevin

London, Sept. 9 (AP).—U. S. Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas talked for an hour tonight with British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin. The subject of the talk was not disclosed.

Nations Agree On Division Of ERP Aid

Paris, Sept. 9 (AP).—Representatives of the bizone of Germany and other western European nations were reported to have reached an agreement today on the division of American aid for the first year of the European Recovery Program (ERP).

A compromise on the amount of United States funds to be given to Bizonia was drafted during the day by Bizonal Delegate Lawrence Wilkinson and delegates from the leading members of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation (OEEC) in a series of small closed meetings.

The exact terms of the compromise could not be learned immediately.

The settlement, if ratified, would end one of the most serious points in dispute among the 18 members of tho OEEC.

OEEC scheduled a session of its general council for Friday, when the compromise proposal will be submitted to the entire membership.

Poles Stage Farm Sellout Scramble

Warsaw, Sept. 9 (AP).—Peasants throughout Poland were carting their produce into towns and selling their horses and cattle today in a scramble to beat the Communist drive to socialize their farms.

The peasants were turning their hoarded foodstuffs into cash as quickly as possible and seeking to exchange the Polish zlotys into American dollars. Black market speculators were offering more than double the official exchange rate of 400 zlotys a dollar in attempts to get hold of all available American currency.

Instances were reported of cows valued at 80,000 zlotys being sold for 30,000.

A wide section of the Polish peasantry has been avoiding selling its produce through government cooperatives at fixed prices, the program that the Communists now propose to put into effect as speedily as possible.

The assurances of top-ranking Communists that the plan for collectivizing the countryside economy would be a gradual process failed to allay fears of the peasants, however.

Reports from the Lublin, Czestochowa, Warsaw and Upper Silesia districts that some Communists were leading peasants in tearing down the fences around the larger farmsteads and wrecking the tractors of the richer farmers accentuated these fears.

Meanwhile, the Ministry of Agriculture announced the handing of $3,625,000 in credits for autumn sowings to small and medium farmers. So-called "rural capitalists" will have to shift for themselves. They also are barred from holding jobs in cooperatives. They were warned their taxes will be higher than will those of small and medium farmers, and that they must pay higher prices for farm fertilizers and supplies.

At Wielun, northwest of Czestochowa, near where Communists have announced they were setting up a model cooperative, 11 members of the Communist Party were reported killed by an underground band.

The autumn conference of Polish Catholic bishops at Czestochowa was postponed from today until the end of the month upon the news of the arrest of another prominent Catholic editor.

An authoritative source said security police seized the Rev. Roman Mielinski, chief editor of the Catholic newspaper Glos Katolicki, published at Poznan. The charges were not disclosed.

Msgr. Zygmunt Kaczynski, chief press spokesman for the Catholic hierarchy in Poland, is still under surveillance by security police, although released from jail last week after being arrested for alleged anti-state activities. His newspaper, Tygodnik Warszawski, in Warsaw is still closed and its files are being searched.

The editor of Tygodnik Powszechny at Krakow also has been imprisoned.

Stalin Considered Talk Of Soviet Poland Stupid

Talk of an intention to Sovietize Poland was stupid—so at least said Marshal Stalin of Russia during his conference with the late Harry Hopkins in May, 1945, according to the Hopkins Secret Papers as reported in a Collier's magazine article today.

The Marshal also was quoted as saying that Polish leaders, including those who were Communists, were opposed to the Soviet system, since the Polish people did not desire collective farms or other aspects of the Soviet system. He said he was in accord with this view because the Soviet system was not exportable and must develop from within.

Stalin repeatedly agreed with Hopkins that a strong, democratic Poland was desirable, the article said. The only stipulation was that the government must be friendly to Russia.

Postoffice's Red Feather Man

JESSE M. DONALDSON, the Postmaster General, will head volunteer solicitors in the Postoffice Department during the forthcoming Red Feather Campaign. The drive, opening next month, is for more than $4,500,000 to continue operations of the Community Chest

Czechs Step Up Sokol Purge

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 9 (U.P.).—The government today stepped up "conspiracy" trials and its purge of the anti-Communist Sokol Gymnastic Society.

As 25 policemen and 4 high-ranking army officers appeared before two separate courts, the government-controlled press credited armed factory workers and the Communist Party with preventing "foreign-ordered" demonstrations yesterday at Dr. Eduard Benes' funeral.

Former President Benes will be buried at his country home Friday, official sources said.

An editorial distributed by the official news agency and prominently displayed in Prague papers said "provocative action" centered in the Sokol.

Most foreign observers agreed that yesterday's display of force by factory workers and police was intended to warn against future anti-Communist moves rather than squelch any "plot."

Trials in Prague were connected with the Communist coup in February. Four army officers went before the opening fall session of the supreme military court on charges of conspiring to occupy the Prague radio station during the days the Communists seized power.

Twenty-five policemen entered the third day of their trial on charges of working with the "espionage office" of the National Socialist Party—second largest in Czechoslovakia at the time of the coup.

Reports from Ostrava said the state prosecutor has demanded a new trial for five Ostrava Sokol officials given light sentences or acquitted last month in connection with an antiregime letter circulated to all Sokol organizations.

Pope Hits 'Blind' Propaganda

Castel Gondolfo, Italy, Sept. 9 (AP).—Pope Pius XII today called for an end to regional propaganda which blindly serves the "egoisms of parties or nations" without regard to truth.

The Pontiff told an international gathering of legislators that "truth, justice and peace" should be their great concerns. The audience for delegates to the thirty-seventh conference of the International Parliamentary Union was held at the Pope's summer residence.

His remarks on propaganda touched on one of the most controversial issues of the conference, being held in Rome. Yesterday's session bogged down in an attempt to approve a resolution on propaganda acceptable to the Western powers—supporting freedom of the press—and Soviet allied nations—demanding control of "war-mongering" propaganda. Debate resumes tomorrow.

The Pope later received in private audience Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, Democratic Vice Presidential candidate. Barkley said the Pontiff gave him a personal message of good will and friendship for President Truman.

In private conversation with a group from the 16-man United States delegation, the Pope expressed "sincere appreciation for what the United States has done for humanity and the world," Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) reported.

Lane Sees Truman Winner

Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland said here last night that political sentiment in his State indicates a victory for President Truman in November.

"Maryland has voted on the side of every winning presidential candidate since the Civil War," Lane said. "I am convinced Maryland is going for Truman and Barkley this fall."

Sparking the kickoff campaign rally of District Democrats at local Central Committee headquarters, 1336 New York ave. nw., Lane lambasted Republican presidential candidate Thomas E. Dewey and praised President Truman.

"If only the personality and character of Harry Truman can be sold to the American people," said the Governor, "there would be no question of his victory in November."

Skits at the rally, driven indoors by rain, lampooned Republicans as "promising everything but doing nothing except for special interests." Democrats were characterized as "crusaders for the common man."

Other speakers on the program sponsored by the District Truman-Barkley Club and Young Democrats Association included: Melvin Hildreth, District Democratic national committeeman; Harold Boisvert, president of the Young Democrats here; A. L. Wheeler, chairman of the District Democratic Central committee; and Melburn Mayock, national secretary-treasurer of the Truman-Barkley clubs.

Duke Plane Crashes

Teterboro, N. J., Sept. 9 (AP).—A converted B-25 bomber plane owned by Doris Duke Rubirosa, tobacco heiress, was demolished today in a crash landing at Teterboro Airport. No one was hurt.

Reds Reported Getting Uranium From Czechs

Stockholm, Sept. 9 (AP).—Mirko Sedlak, who fled Czechoslovakia after the Communist coup, was quoted today as saying 30 railway cars of uranium ore are leaving his country every day for Russia.

Sedlak was a member of Parliament before the February seizure of power by the Czechoslovak Communists. He said "Czechoslovakia's large uranium mine districts are now under direct surveillance of units from the Red army."

Probe Promised For Better Jobs On Postal Bribes

By the United Press

A congressional investigation was promised yesterday into complaints that some postal workers have paid supervisors up to $500 to get better jobs.

A spokesman for the House Civil Service Committee said one of the complaints came from the Civil Service Reform League of New York and involved postoffices in New York City.

Thus far, he said, the committee has no way of knowing whether there is any truth to the complaints.

"But we expect to find out, as soon as we can get around to them," he said.

Dunning for Wallace Laid to Fur Union

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

New York fur workers are being driven by fear to contribute to Henry A. Wallace's Presidential campaign and to Communist newspapers, a House subcommittee was told yesterday.

At the same time a Senate Executive Expenditures subcommittee slugged out another round in its fight to pry Government employe loyalty records from the Executive Department. After a three-hour conference neither Chairman Ferguson (R., Mich.) of the subcommittee nor Attorney General Clark would say what the outcome had been.

Testimony that cash for Communist publications and the Progressive Party was being squeezed from fur workers was given to a House Labor subcommittee by two witnesses. They were Morris Goldner, president of the Independent Fur Manufacturers Association, and William Pike, labor relations director for the Associated Fur Manufacturers Association.

They told the subcommittee, headed by Representative Schwabe (R., Mo.), that shop chairmen and business agents of the Fur Workers Union were directed Wednesday to begin collections from members for the Wallace campaign. Collections for Communist newspapers, they added, were standard procedure during every drive for money.

Goldner said requests for contributions were enforced by intimidation. He remarked that "the workers live in fear."

Earlier Pike had testified that union officers openly solicited funds for the Communist Party's Daily Worker and for Freiheit. The latter, he said, was a Jewish language newspaper under Communist sponsorship.

Four other witnesses yesterday were Sol Rosenberg, president of the Associated Fur Manufacturers; Joseph J. Bernstein, attorney for fur liners and finishers; Paul Vort, president of the Fur Dressers and Dyers Association; and George Greenberg, executive manager of the Associated Fur Manufacturers.

Greenberg and Rosenberg agreed that the union was more interested in promoting labor strife than in working for peace in labor relations. Bernstein said the union had forced out of business all but 75 of some 200 New ork City contractors and accused it of "racketcering." Vort upheld previous testimony of Communist infiltration of the fur union.

To Call Gold and Potash

Next week the subcommittee, which is investigating Communist infiltration into the fur workers, will call in Ben Gold, president of the union and an active Communist Party worker, and Irving Potash, head of the Furriers Joint Council. Potash is among 12 persons recently indicted in New York as Communists.

Ferguson's Senate subcommittee's round with Clark, begun at 9 a. m., continued behind closed doors for three hours. When it ended, Clark ducked out of a rear door and Ferguson met reporters with the announcement:

"I have sad news for you, gentlemen. No comment."

Before the meeting he had said optimistically: "I think we can work this out to everybody's satisfaction."

Members of his subcommittee, Senators Bricker (R. Ohio), and O'Conor (D., Md.), joined him in his silence when it was over. It was suspected that, whatever grounds for agreement might have been reached, Clark would have to consult with President Truman before any announcement would be made.

Refusal of Executive agencies to turn information on employes over to Congress has been based on a directive by Mr. Truman. The situation came to a head when Ferguson's subcommittee, investigating continued employment of William W. Remington as a Commerce Department economist after he had been investigated by the FBI, was refused information it wanted concerning him.

Remington's name was brought before the subcommittee by Elizabeth T. Bentley, admitted former Communist courier, who said he passed wartime secrets to her prior to 1944. Remington, since suspended from his job, admitted giving Miss Bentley information but said he thought she was a reporter.

A third congressional subcommittee, this one from the Committee on House Un-American Activities, met behind closed doors for the second day to continue its long probe of alleged subversives in the United States. While its chairman, Representative Thomas (R., N. J.), declined to reveal details of the secret hearings or names of witnesses, he told reporters:

"We are now getting into the field of atomic espionage."

Representative McDowell (R., Pa.), a committee member, said Maj. Gen. Leslie Groves, retired wartime head of the Army's Manhattan District atomic bomb project, would be a witness. Also to be heard is Dr. Martin D. Kamen, a Washington University of St. Louis chemistry professor, who says he was fired from the project during the war for "indiscretion."

Steve Nelson, western Pennsylvania Communist leader, who also has been subpenaed to appear before the committee, obtained postponement yesterday because his wife was ill. He was scheduled to appear yesterday afternoon but now will testify next Tuesday.

High Court Gives Mother Custody Of Daughter, 12

A former Alexandria woman yesterday regained legal custody of her 12-year-old daughter as the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals reversed an opinion of the Circuit Court of Fredericksburg on grounds of lack of jurisdiction.

The Fredericksburg court had awarded custody of the child, Alice Woolfolk, to her father, Douglas Woolfolk. This action upset a ruling of the Alexandria Corporation Court which originally granted custody to Woolfolk's former wife, Ethel.

The Fredericksburg action stemmed from agreement on the part of the child's mother, during a period of financial stress, that the father care for the girl until June, 1947. The father later was given complete custody by the Fredericksburg court.

Oct. 24 Proclaimed United Nations Day

President Truman today proclaimed October 24 as "United Nations Day."

He said the American people are firmly resolved to cooperate with other nations for "peace, freedom and justice." The President added that it is fitting that the day be observed as an expression of "our support of the United Nations."

Mr. Truman called upon Federal, State and local governments and civic organizations to hold programs on October 14

Johnston to Confer With Russian Officials

Paris, Sept. 9 (U.P.).—Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, left by plane today for Stockholm en route to Moscow.

After conferences in Stockholm and Helsinki, Finland, Johnston said he would confer with Russian officials in Moscow on the possibility of distributing American films in the Soviet Union. He said he would stay with United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith.

Fossils of Running Apes Found

Brighton, England, Sept. 9 (U.P.).—We're descended from monkeys after all, Professor W. E. Legros Clark, of Oxford University, said today, presenting what he believes is conclusive proof.

Last year he announced the so-called Sterkfontein man's fossil from Africa apparently provides the missing link between man and ape. The Sterkfontein fossil was an apeman or a manape—he had the characteristics of both.

Today Clark revealed the British Kenya Miocene expedition has found fosils of apes whose bone structure shows they were well adapted to running and jumping something the present-day gorilla, chimp and orangutan cannot do.

Clark said skeptics had argued that limbs of the human type could hardly have been derived rom anything like the modern ape. On this basis, he added, attempts had been made to exculde "the modern anthropoid apes" from any place in man's ancestry.

"The discovery of the limb bones of early Miocene apes has made it clear that this argument no longer has the same validity," Clark said.

Fire Toll Rises to 11

36,000 Removed

Alcaraz had predicted the possibility of just such an eruption.

During the first six days of the outburst by the long-dormant mountain, about 36,000 persons had been removed from the island. Five persons were killed by lava.

Then on Tuesday the flow of lava and showers of ashes declined. Further evacuations ceased. Some of the refugees actually started back to their dangerous homes.

On Wednesday, however, the activity increased and Alcaraz issued a new warning. He said a third vent had opened, south of those which had been pouring debris onto the island's northshore towns.

The towns designated in his radio plea are on the southeast, five to seven miles from the volcanic craters.

Port facilities are primitive, and most rescue work would have to be conducted by small boats.

Camp On Shores

All the population remaining on the island had been camping on the southeast shores, farther away from the course of the eruption.

The 5620-foot mountain is in almost the exact center of the island, which is 12 miles long by 8 miles wide in its greatest dimensions. Its area is 92 square miles.

Hibokhibok (in the Visayan dialect it means "great internal turbulence") had been considered extinct since it erupted 77 years ago. It had been one of the Philippines' only two sources of commercial sulphur. Its slopes were among the country's most productive farm lands.

The threat of gas recalled immediately to Philippines old timers the disastrous Taal volcano eruption near Manila, which killed more than 1300 persons with gas in 1911.

Another such case was the celebrated Martinique disaster of May 8, 1902. The entire 40,000 population of St Pierre on that French island in the West Indies was killed overnight by the gaseous eruption of Mount Pelee.

Five Injured In Two-Car Collision Here

Five persons were injured in a two-car collision early last night at the intersection of 11th st. and Pennsylvania ave. se.

Admitted to Casualty Hospital were Mrs. Fred Hopkins, 35, of Rapidan, Va., wife of the driver of one car, and her sister, Miss Elizabeth Faulconer, 30, of 1619 A st. ne.

Hospital authorities said Mrs. Hopkins suffered a possible fractured left hip, while Miss Faulconer sustained possible back injuries.

Two other passengers in the same car, Mrs. Mamie Marks, 43, of 1619 A st. ne., who sustained cuts and bruises of the right hand, and her son, Harold, 11, with a cut right ear, were treated as Casualty Hospital and released.

The fifth person injured was Cynthia L. Floyd, 27, of 4046 Grant st. ne. She was treated for bruised knees and a left foot injury and released.

Miss Edith Rager, 16, of 191 Chinquapin Village, Alexandria, was in fair condition with head injuries at Alexandria Hospital last night after the car in which she was riding overturned on Shirley Circle in Arlington.

Police said the accident occurred at 11:50 p. m. Wednesday after another auto driven by Vernon H. Warfield, 16, of 215 Commonwealth ave., Alexandria, struck it on the right rear fender.

Three other occupants of the overturned car were treated for minor injuries at Alexandria Hospital and released. They were Donald C. Lee, 19, of 2725 S. Cleveland st., Arlington, the driver; Betty Jane Nichols, 18, of 161 Chinquapin Village, and Wesley Howard, 18, of Route 2, Alexandria. Police said they understood all four occupants of Lee's car were thrown out when it overturned.

"There are two points I should like to make. The Greek minister of public order, Mr. Rendis, agreed with our criticism of the investigation.

"Secondly, as a result of our insistence, the government of Greece has been compelled to take over the direction of the police inquiry at the highest level. The minister of public order has assumed personal responsibility for the conduct of the investigation.

"Now it is up to the Greek government. This is their responsibility. This is their chance to show they can discharge it. Only they have the power to conduct a thorough-going inquiry into this crime.

"If they fail to use this power within a reasonable time, it is my opinion that it will then devolve on the United States Government to make formal representations to the government of Greece and see to it that a truly comprehensive inquiry be made."

Creative Value of Sound 'Death' Rays Tested

By N. S. Hasseltine
Post Reporter

Medical research workers are handling "what is truly a death ray" to learn curative powers of high-speed sound waves, the Nation's leaders in physical medicine were told here yesterday.

Moreover, said their authority, Dr. Julia F. Herrick, associate professor of experimental medicine at the Mayo Foundation, personnel doing groundwork near jet-propelled aircraft are exposed to some of that death-dealing force.

"One does not have to be in aircraft traveling at ultrasonic speeds to experience ultrasonic irradiations," declared the speaker.

Speaking before physiatrists assembled at the Statler Hotel in the twenty-sixth annual scientific session of the American Congress of Physical Medicine, she told of laboratory experiments with ultrasonics (sound waves beyond the range of human ear) in which animal tissues were literally "torn to pieces," and live mice were "roasted within their own fur" when placed in the path of the waves.

Airplane Pilots Threatened

She termed ultimate intensity of ultrasonic waves as "no motion, all acceleration."

Speaking of dangers to aircraft personnel, which have been rumored but consistently denied ever since the development of planes that fly faster than sound, she declared:

"Actually there is grave concern over the effects of these ultrasonics on the human. The medical profession will be confronted with patients suffering from ultrasonic irradiation."

Effects of the ultrasonics, she declared, are mechanical, thermal and chemical, and all potentially destructive if not harnessed.

German scientists, said Dr. Herrick, have reported success with ultrasonics in removing some skin cancers. In Austria, they have been reported used to locate brain tumors. At the Mayo Foundation in Rochester, Minn., the experiments are directed at malignant tumors in mice.

"Definite degenerative changes occurred in the tumors following ultrasonic irradication," she stated.

Muscle Electricity Measured

Dr. O. Leonard Huddleston, president of the congress, told of progress in development of the electromyograph, complex machine and method for measuring electric currents in human muscles. Its use for determining muscle capacity is similar to use of the electrocardiograph for the heart and the electroencephalograph for the brain.

When the machine is fully developed and its measurements calibrated, he predicted, it should be acceptable for court tests of "aching back" and other oftimes fraudulent claims in injury suits.

Dr. Huddleston, of the University of Southern California's School of Medicine, described operations of the machine. Equipment used, he said, consists of minute needle electrodes spiked to muscles to be tested. These, he continued, detect tiny electric impulses (in millionths of a volt power) which are amplified and charted by the machine.

Can Distinguish Paralysis

"We will be able," said Dr. Huddleston, "to predict which muscles affected by polio will return to normal function and which will not. We can now distinguish the type of paralysis present in other diseases and tell whether it is caused by nerve lesions, muscular diseases or just a psychic-hysteria paralysis."

Dr. John Z. Bowers, chief of the section on medicine, division on biology and medicine of the U. S. Atomic Commission, disclosed to the physicians and surgeons that "some forms of sugar" have been radioactivated. Since sugar is perhaps the chief source of energy for the body, much medical importance is attached to the discovery of a means of tracing its course to formation of that energy.

Two Awarded Gold Keys

Gold keys for distinguished contributions to the field of physical medicine were presented by the congress last night to Dr. Frank Henry Ewerhardt of St. Louis, Mo., and Dr. Richard Kovacs of New York City. The gold key awards are an annual honor of the congress.

Dr. Ewerhardt is professor emeritus of physical education and assistant professor emeritus of physical therapeutics at Washington University School of Medicine, St. Louis. Dr. Kovacs is professor of physical medicine, New York Polyclinic Medical School and Hospital, and director of physical medicine in the Department of Correction hospitals of New York State and city.

Scientists Protest Treasury 'Tactics'

Dr. Harlow Shapley, a leading American scientist, is among signers of a protest condemning "obstructive tactics" of the Treasury Department which tended to end friendly relations between American and Soviet scientists.

The protest was lodged in a letter written to editor of Science, weekly journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and published in today's issue.

Other signers were Dr. Lester C. Dunn, geneticist, who listed himself as president of the American-Soviet Science Society "until May 1946;" Dr. Alice Hamilton, physician and Leo Loeb, German-born pathologist, honorary vice presidents; and Duncan A. MacInnes, chemist, society president. Dr. Shapley listed himself as honorary president of the society.

Society Formed in 1945

The society, the letter pointed out, was formed in 1945 as successor to the Science Committee of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship. Since then, said the letter, "it has been engaged in facilitating relations between scientists in the United States and USSR."

But, protested the organization officers, funds were short and, in June, 1946, the society obtained a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation, contingent on the State Department issuing a tax-exemption certificate. Officers of the society, the letter said, "assumed" the certificate would be granted.

"In making such an assumption," the letter said, "the officers failed to reckon with the obstructive tactics by which, for two years, the Treasury Department has failed to act upon our application.

"The only reason given is contained in a letter from Mr. E. I. McLarney, Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue, dated April 28, 1947, who stated:

"'It appears from newspaper articles recently published that the Committee on Un-American Activities of the House of Representatives proposes to investigate the matter of whether your activities and those of certain of your leaders are detrimental to the interests of the United States.'"

Mentions Dr. Condon

The "newspaper articles," said society officers, concerned "the campaign waged against Dr. Edward U. Condon, Director of the Bureau of Standards, who had been a member of the executive committee" of the society.

"The society has never been on the so-called 'subversive list' of the Attorney General, and no grounds whatever exist for any suspicion concerning the motives or actions of its officers in connection with American-Soviet scientific exchange," the protest said.

Sole apparent reason for the Treasury Department's attitude, the protest said, is that the department "prefers unsubstantiated insinuations (against the American-Soviet Science Society) to solid evidences of the scientific standing of the society and its value to American science."

Dr. Shapley, a personal friend and scientific adviser to Presidential Candidate Henry A. Wallace. In his own science, astronomy, he is considered a world authority, and holds the position as director of Harvard College Observatory, at Cambridge, Mass.

AP Reporter Here Wins Science Award

By The Associated Press

Frank Carey, science reporter in the Associated Press Washington bureau, has been named winner of the $1000 George Westinghouse Science Writing Award for 1948 in the newspaper class.

Carey

The American Association for Advancement of Science (AAAS), which administers the award, also disclosed last night that Dr. Florence Moog, assistant professor of zoology at Washington University, St. Louis, won a similar award for magazine writing. Herbert Yahraes of Stamfordville, N. Y., a free-lance writer, won honorable mention in the magazine field.

Carey's award was for a series of four articles on the new drug chloromycetin which appeared in Associated Press papers July 27-30. Dr. Moog's was for an article, "The Biology of Old Age," in Scientific American's June issue.

Yahraes wrote "Static from the Stars" in the January Popular Science Monthly.

Prizes and certificates will be presented at a luncheon in Washington September 16 during the centennial meeting of the AAAS. The prizes are offered by the Westinghouse Educational Foundation, established by the Westinghouse Electric Corp. in honor of its founder. Winners are chosen by AAAS.

Carey, a native of Lowell, Mass., began his newspaper career on the Lowell Sun in 1931, having been graduated cum laude the previous year from Holy Cross College. He joined the Associated Press in Boston in 1938. He had been a premedical student at Holy Cross and began writing science stories in Boston. In 1943 he was transferred to Washington as a science reporter.

Carey won a Nieman Journalistic Fellowship to Harvard in 1946-'47. He studied nuclear physics, physiology, geology, bacteriology and astronomy.

Young Mother's Blood Drained And Replaced Three Times

Boston, Sept. 9 (U.P.).—Doctors maintained a constant vigil today over an unconscious young Maine mother whose blood was drained and replaced three times in what was believed the first such transfusion ever performed on an adult in the United States.

Hospital attaches said Mrs. Jeannette Saperia, 24, of Old Orchard, Me., was breathing better and showed an improved pulse and blood pressure. She was "dying" before the three-hour transfusion Tuesday night, they said.

Dr. William Damashek, professor of clinical medicine at Tufts Medical School and hematologist at the New England Medical Center, said he performed the operation as a 'desperate, last-ditch measure" in the absence of facilities for a tested treatment.

He said Mrs. Saperia became ill a week after birth of her first child August 16 at Portland, Me. Her condition was diagnosed as severe anemia largely caused by an ailment that prevent her kidneys from purifying her blood.

Partial transfusions failed to aid her, since the new blood also became impure.

Doctors first hoped to use a tested treatment with an "artificial kidney," a device which is attached to a patient's blood system, by-passing the kidneys which thus are allowed to rest and recuperate.

Only two are in the United States, however. One was in New York. The other was in emergency use at another Boston hospital.

Love Softens Up West Point Film

By Richard L. Coe

YOU WOULDN'T THINK it of me now, but when I was a lad I wanted, more than anything on earth, to go to West Point. We used to visit the Point at least once a year, and only the realization that my fingers, all 10, were vitally necessary to my math, quashed that boyhood dream.

Consequently, any picture with a West Point background sends me. The objective approach pretty much evaporates and I find myself admiring that institution whose graduates proved that their gritty training made them such superior officers to their World War II civilian peers. Granted, as one matures one regrets that society's failings make the Point's primary aim necessary; the cold fact remains, it is necessary. And the Point has given us some admirable graduates.

All this comes to mind after seeing the Warner's "Beyond Glory," a story of a veteran's problems in making himself into an Army officer. It is told with a skilful use of flashbacks, played by an able cast including Alan Ladd, George Macready and Donna Reed. While I regretted certain aspects of the story, I found it an engrossing and since tribute to a place which is, as I say, very special to me personally.

It is not, I allow, the great picture that some day will be made about the Point. It is too specialized in its story for that and it stoops to triteness. In picturing the outsiders' attack on the Point's institutions it is blatant and broad, and George Coulouris is too much the villain as a lawyer, representing a sniveling fool who had no right to become an officer.

Cadet's Battle Experience

The story concerns a congressional investigation into the dismissal from the Point of a cadet whom his fellows have caught in a lie. The young man's father interests the congressional committee in what he feels is an unjust expulsion and in the whole code of the Point. Through the cadet who had caught him in the lie, the father's lawyer seeks to tear down congressional confidence in the Point.

The lawyer unravels the second cadet's tortured background. This chap feels that he caused the death of his superior officer in Tunisian action. His captain's widow attempts to ease his conscience, but only until a mental doctor has pieced together the facts that his negligence did not cause the officer's death is the cadet's guilty memory cleared.

So it is not, you see, necessarily just a story of the Point and its methods of training. It is more the story of the former GI's struggle against an imagined failure and consequent fear that he lacks an officer's quality. Indirectly it explains the code of the Point.

Among the trio of writers contributing the story is William Wister Haines, who wrote "Command Decision," that moving play on a similar theme. With Jonathan Latimer and Charles M. Warren, Haines has constructed a script that has sound dialogue.

Macready Outstanding

The picture gives promise, at first, of being something more incisive than this rather sentimental dish-up of a soldier's battle mind and his cure through Love. The latter powerful ingredient has probably been tossed in to give "Beyond Glory" more feminine appeal than a more ruthless story might have had. As it is, what starts out to be anything but a handkerchief picture, takes in just that matinee quality. For what handkerchief pictures are worth, this is well done.

I know it's fashionable not to like Alan Ladd, but I must say he does a good job as the cadet-veteran; he's certainly more plausible and effective than he's been in a long while. Donna Reed, as the too shadowy widow, is most appealing; she looks like youthful Olivia DeHavilland.

Of the supporting cast, George Macready's Point commandant is splendid and you'll probably like Audie Murphy's brief film debut. Coulouris lays it on far too thick as the lawyer. Conrad Janis is able in the unsympathetic role of the sniveling liar. And the settings of the Point itself are almost as stunning as the real thing.

"BEYOND GLORY," Paramount release produced by Robert Fellows. Screen play by Jonathan Latimer, Charles Marquis Warren and William Wister Haines. Photography by John F. Seitz and Farciot Edouart. Music by Victor Young. Directed by John Farrow. At the Warner.

Rubber Collars Worn by 9 Seals Just War Relics

The Interior Department said last night it has solved the mystery of the strange rubber collars adorning the necks of nine Alaskan seals like "the rolled tops of a woman's stocking."

The seals and their strange apparel were first noticed five years ago.

It has now been established, the deparement said, that the seals are wearing the remains of rubber food bags dropped to Japanese troops on the Aleutian Islands during the war.

Some of the bags apparently went astray and the seals, then small pups with big appetites, plunged their heads through the necks of the bags to get the food and were unable to get free again.

It Took 10 Years to Get Here, Too

Trilogy Is Rather Mixed Up, But 'Marius' Is Earthy Comedy

The first of Marcel Pagnol's three-film adventures of the same Marseille folk, "Marius," has arrived at the Dupont. Raimu is the star and, despite the film's age, it's a good slice of the human comedy.

The second of Pagnol's trilogy, "Fanny," played the Hippodrome last May, though "Cesar," the finale, hasn't even been mentioned in these parts. The Siritzky people, who imported the two that have arrived here so far, have certainly done a very bad job in getting their wares on the market.

This film trilogy was begun by Pagnol and Alexander Korda 15 years ago. It was their intention to tell of a Marseille bartender's son who couldn't resist the call of the sea, of the girl he left behind him, of what happened to their child and of the man she finally married. "Fanny" was amusing; so is its predecessor, "Marius." But so sloppy a way of releasing so ambitious an undertaking is hardly praiseworthy. Why the pictures should take 10 to 15 years to get here is strange, but why they should be released at whim is downright idiotic.

Fresnay in Title Role

"Marius," played by Pierre Fresnay, is in love with Fanny, but the talk he's heard from waterfront sailors of the Pacific islands is more powerful. After much hemming and hawing, the problem finally is solved by Fanny, who virtually orders him to sea despite the delicate future she faces.

As in all the better French films, it's the detail that gives vitality to the picture. The subordinate figures are characters in the day's best sense of the term—the shy father, Raimu, who understands his son's love but is impervious to his sea love; the aging merchant who would marry a girl 30 years his junior; the mother who seeks only to keep her daughter from following the path of her aunt, and some whacky waterfront types you'll enjoy discovering yourself.

The laughs are the earthy, natural ones that come from the peasants that the cameras of France usually catch so effectively. The performances range from the heart-warming richness of the late Raimu to the sturdy dreamer of Fresnay. You'll particularly relish the high-spirited Honorine of Alida Rouffe, a superb portrait of the female who verges from the blowzy to the maternal.

The film shows its age, unfortunately, and so does an erratic soundtrack, but its creators' vitality shines through. If you're fond of French films, you'll enjoy "Marius."—R. L. C.

Whitehurst Skyway

It was an appropriate thought of Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young to name the new K street elevated highway after the late Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District highway director who died last week. The K street skyway is the child of Captain Whitehurst and its design is sufficiently unique to be a fitting memorial to the man who devoted 22 years to improving Washington's highway system. The Commissioners could not have picked a better way to recognize the contribution Captain Whitehurst made to this city.

WFTU Unmasked

The World Federation of Trade Unions has been stenciled a Communist front organization many times since its formation in 1945, but never with such authority as by its own president the other day. Speaking to the annual British Trade Union Congress in Margate on Wednesday, Arthur Deakin, president of the WFTU, declared the organization had been "captured" by the delegates of Russia and its satellites. They are using it, he said, to carry out the directives of the Cominform and to advance the aims of Soviet propaganda.

The WFTU was formed largely through the stimulus of the CIO, with the late Sidney Hillman as moving spirit, the British TUC, led by Sir Walter Citrine, and the Russian Central Council of Trade Unions, whose real boss is Josef Stalin. The AFL never joined or even countenanced the WFTU, remaining faithful to the existing and conservative International Federation of Trade Unions. Repeatedly the AFL leadership made plain that as far as it was concerned cooperation between voluntary labor organizations and government-controlled unions was both improper and delusive.

From the vantage point of 1948 the position of the AFL stands out as an example of unusual perspicacity and resolution. The attitude of the CIO and of the TUC, on the contrary, looks a good deal more peculiar than it did at the time. In all candor it should not be forgotten that things were different in 1945. The people of the United States and of the United Kingdom were anxious to get along with the Russians and willing to be flexible in their mutual arrangements. If the CIO leadership hoped that from contact through the WFTU a firm friendship could be forged with the working people of Russia, its hope was wholly appropriate to the times.

Realism would seem to demand a quite different attitude now. The ideal may still be valid, but the chance of attaining it through the WFTU has obviously vanished. All of James Carey's efforts have not brought a tangible change in the opposition of the WFTU's dominant Communist element to the Marshall Plan. Nor will they. As long as the Kremlin is intent on encouraging economic collapse in the Western world—with accompanying vilification—the words and the music will be echoed by its puppets in the WFTU.

Philadelphia Story

When the Constitutional Convention finished its labors in Philadelphia in September 1787, Benjamin Franklin sent a copy of the proposed charter of the United States of America to a friend in Paris. It might, he hazarded, offer some inspiration and guidance to the nations of Europe in coming together in a similar federation. Senator Barkley, chairman of the American delegation to the Inter-Parliamentary Union now meeting in Rome, has offered the same example to a still divided Europe. Or he has, rather, seconded the suggestion of Carlo Sforza, Italy's Foreign Minister and chairman of the conference. The example of the 13 States more than a century and a half ago is not, as Senator Barkley was careful to point out, necessarily applicable in full to Europe today, nor a prescription that America is likely to press upon European governments. Neither is it inapplicable.

Carl Van Doren's recent and excellent account of the Philadelphia convention's triumph over disparate interests and State jealousies, The Great Rehearsal, draws no explicit moral for today. But implicit in the book, as in the events it recounts, is a lesson for the beleaguered peoples and the hog-tied statesmen of 1948. Put succinctly is one of the slogans of earlier years, "In union there is strength." The founders of this republic acknowledged that the system of Federal Government they proposed involved a certain surrender of sovereignty by the 13 States to the Government of the Union. With some exceptions, however, they did not fear the consequences. On the contrary, they welcomed the greater unity for fear of the consequences if the States remained 13 separate sovereignties.

The lesson of 1787, if it has any pertinence at all today, applies not only to Europe. A closer union of peoples who believe in freedom and the supremacy of the individual over the all-powerful state is particularly an American need. It is no less important to the nations of the British Commonwealth. Today cohesiveness within the Western world is imperative.

Thoughts On Berlin

The ruthless intimidation that is being practiced outside the door of the conference room in Berlin has raised new questions, or, rather, has given point to old questions. Should the negotiations be broken off? And, if the answer is in the affirmative, upon whom would devolve the onus of responsibility for a break? The temptation to quit must be very great. For the pressure in the streets represents duress piled upon the duress of the Soviet blockade, and the Western governments would be justified, viewing the situation out of context, in abandoning the negotiations.

However, as soon as thought is given to the next move, the question of whether to quit answers itself. We simply cannot quit, as experience proved when the four-power control council was allowed to lapse. In July General Clay, whose turn in the chair had come around, issued no call for a meeting, because the Soviet chairman at the previous meeting had abruptly adjourned the proceedings on failing to get any response from his Western colleagues about the London Conference that the Western Allies held in June on Germany. The Western powers, in spite of the setting up in London of a western German government and a currency control, had determined at the same time to stay in Berlin. That, presumably, remains Western policy. At least there is not going to be any acquiescence in Soviet extrusion of the Western powers from Berlin. In that event any retirement from the negotiations in Berlin would leave the Westerners in the role of what has been called "dishonored guests" in Berlin—waiting ignominiously till the airlift could not be maintained any longer and then either quitting Berlin or drilling a way through the blockade.

So insults must be swallowed in the quest for a peaceful solution. The situation is highly incendiary, yet there is no development which shows that the Soviet wants to force war. No incitement, and, indeed, little comment, is to be heard on the Russian radio, such as would infallibly occur if the Soviet were war bent. This is significant, for dictatorships are just as sensitive to public opinion as democracies, and, as the story of the dictators' military adventures in the last 20 years shows, are compelled to "make" a favorable public opinion ahead of every new aggression. Moreover, there is still no sign of fresh military dispositions back of the Iron Curtain, though this means little, since the Soviet is a militarized as well as a hermit state. The Russians also must know that the United States does not want war. What is the most bothersome problem is whether they also know that the United States Government might not be able to prevent war developing out of any outbreak of shooting that may occur as an item in or as the consequence of the present Soviet intimidation.

Dictatorships, as we said the other day, are in a position to feel out intentions as well as strength by an exercise in shooting. Before the war military Japan did this at Russia's expense on two occasions on the Siberian frontiers of Manchuria and Mongolia. Tito did it all the time in Venezia Guilia prior to the settlement over Trieste. Assume that the Russians started any such shooting test in Berlin, or provoked Westerners into giving the Russians the excuse for such a test, in the limited hope of wresting possession of Berlin. In that event only a miracle would prevent a general conflagration, for, given the American temperament and the representative system in operation in America, any sizable incident most likely would be a casus belli in American eyes.

The riddle is: Do the Russians know that? Nobody has the answer outside Soviet Russia. But the assumption arising from experience with Soviet Russia is that the Russians think that, even if we called a shooting bluff in Berlin, they could simply close the incident by disavowing it. Here lie the real seeds of a war over Berlin, for the Russians could easily stoke up a sort of Maine feeling on the part of the American people that might prove irresistible. In this struggle of wills, which in various forms and places may last a lifetime, the American people can play their part by conditioning themselves to the provocations that are daily coming from the Russians, as the soldiers themselves are.

Midas Touch

Senora Eva Duarte de Peron's latest gesture of munificence to Argentine workers must be viewed in terms of the political situation in Argentina. The followers of Dictator-President Juan Peron are industriously pushing a plan to amend the constitution so that he may succeed himself in office. What could be more appropriate, therefore, than for Senora Peron magnanimously to proclaim an impressive Declaration of the Rights of Old Age to take the minds of Argentines off their inflationary troubles and remind them of their benefactors?

True to style, the senora's program is nothing if not grandiloquent. It outclasses anything promised in Britain's cradle-to-grave experiment, and excludes the moon, one may suspect, only through oversight. The new Peron Doctrine contains these unassailable rights: (1) to be assisted, (2) to be lodged, (3) to be fed, (4) to be clothed, (5) to be kept physically fit, (6) to be mentally and spiritually healthy, (7) to recreation, (8) to work, (9) to peace of mind and (10) to be respected. An admirable set of goals admittedly; the only thing lacking, a minor point, is how these "principles" are to be put into effect. A statement distributed by the Argentine Embassy alludes somewhat nebulously to "the new social justice which inspires the policy of the Argentine government" and to "its genuine Christian spirit." Glancing a little further, one learns that "these principles will be substantiated by the 'Maria Eva Duarte de Peron Social Assistance' Foundation." It is perhaps slightly ungenerous to add that other reports indicate that this foundation is financed from contributions by persons who wish to ingratiate themselves with the Argentine President and his wife.

We are reminded of an old Chinese law which abolished literacy. The idea in Buenos Aires, of course, is to detract attention from such facts as that the country promising all these emoluments has been brought close to bankruptcy by Peron's financial manipulations, that internationally Argentina is a pariah because of its profiteering in grain and that internally the railways and utilities recently taken over from Britain allegedly are on the verge of collapse. The "peace of mind" promised by Senora Peron evidently will depend upon a sublime faith in the legerdemain of the Perons. It is a mark of the new Argentine oligarchy that it has contrived to reverse the legendary Midas touch. The touch, seemingly, is now on the people.

Eduard Benes

The place of Eduard Benes—one of the most influential men in a generation of history—will be argued unendingly from now on. Our editorial on the Czech statesman's tragic end has already elicited a flock of comments. The editorial was written in pity, but, in conformity with our policy of trying to appraise famous men in the context of their times, it was written in terms of a historical footnote. This is the kind of treatment Benes himself gave in his own war memoirs in respect of the men who shaped European history with him.

Ambassador Slavik in an adjoining column asks us to give him the source of our statement that Benes at the time of the Tardieu plan for the creation of a Danubian federation said he would rather have Hitler than the Hapsburgs. We can find no such exact reference in Benes' writings or speeches, but in different forms this was what he said to various callers, and his career is one long demonstration of such a preference, if it were forced upon him.

Even Litvinoff, anxious as Tardieu to "contain" Hitler, favored the Tardieu plan, and urged its acceptance upon Benes. This was at Geneva, after the Soviet Union's entry into the League of Nations. Benes' refusal to participate in the Tardieu plan used to be a favorite topic of conversation in the League capital. Many memories are fresh with his boast that, rather, he would negotiate with Hitler a 10-year nonaggression pact similar to that concluded by Pilsudski. This unwillingness to build up a Danubia proved the last straw to Austria's Dr. Schuschnigg and he had to agree to the Anschluss forced by Hitler. It was Czechoslovakia's next turn. Anne O'Hare McCormick writes in the New York Times that, on being warned by her that Chamberlain would leave Czechoslovakia alone with Hitler, Benes replied, "If I did believe you, I could make a very good arrangement with the Germans right now, and I should be tempted to do so." He had no chance to do so.

Now as to Benes' determination to have common frontiers with Soviet Russia, the story may begin with Benes' own war memoirs. On September 19, 1939, Maisky, Russia's Ambassador in London, called on Benes, who says he (Benes) "emphasized the necessity of the Soviet's army's reaching our frontiers." At that time Soviet Russia was an ally of Hitler in overrunning Poland. Benes went to Russia in 1941 and came to a secret agreement with Stalin, a copy of which, according to Richard L. Stokes in a Washington dispatch to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, was smuggled out of Europe to the State Department by Czech Ambassador Osusky, formerly in Paris. Benes, according to Mr. Stokes, pledged himself to be "Russia's spearhead in western Europe." Again in 1943, after unsuccessfully trying to gain entry to the Tehran Conference, Benes against visited Moscow, and signed a new protocol to the 1941 pact. This, again according to Mr. Stokes, swapped Ruthenia for permission to expel the Sudeten Germans and the Hungarians from Czechoslovakia. Here is the common frontier, in addition, of course, to that of the old Polish Galicia. Benes' explanations of the deal as given out from time to time have been bewilderingly vague and contradictory. The newspaper correspondents have given examples since Benes' death.

The hopes that Benes entertained were as distinguished as his pacifism. We sympathize with the Czech people who looked on Benes as a symbol of their independence, and hope that they will find new leaders to help them assert it—leaders who will profit from the mistakes of Benes as well as his patriotism. They would do well to remember another great patriot of the nineteenth century, Palacky, who, contemplating the Austro-Hungarian empire, said that if it didn't exist, it would have had to be invented for the Danubian peoples.

WEAVER

Weave stolidly from dawn to dusk
Shut out all human love and passion;
Feed your starved soul upon the husk
Of life, and be content to fashion
A fabric, beautiful and frail,
But know, when all too late for weeping,
Held safe from every storm and gale
It will be yours, for lonely sleeping.

Radioisotopes

A story with a Paris, France, dateline appearing in your paper on September 6, is in error in stating that the United States Atomic Energy Commission has withheld radioisotopes from France.

The United States Atomic Energy Commission will be happy to fill requests from the French government for radioisotopes when such requests are received. Although France was approved in January, 1948, to receive radioisotopes and has since qualified to receive eight types of isotopes, no French purchase orders have been received by the AEC isotopes division at Oak Ridge, Tenn. Radioisotopes can be shipped only in response to such orders.

The American people have been generous in making isotopes, important tools in medical, biological and industrial research available to other nations. They are available to all which meet the few conditions imposed in order to make sure that results of research are open to scientists everywhere.

"Economic Blindness"

There is not a finer editorial page in America today than The Washington Post's. But sometimes when you get onto economic subjects I wonder when you are going to catch up with Adam Smith, or William Howard Taft.

An instance was your September 6 editorial, "Labor Day." The theme was the NAM's—that industry once was powerful and was clamped down on by Government—now labor has become powerful and must accept Government control to restore the economic balance. I concede some labor abuses that need correction, and believe labor itself would agree to such corrections if the corrections were not always proposed on the theory that labor has now become so powerful it is driving the poor little industrialist down to the ground.

The figures on economic developments since the war show who is the powerful threat to our economic security. Since the end of the war in 1945, average weekly earnings in industry have risen from $44.39 a week to $52.02, or 17 per cent. The cost of living has gone up from 128.4 per cent of prewar to 169.1, or about 52 per cent. Does this look like labor is the villain?

During the same period industry profits, after taxes, have risen from a wartime average of about 10 billion dollars a year—which was double the prewar average—to twice that, or an estimated 20 billions this year. Does that make labor look like the villain?

Another instance of economic blindness in The Washington Post was the editorial of August 19, "Basing Point." This commended Senator Capehart, chairman of the Senate committee now investigating the Supreme Court's basing point decisions, for his fairness in appointing an advisory committee of experts to help him.

What is happening there, as you should know, is that Capehart is out to overturn the Supreme Court's decision outlawing the basing point system for fixing prices and monopolizing industry.

The committee is loaded down with officials of the cement and other industries which have been using the basing point system—men who have been "convicted" by the Supreme Court of violating the antitrust laws, plus a few "business" economists who indirectly speak for the same interests.

Hindsight

It is so easy to be wise after the event! It is, indeed, easy for all these memoir writers to disparage the treaties made by the late President Roosevelt with Soviet Russia, and to intimate that things would now be different had their advice been followed.

Readers who take this outpouring of reproaches upon the head of a man unable to reply, forget the psychology of those days and times. Russia, to be sure, was our dear ally, but no one could be sure that Stalin would not make peace with Germany and combine against us had he deemed such a move expedient. In any event he would not have hesitated to violate any other agreement as he has already violated those that were made. And in those days we believed in leaning over backward to reassure the Russians of our good will and to show them that we trusted them.

What obloquy would have been heaped upon F. D. R. had he antagonized Stalin and thrown him into Hitler's arms and had him aligned against us with Japan! The Russians have shown themselves to be determined oppositionist to world peace and good will as well as utterly unreliable concerning treaties and pledged word of honor. We might as well face that fact and admit it.

Civil Disobedience

I was strongly tempted to renounce my membership in the Protestant Church when I read of the action of a group of Protestant ministers who preached civil disobedience to measures deemed necessary to the national defense. These men have done both their country and their church a very great disservice. If they are right, then Patrick Henry's declaration, "Give me liberty or give me death" was a lot of bunk; George Washington and Thomas Jefferson were dead wrong and Winston Churchill's stirring appeal to the British people to rally to the defense of their firesides should never have been spoken.

I am ready to believe that the gentlemen in question believed they were right, but do not think they thought the thing through. The admonition to turn the other cheek refers only to wrongs which we ourselves suffer. It does not mean that we must remain dumb and inert while frightful injustices are being wrought upon tens of thousands of helpless and decent people whose only crime is that they object to being forced into slavery to a police state.

These ministers must have forgotten that there came a time when even Christ himself took up the lash to scourge the money changers from the temple. They are not willing that this Nation put itself in a position to defend the weak and helpless against an international bully which declares that all religion is merely a sedative for the people and that it intends to drive the name of God out of the lives and hearts of men.

If so, we should bring all missionaries home. If we cannot support and defend the Christian way of life at home, it seems idle to try to induce others to follow our example.

"Eduard Benes"

Your September 4 editorial, "Eduard Benes," would certainly not meet with the approval of the nations liberated after World War I after the "dismemberment" of the Hapsburg empire, and all the Czechoslovaks feel undoubtedly hurt by some of your assertions. After the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia there was a criticism of the ailing and sick democratic leader in many minds of Benes's best friends and followers. But I do not think you were right in most of your statements and in the balance-sheet of the lifework of the deceased statesman.

I cannot agree especially that "the dismemberment of the Hapsburg empire" was the "fundamental blunder of the peace of Versailles." The falling in pieces of the "prison of nations" and "pigtail of Germany," which was the Hapsburg empire, was a logical historical event. It is a blunder to believe that a political prison —even if it were an "economic masterpiece" (which it was not) —could become the foundation of a sound and balanced structure, in which the equal partners—the jailers and the prisoners—would live in peace and happiness.

The Czechoslovaks are certainly grateful to the United States that this great democracy helped to revive Czechoslovak independence and could not be grateful to your editor if he condemned this great act. The creation of Czechoslovakia was not Benes' blunder; nor was the downfall of the unnatural and unjust Hapsburg empire.

The blunder about the Versailles Peace Treaty was elsewhere. The war was won, but the Allies did not win the peace. World War II started from Hitler's Germany which was allowed to become a potential aggressor. The blunder was done in not executing thoroughly the provisions of the Versailles Peace Treaty.

Could you kindly tell, me where you found the quotation, "Rather Hitler than the Hapsburgs?" I never heard or read this quotation from anybody and I am sure it was never said by Benes. Czechoslovakia and Benes would have willingly accepted a sound and just federation among equals in the Danube Valley. The Tardieu plan had many shortcomings in this respect. And Benes never negotiated a common frontier with the Soviets.

It is very difficult to judge Benes for his behavior around Munich. I do not know what you mean by saying, "there have been second thoughts." I was convinced in 1938 that we should have fought—but it is only a guess what the consequences would have been. The answer can be a mere speculation.

Benes' great tragedy which hastened his death was his disappointment with the Soviets and Stalin. As a sick man he had not the strength to draw from this disappointment and betrayal the right and final consequences. But it is not a matter of a betrayal of his "omniscience" by history. It was perhaps a wrong judgment about the character and the honor of Soviet leaders.

I do not think your editorial was right to put all the blame for the blunder in the past 30 years on Benes' shoulders alone and to exempt from the blame other statesmen who were more responsible for the events.

Washington Calling

Reaction At Work

SINCE his nomination in June the resourceful men around Presidential Candidate Thomas E. Dewey have been hard at work helping him to hammer out speeches that will define his position. Soon the campaign will begin and their handiwork will be unveiled.

The task of the members of the Dewey team has not been an easy one. They have been conscious of the diverse and opposing elements within the Republican Party.

Even for the purposes of a campaign, it would be impossible to reconcile all these elements. But in a national contest, no matter how confident your side is of victory, the goal is to unify as many factions as possible. And it is here that the Dewey team faces a tough dilemma.

The fact is that powerful men within the party know exactly what they want out of victory. They will work hard and, they will give generously of their money in the expectation of the fruits of victory.

While these powerful men do not all want the same thing, their desires in many instances overlap. They will expect a Republican administration to deliver certain tangible gains, their "program," set down more or less as they will hope to carry it out, is of the following order:

1. PASSAGE of a law granting to the States the right to oil and mineral deposits in the tidelands of the coastal waters adjoining the States. Large oil companies have spent millions of dollars in "educating" public opinion and particularly State officials to go along with this view.

2. Further reductions in the income tax as promised by Chairman Harold Knutson of the House Ways and Means Committee. Linked with this may be an effort to put over a Federal sales tax that would supply part of the revenue lost in another reduction of income taxes. The Eightieth Congress passed over the President's veto a reduction of nearly five billion dollars.

3. Take the Government out of the distribution of power generated at federally constructed dams and sell the power at wholesale to private utilities. A beginning was made in this direction when Congress after tremendous pressure by the private utility lobby, denied funds to the Tennessee Valley Authority for a steam plant to back up TVA's hydro power.

4. Repeal of the 160-acre water-tight limitation in the great Central Valley irrigation project in California. This could be taken as a precedent for breaking down the 160-acre restriction in other United States reclamation projects.

5. Compelling either by changes in law or by administrative and policy changes, a liberalization of present grazing and other timber limits in the national forests and the national parks. Lobbyists well supplied with funds have long been agitating for more generous treatment from the Forest Service and the Department of the Interior.

This is not by any means the whole program. But it illustrates the major goals of some potent individuals who are looking to a GOP victory to achieve those goals. And among these men are certain key figures in Congress.

THEREIN lies the essence of Dewey's problem if he is elected President. With some of the steps in the above program he probably would be in agreement. Turning the tidelands over to the States, a move that his running mate, Earl Warren, has long advocated in California, is one.

With respect to others, however, Dewey knows full well that they are inflationary and will contribute to the grave danger of a bust following on a short-lived boom. He knows also that other steps will reverse conservation practices fixed by his own party in another day and threaten to make new dust bowls, with resulting loss of livelihood and impoverishment.

Can Dewey in the White House control these men and carry out his own program? That is the question mark that casts a shadow longer than the double-talk of the campaign.

Candidate Dewey and the men around him have an insight into political currents that goes beyond blind partisanship. They must know that if the narrowest self-interest prevails, then the Republican Party will not stay in power for long. A skyrocket boom and a deadstick bust could mean loss of the Congress in 1952.

There are other forces in the country hoping just that will happen. The extreme Left is counting on blind reaction trying to push the clock back and thereby throwing the economy of the Nation badly out of balance.

That is the role of the third party. The party managers mean it to be midwife to reaction, and their goal is for the future after reaction has had its futile and self-destructive victory.

"Freedom For Heretics"

Your editorial of September 3 entitled "Freedom for Heretics," was timely and your points very well taken.

The present attitude toward atheists on the radio reminds me of the opponents of higher criticism of the Bible. Are we, who believe, like a reed shaken by the wind? Do we want to run everyone into our own mold of thought? Or, are we willing to grant to others the same freedom of thought which we extend to ourselves?

Matter Of Fact

Stalin Breaks A Promise

UNLESS the Soviet attitude abruptly changes, the scene of the unending struggle to solve the Berlin crisis will be transferred from Berlin to Moscow. Such, it can now be disclosed, was the basic decision of the emergency session of the National Security Council on Tuesday.

The meaning of the decision, moreover, is far more grave than appears on the surface. It means, first, that the Russian commander in Berlin, Marshal Sokolovsky, has reduced his critical talks with Gen. Lucius D. Clay and other Western commanders to the level of obvious sham. That is why the attempt to negotiate with Sokolovsky is to be abandoned, unless he quickly changes his tune.

It means, second, that no one really expects any good result in Moscow either. Ambassador W. Bedell Smith and his French and British colleagues have already failed once to extract a settlement from Generalissimo Stalin and Foreign Minister Molotov. After the farce that had been played in Berlin, there is no reason to suppose that their second attempt will be more successful. And thus the appaling danger of the Berlin situation will probably not be removed by agreement; and the danger is accordingly likely to grow progressively more acute.

In short, the hopes of the Western policy-makers, once raised so high, have again crashed to the ground. It is instructive to examine in detail how this has happened. To begin at the beginning, the man who raised the hopes so high in the first instance was Generalissimo Stalin himself.

THE LAST meeting between Stalin and the Western ambassadors occurred in an atmosphere of unalloyed gloom, after weeks of fruitless bickering. At this meeting, to the surprise and relief of Ambassador Smith and his colleagues, Stalin asserted that the currency and other problems involved in the Berlin crisis were largely technical, and as technical problems should be solved on the working level.

He proposed therefore that Marshal Sokolovsky, General Clay and the French and British commanders in Germany should be instructed to negotiate an agreement. And he promised to instruct Sokolovsky to carry on the negotiations in a business-like manner.

Stalin's proposal was accepted in good faith. Stalin was not present at the final Moscow meeting, at which Molatov and Andrei Vyshinsky showed very little enthusiasm for the Stalin formula. But aside from being more than ordinarily disagreeable, Molotov and Vyshinsky appeared to be ready to go along. Accordingly instructions to the Russian, American, British and French zonal commanders in Germany were dispatched forthwith. This was the high water mark of hopes in Washington, London and Paris.

The Berlin currency was the central issue confronting Sokolovsky, Clay and the others when they met in Berlin. Stalin had specifically agreed in Moscow that establishment of genuine four power control af the Berlin currency should be the aim of the new talks. Either the Soviet dicator changed his mind, or his mind was changed by the Politburo. In any case, as soon as the Berlin talks began, it became obvious that Sokolovsky's instructions were quite different from what had been promised in Moscow.

AN EXCLUSIVE Russian veto on all questions concerning the Berlin currency was only one of Sokolovsky demands. The net of his minimum proposals was that the Soviets should gain total economic and political power in Berlin, in exchange for lifting their illegal blockade of the city.

And while this shameless farce was being enacted at the Kommandatura, the Berlin Communists, under Sokolovsky's orders, began their attempt to seize Berlin by direct action. This attempt culminated in the forcible capture of the City Hall. Concurrently, Sokolovsky's farce negotiations have also culminated in the announcement that the Russians would hold mass air maneuvers o er Berlin, with the obvious purpose of stopping the Anglo-American air lift, which is supplying the beleaguered city. It can be understood why the President and the National Security Council concluded Tuesday that little more time need be wasted in exploring the worthlessness of Stalin's promise in Moscow.

The purpose of the renewed negotiations in Moscow is mainly to complete the record, so that no one can charge the western powers have not made efforts to settle the Berlin crisis by diplomatic means. Two questions remain. First, why was Stalin's promise broken? He gave clear evidence of wanting a Berlin settlement, referring repeatedly to the urgent need to lift the western powers' economic counterblockade of the Russian zone of Germany. Probably the activists in the Kremlin got to him after the meeting and persuaded him to break his promise, as happened after Yalta.

Second, what comes next? The question will be referred to the United Nations General Assembly, if there is no agreement in Moscow or Berlin. But the Assembly is unlikely to find a solution either. That will only come with some decisive action, which will convince the Kremlin that the western powers are not bluffing.

Old-Guard Clash With Dewey Expected on Personnel Policy

career service must be strengthened and made attractive.

Perhaps the best insight of Dewey's philosophy of Government is revealed in his remarks made a year ago to the graduating class of Hamilton College. That speech was an appeal to the young graduates to accept the challenge to make democracy work more efficiently by entering the Government service. These are some of the highlights of that address:

"No matter how little we may like it and no matter how we may long for the simplicities of the Jeffersonian state, which is considered best because it governs least, we must face the fact that Government has become our biggest industry and will continue to be big."

"That, in itself, is enough to send up the blood pressure of the Old Guarders who keep harping about converting our Government back to a prewar model.

Dewey spoke of how we took our Government casually and for granted in the boom times of the 1920s and how it has grown since until today nearly every major problem is placed in its hands for solution. Convinced that the Government can neither duck leadership nor responsibility, the presidential candidate then gave his views on how it could more effectively deal with many burdens "the people have placed on Government."

"To run any government today," he said, "you need, above all, capable, trained administrators, men who can recruit special talents, get them working together and put a program into action without the wasted effort of bogging down in governmental procedures. Few men have ever had the opportunity to develop these skills. Their scarcity is why we have seen so many manifestations of governmental incompetence or so-called bureaucracy—the loud promises with small results, the regimentation, the institutionalized patterns, forms and routines, the excess paper work and exasperating technicalities, the directives written in that language so elegantly described as gobbledegook.

"It's the age-old problem of little men in big jobs—or untrained men in highly technical jobs. Government's responsibilities have been multiplied many times over, but its supply of competent men has not multiplied.

"Government cannot wait any longer to start recruiting such men, just as industry has done for years, catching them young and giving them every chancce to develop. Almost the only field in which this has been done to any great extent is with our military and naval officers. Annapolis and West Point are only the beginning.

"Our officers are required to attend one school and then another to develop their competence. To this we owe the miracles of military expansion and the triumphs of technology. which recently saved our national existence We also owe to this the anomalous fact that it has been so often necessary in recent years to go to the armed forces for the men to fill big civilian jobs.

"We need the same degree of training in other fields," Dewey said, "Fundementally, our first need is for higher education in all our colleges and universities to fit our young men and women for both private and public life."

In his address, Dewey paid a high tribute to the career service. He said that "every phase of Government depends upon career men and women of an increasingly high degree of loyalty and competence." The career service, he said, is a vital and continuing role that "offers fine opportunity and also genuine security." Does that sound like he'd fire the career people if elected President?)

Even Dewey's severeist critic must admit those statements reveal a sympathetic understanding of the Government and its problems. The candidate did not indulge in the destructive criticism of Government and its employes which has become so routine on Capitol Hill.

Most important, Dewey has put his words into action; he has put into effect plans to infuse new blood into the New York State government, and he'd be a cinch to try something similar here on a broader scale.

For example, next to education, the State's biggest job is to care for the mentally ill. A quarter of the State's budget is required for the 100,000 mental cases. There was a great shortage of psychiatrists.

So, in 1946, 74 young physicians were taken from the graduating classes and appointed rtesident psychiatrists in the mental hospitals. The State paid them $3200 a year and they agreed to remain in the service for a minimum of two years.

During that two-year period the State gives them intensive psychiatric instruction at both Columbia and Syracuse universities. The State hopes to persuade the best of the crop to remain in the public service.

Furthermore, at Dewey's suggestion, the State is collaborating with both New York and Syracuse universities to give advanced courses in public administration to State employes in this city. And finally apicked class of graduate students in public administration —interns—are now brought into the State government each year and the best of the crop are urged to make a career of it.

"These projects," Dewey says, "are beginning steps in a direction we must follow if free government is to strengthen itself from within. Vigorously rejecting the totalitarian notion that Government is everything, we must be alert that our own Government does not outgrow its own skills like those prehistoric dinosaurs which got too big and clumsy to survive the struggle for existence."

The Federal Government could do much more than it has along these lines. In justice to the executive departments, they would have if Congress had approved the projects. And Dewey would have the same trouble from the diehards in Congress.

The next column in the Dewey series will appear Sunday. At that time Jerry Klutz will compare the benefits of Federal workers with those of New oYrk State employes.

Only Postman Does Without Psychology

Boston, Sept. 9 (AP).—Among Government employes, only the mailman receives no psychological studies to help him in his human relations.

Whether the mailman is neglected because he is so stable he doesn't need psychological aid or for some other reason was not explained.

The postman's psychological situation and that of the entire Postoffice Department, which receives no psychology appropriations, was reported by Dr. Donald G. Marquis of the University of Michigan in his annual address today as president of the American Psychological Association.

"Every one of the Federal departments, with the exception of the Postoffice," said Dr. Marquis, "is now supporting research in human behavior. The Veterans' Administration and the United States Public Health Service are spending between two and three million dollars annually in developing the field of clinical psychology.

"The Departments of Army, Navy and Air Force, now the biggest customers of research of all kinds, have budgeted between six and seven millions this year for studies in psychology and social science.

"There is good reason to believe that the total level of support will have to be doubled or trebled before the clearly recognized needs of the Nation will be even approximately met.

"But there is no guarantee that we can deliver what is expected."

The difficulty, Mr. Marquis said, is due to psychology's advance into fields that psychologists had not previously studied enough to learn sure methods of testing. These new fields, he said, include the links between personal relations and social psychology, and extensions into anthropology, sociology, economics and political sciences.

The Gallup Poll

Truman Leading in Missouri, With Party Vote Undivided

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 9.—President Truman has a long lead in his home State of Missouri.

Poll interviewers throughout the State find the following line-up among voters in reply to the question:

"If the presidential election were being held TODAY how would you vote—for Dewey, or for Truman?"

MISSOURI
(15 Electoral Votes)

Truman	53%
Dewey	36
Undecided	11

With the undecided vote eliminated, the result would be 59 per cent for Mr. Truman and 41 per cent for Governor Dewey. In the 1944 presidential election Missouri went Democratic with a vote of 51½ per cent, to 48½ for the GOP.

Neither Henry A. Wallace, candicate of the Progressive Party, nor Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, candidate of the States' Rights Party, will be on the official election ballot in Missouri. Hence the Democratic vote in the State will not be divided by those two forces the way it is in a number of other important States.

In New York, for example, the Institute poll finds Mr. Wallace with 16 per cent among voters expressing a choice. This detracts enough from Mr. Truman to give Governor Dewey a clear lead in the Empire State. In New York City, the Wallace vote is currently running to 27 per cent.

The following tables summarize the standings of the candidates in New York and Pennsylvania—the two States with the largest number of electoral votes. In all cases the percentages are based on those expressing a choice, the undecided vote being eliminated.

New York State
(47 Electoral Votes)

Dewey	47%
Truman	37
Wallace	16

New York City

Dewey	32%
Truman	41
Wallace	27

Upstate New York

Dewey	64%
Truman	32
Wallace	4

Pennsylvania
(35 Electoral Votes)

Dewey	57%
Truman	32
Wallace	4

Approximately one voter in ten in the two States is still undecided.

In his Detroit Labor Day speech President Truman emphasized the importance to the Democrats of getting out a big vote in November. His own home State of Missouri customarily shows a fairly high turnout, but it is far from being among the highest. In 1944 Missouri ranked seventeenth among the 48 States in voter turnout in proportion to population.

● Updycke is the name!

We finally looked inside the collar of the gray-flannel executive-type mannequin who sits behind a Manlon desk in the Manlon window—and found his name: Updycke. Mr. Updycke likes our office furnishings. So will you.

LOCK & Co. HATTERS, St. James's Street LONDON

You . . . and a Lock hat

You may never have heard the words "Lock Hats" unless you have lived in England during the past two hundred years and mingled with—as they quaintly put it—"the nobility and gentry". Lock made the first Derby, Bowler, or, as they were originally called, Coke hats. (A Mr. Bowler was a local hatter who asked Lock to make this new style for the Earl of Leicester.)

We are the sole representatives of Lock in Washington. They have sent us ample and varied stocks, each hat packed in a square plywood box. How handsome are these hats! What a luxurious feel to the finger-tips! Long wear is built into them from sheer quality and workmanship. Good looks are their own heritage.

You would look well in a Lock Hat.

P.S.: If your name is on our mailing list, you will receive from England a fascinating booklet "The Hat Excellent." It is highly interesting and instructive.

Lock Hats from England, $16.50 and $18.50

Homburgs and snap brims. Several shades of grey, tan, brown and willow green.

Murphy Plans 2 More Stores In D. C. Area

By S. Oliver Goodman

The G. C. Murphy Co., one of the Nation's largest retail chains, plans to open two more large stores in the Washington area.

District Manager C. P. Kerley revealed this yesterday coincidental with the formal reopening of the remodeled downtown store. B. C. Hoyt is manager of the F st. unit which yesterday gleamed with new fixtures, glass doors and front, mirrored columns, fluorescent lighting and other innovations.

Kerley said work already has been started on a new store at Minnesota ave. and Benning rd., in the Northeast section. The other will be built on Wilson blvd., in the Clarendon, Va., shopping area. Both are expected to open in 1949, he added.

In addition to the F st. store, Murphy's operates five other units here. The one in Alexandria, Va., was enlarged and remodeled in 1947. Another in Silver Spring, Md., was remodeled and a downtown sales floor added in 1947. The Rockville, Md., unit is currently being remodeled and enlarged. Others are on 14th st. and 7th st.

Murphy's averages about 1500 employes in its six local stores. Kerley, the district manager, has been associated with the chain for 18 years. He served as manager of the F st. store for five and a half years and in 1945 was appointed to his present position. Hoyt succeeded Kerley as F st. store manager and has been employed by Murphy's for 20 years.

The G. C. Murphy Co. in 1947 operated 209 stores in 12 States and the District of Columbia, with a total sales volume of 119 million dollars.

FOURTH MOVE: The Federal Reserve Board's increase in reserve requirements comes as the fourth recent move against inflation. The first was the Treasury increase in short term money rates, followed by an increase in bankers' rates on prime commercial and other paper. The second was an increase in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate, and the third was curtailment of consumer installment credit.

MEETINGS: About 300 scrap dealers, meeting this week at the Commerce Department, supported the Government's plan to set up a private corporation to import iron and steel scrap from Germany. The corporation would be formed by U. S. scrap dealers, who would sell debentures to raise the necessary capital. . . . Col. Arthur G. Syran, director of the ECA transportation division, addressed the National Propeller Club's local port last night on Japanese shipping conditions and transportation problems relating to European assistance. . . . New ideas and materials for wrapping, packing and shipping in paper containers will be on display September 15 and 16 at the Mayflower Hotel, sponsored by Murray & Heister, Inc.

THIS SPEED AGE: The Washington scene will be enlivened Monday by an odd-looking contraption which washes and dries an automobile in 60 seconds. First in Washington, the automatic washer will be located in the 400 block of K st. nw. Benjamin Topal, former local restaurateur, is the owner. The $20,000 machine uses automatic sprays, whirling brushes and big sheet-metal drying ducts. Hand work vacuums upholstery, cleans bumper, grilles and spots missed by the brushes.

Chest Sets Kick-Off for $4.5 Million On Sept. 30

Campaign to Aim For More Pledges, Better Coverage of Business Houses

An increase in the number of pledges and better coverage of Greater Washington business personnel will be emphasized in the Community Chest Federation campaign this year to raise a goal of $4,566,790.

This was announced yesterday by J. S. Bartlett, chairman of the press relations committee for the campaign, who said the campaign kickoff will be held September 30 at 8 p. m. and will coincide with the launching of the national campaign.

Bartlett explained that this year's goal is 10 per cent more than that for 1947-48, and that even the 10 per cent increase will not be sufficient to combat the inflationary trend during the past year.

The Community Chest Federation is the fund-collecting agency for member chests and their agencies in Alexandria, Arlington, Fairfax, Montgomery and Prince Georges counties. It also collects funds for the Washington agencies which are members of United Community Services, organized from the previous Washington Community Chest and Council of Social Agencies.

He said that most of the agencies included in the Chest Federation received a 10-per-cent increase in their budgets. Two exceptions are hospitals, where a 97-per-cent increse in the budget allotment was made, and the U. S. O., which was included in the budget for $54,000 at the request of Defense Secretary James V. Forrestal.

The hospital budget was boosted to $450,000 in order to meet the $11-per-day contract rate established for Community Chest patients in participating hospitals.

Emphasis will be placed during the campaign, which goes through November 4, on urging each Washington area resident to give one day's take-home pay to the agencies of the Community Chest Federation, Bartlett said.

8 Women Held For Apparel Shop Thefts

Eight women suspects were rounded up last night for questioning about a series of reported thefts from Connecticut ave. apparel shops.

Police said they picked up the suspects within an hour after three of them had reportedly taken three women's suits from Herman Becker, Inc., 1719 Connecticut ave. nw., before fleeing in a big sedan.

Pvts. L. B. Raney and D. H. Gould of the Thirteenth Precinct spotted the car on a tip given Becker by a passerby.

Two of the stolen suits were found in the car, police said, and the third and other items of apparel were found in an apartment near the Thirteenth Precinct.

3 D. C. Polio Cases Make Total 130

Greater Washington's polio toll rose to 130 yesterday as three new cases were reported in the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia.

The new cases were a 25-year-old woman of the 1500 block of Tyler ave., Falls Church, Va., who entered Gallinger Hospital Wednesday; a 16-year-old boy of the 400 block of Rhode Island ave. nw., who entered Gallinger Monday and a 7-year-old boy of the 6000 block of Brooks Lane, Brookmont, Md., who entered Childrens Hospital yesterday.

The cases brought the District total for the year to 71 and for adjoining Maryland and Virginia areas to 59, as compared with a total of 6 for the District, and 14 for the nearby county areas for this date last year.

Fickle Fellows, These . . .

AT ARM'S LENGTH—Two changeable chameleons—these from East Africa—pose on a keeper's arm at the Washington Zoo, where they arrived yesterday. The lizards, nervous critters at best, so nervous, in fact, that they change color, can look in two directions at the same time and not get crossed up.

Sex Suspect Faces 10-Year Maximum Under Miller Law

A 28-year-old delivery clerk who one year ago might have escaped with a trifling charge of disorderly conduct was arraigned on a felony charge yesterday in Municipal Court.

He is one of the first to feel the teeth in the new Miller Act, which is designed to bring sex offenders under tighter rein in the District.

The defendant, Philip Ruble of 537 Piedmont st., Arlington, waived preliminary hearing on a charge that he attempted to take immoral and indecent liberties with an 8-year-old girl. Judge Aubrey B. Fennell ordered him held for action of the grand jury in $5000 bond.

Ten-Year Maximum Penalty

Under the new Miller Act, if Ruble is indicted and convicted he faces a maximum sentence of 10 years.

Police say Ruble has admitted calling the 8-year-old girl on the telephone and using obscene language. Under the old statutes, this would have been merely a misdemeanor.

The new Miller Act under which Ruble has been charged calls for stiffer sentences for sex offenders, but it also provides for more humane consideration of psycopathic cases.

The latter provision may be a factor in the case of Ruble. At his arraignment yesterday, his attorney, Eugene E. Ditto, requested that his client be sent to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation.

Request Is Denied

This request Judge Fennell denied after Assistant United States Attorney Robert Short pointed out that a prisoner accused of a felony cannot be given a mental examination before the evidence against him has been considered by the grand jury.

If Ruble is indicted, his attorney can again petition for a mental examination. For that matter, so can the United States Attorney's office.

This examination, however, is to determine whether the defendant is of unsound mind. If there are no mitigating circumstances and the defendant is decreed sane, he probably will stand trial.

However, if the U. S. Attorney's office has reason to believe the defendant's case would respond to psychiatric treatment, the defendant may be reexamined as a possible psychopathic sex case.

May Be Committed

The new Miller Act contains many "ifs." If the defendant is found to be a sexual psychopath, he may be committed to St. Elizabeths Hospital for treatment.

The new law also says that if the defendant is discharged from the institution as cured, he may be placed on trial on the original sex charge.

The new law does not provide for examination of the defendant as a sexual psychopath at the sole request of his attorney.

However, Dr. Samuel A. Silk, acting superintendent of St. Elizabeths, commenting on the case, said he did not believe the court would deny such a request if it appeared to be made in good faith.

Dr. Silk said also that the sanity examination would certainly touch upon the subject of whether the subject was abnormal sexually.

No Police Record

In Ruble's case, police have no record of a previous involvement in a sex offense. Even so, Judge Fennell set bond at $5000 although Assistant United States Attorney Short had asked only for bond of $3000. Unable to make bond, Ruble was sent to District Jail.

Details of the case involving Ruble were described in this fashion yesterday by Detective Sergt. Frank Ashley of the local police sex squad and Detective Sergt. R. S. Greenwart of the Alexandria Police:

On September 2, the picture of the 8-year-old girl appeared in The Washington Post. Ruble saw the picture. He looked up the telephone number of her family. The family lives in Alexandria.

The following day he called and talked to the girl. He called twice that day. He suggested she go out with him. In subsequent calls on September 4, 5 and 7 he asked the child obscene questions. The girl's mother called police in Alexandria. Police made arrangements with the telephone company to trace the calls.

Keeps Caller on Phone

To this end, the girl, coached by her mother, kept the caller on the telephone as long as possible when he called.

Washington police were brought into the picture when it was learned the obscene calls were coming from the District. One call was traced back to Western Union, then to the Western Union branch office, 1317 New York ave. nw., where Ruble was employed. Ruble was arrested Wednesday night while at work.

Police said Ruble signed a statement in which he admitted making the calls. They said he also confessed to making "suggestions" during the telephone conversations with the young girl.

Police said he told them he doesn't know why he did it; that he had never done such a thing before.

According to his attorney, Ruble is single, lives with his brother and was a 4-F during the wartime draft because of a rupture.

Although the telephone calls were interstate, the local police made the arrest because the offense was committed here.

Lieut. Richard McCarty, head of the sex squad, said such cases as this are rare and that tracking down the telephone pest is no easy matter. He said the arrest followed fine cooperation between Washington and Alexandria police. He said Detective Sergt. Greenwart of Alexandria was present when Ruble was arrested.

McCarty commented that in the past 10 years, the sex squad has been increased from two men to a strength of 11, including two women. Now, the sex squad is called in wherever a case involves sex.

Pinball Play Of Students To Be Curbed

Ban to Embrace Those Under 16; Effective Nov. 1 In School Hours

District youngsters under 16 will be prohibited from playing pinball machines between 8 a. m. and 3 p. m. on school days beginning November 1, the Commissioners decided yesterday.

The decision was part of new mechanical amusement machine regulations adopted yesterday after being drafted by a regulations committee headed by Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester H. Gray.

The regulations, which go into effect November 1, also require "owners or operators of establishments" in which the machines are located to obtain annual licenses at the rate of $12 per unit.

License applications will be referred to the police for a report on the "moral character" of the applicant and then to Superintendent of Licenses Chatham T. Nottingham, who will be in charge of issuing licenses.

Violators of the new regulations will be subject to fines up to $300 or imprisonment up to 90 days for each offense, in addition to revocation of license.

The regulations were suggested by parent-teacher groups who declared that school children spent their lunch money on the machines "to the detriment of their health and education."

Grillo Says He Paid $500 For Magistrate

Operator of Closed D. C. Club Testifies In Philadelphia Case

Vincent R. Grillo, operator of Washington's recently closed Spotlight Club, testified yesterday in Philadelphia that he paid a $500 bribe that he assumed would go to Magistrate John J. O'Malley.

O'Malley, free in $75,000 bail on charges of misbehavior in office, was accused in two new warrants yesterday in Philadelphia of accepting the $500 bribe.

Grillo, who also operated a club in Philadelphia in 1945, told Judge Joseph Sloane in Common Pleas Court he gave $500 to Robert E. Hagan, an attorney, and assumed it was passed along to O'Malley.

Hagan was held in $5000 bail by Judge Sloane on a conspiracy count.

Grillo said he paid the $500 to obtain a discharge of the case against him before another magistrate for selling liquor without a license. O'Malley was chief magistrate at that time.

In a warrant issued previously, O'Malley was accused of 517 separate illegal and dishonest acts involving 428 defendants during his five years as chief magistrate in Philadelphia.

Grillo, the witness, has had personal trouble here in recent weeks with his after hours club. It was raided recently and he was charged with selling liquor illegally. On Wednesday, the District government seized all fixtures, furniture and liquor in the club because of nonpayment of $515 personal property taxes.

Falls Church Promotes Four Policemen

Promotion of four Falls Church policemen to higher ranks was announced yesterday by City Police Chief E. H. Howe.

Four Men and Two Women Arrested in Numbers Raids

Cracking down on alleged numbers racketeers, police undercover operators yesterday arrested four men and two women in four midday raids.

The first raid at 11 a. m., on a poolroom at 613 7th st. sw., netted Edward F. Harrigan, 31, of 504 7th st. sw., marked money and a numbers book, police reported. Harrigan's book recorded plays on the number 962 which undercover men said they had placed bets on for six days.

Arrested at 804 K st. nw. 45 minutes later, according to police, were:

Bernard Newyhar, 29, of 901 New York ave. nw., who had $152 in marked money.

His wife, Louise, 43, with $135 in marked money and numbers slips.

Hyman Sussman, 43, of 3215 Chesapeake st. nw., with $836 and rundown tape indicating his collections for Wednesday amounted to $3579.60.

At 2 p.m. police arrested Mrs. Rita F. Palmer, 32, of 1451 58th ave. ne.—the first woman ever charged with collecting bets from numbers writers here.

Mrs. Palmer was picked up while driving a car with Maryland tags near Uline's Arena. Police said they seized a sackful of numbers slips and about $189 in cash. Under surveillance many days, she had proved an elusive quarry because of her car-switching, police said.

Arrested at 3 p. m. at his home was Jerome G. Donaldson, 39, of 133 Maryland ave. ne. Police said both he and Mrs. Palmer had duplicate records of a numbers bet placed with him by an undercover operative.

A stack of numbers ads like this one was found in Mrs. Rita F. Palmer's pocketbook, police said. The card is about five inches wide in actual size

All six were charged with possession of numbers slips and operation of a lottery. Mrs. Palmer and Donaldson were released in $1500 bond for appearance before United States Commissioner Cyril Lawrence today. The others were freed in $1500 bond pending appearance in Municipal Court this morning.

PUPILS DENIED ENTRY—Seven of the ten Negro students denied admittance yesterday to the King George High School for white students are pictured as they waited outside the entrance for the result of the conference which barred them. School superintendent said to admit them would be to violate the laws and constitution of Virginia.

Tense Crowd Sees 10 Negro Pupils Barred From King George (Va.) White High School

most Negro pupils yesterday failed to register at the King George Training School pending the attempt to register at the white school. The same tactics were employed in Gloucester County, which is also under Federal Court order to equalize Negro school facilities. Negro pupils in both counties were returning to classes today.

Superintendent Meets Group

When the delegation of Negro pupils, parents and spokesmen early today arrived in automobiles at the white school here—four miles from the King George Training School and 17 miles east of Fredericksburg—a group of white men, women and children were gathered in front of the school.

Most of the men were in work clothes, and some sat in parked cars. Several women held infants. All looked on in silence as about 30 Negroes, accompanied by newspaper reporters and photographers, approached the school.

There they were met by T. Benton Gayle, superintendent of schools for King George and Stafford Counties, who demanded of Martin A. Martin, Richmond Negro attorney,

"What is the purpose of this visit?"

"To get equal school facilities for my clients, as ordered by the Federal District Court on July 31," replied Martin.

"All of us are unanimously of the opinion that the King George Training School is not equal to the school here," declared Martin.

While the "prospective" Negro registrants, six boys and four girls, waited on the steps, Martin, accompanied by W. Lester Banks, executive secretary of the Virginia State Conference, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, went inside to talk with Gayle. William L. Smith, jr., newly appointed supervising principal of the county schools, sat by.

Gayle sought to determine whether Martin had specifically directed all Negro pupils not to register at the King George Training School the previous day, when Negro leaders visited there. At that time, Martin termed the school, with about 380 pupils in grades 1 to 11, somewhat improved but still "grossly inadequate."

Martin replied he had only advised 30 parents, who were his clients, to take their children home and return the next day. Gayle then dropped this questioning which he later said was to determine if there was a cause for action against Martin.

"Are you familiar with the Constitution of Virginia, Section 140, which states that Negroes and whites shall be taught in separate schools?" "I am," replied Martin.

Two Constitutions Cited

Gayle asked a similar question about the Virginia Code, drawing a similar answer. "Do you realize you are asking me to violate the oath of my office to uphold the State Constitution and the State laws?" declared Gayle.

"It appears to me that the laws of Virginia in this particular are contrary to the Constitution and laws of the United States," countered Martin.

"That is only your opinion," retorted Gayle, getting red in the face.

"It is your first move," said Martin, "to obey the Constitution of the United States, and secondly, the laws of Virginia."

After further inconclusive debate, Gayle said, "I expected you people to be reasonable on this. I don't think you have been reasonable. We did not receive the court order until August 5."

Martin replied that Federal District Court Judge Sterling Hutcheson had entered his decision in the case in April, and "You knew and I knew what the order was going to be . . . you should have prepared for it. . . . Neither you nor your attorney have gotten in touch with me since the trial."

"Well, we felt you were going to be reasonable about it," replied Gayle. "We've done everything we could in the short time." Gayle then announced that he was formally refusing to register the Negro pupils at the white school.

As reporters and photographers left the school with the Negro leaders, white persons in the crowd began to jeer the newsmen.

"Why pick on this county?" asked one woman, heatedly. "There are plenty of other counties where the niggers are much worse off—you outsiders are just stirring this up."

As reporters were getting into one car, a pleasant-looking white-haired old woman stooped with age, who lives opposite the school, shielded her eyes from the sun and called out:

"We're just reaping from the Republican Party!"

Puzzled newsmen asked what she meant. "That old rascal Abe Lincoln is the cause of all this," she replied angrily. "He should have died before he was born! Him and his emancipation!"

After the Negro group returned to the King George Training School, Gayle arrived there and discussed with Principal E. B. Webb a new water pump and tank for the school, which Gayle said had been ordered.

In an effort to comply with the Federal equalization order, a number of additions have recently been made to the school plant, including, among other things, a commercial course plus some commercial equipment, a new outhouse, and some agriculture vocational equipment.

"We know facilities are not equal," said Gayle, "but we have made more progress—relatively—for Negro schools than for white schools since I came here 23 years ago. It's just that we had so far to come. The home economics and agricultural shop are just as good as they are at King George High."

Martin told reporters he did not know when his law firm will seek a motion to cite school officials for contempt of court, "but I can say we won't waste any time."

Earlier, Martin attacked another development on Wednesday in which Smith, the white high school principal, was named for the first time to be supervising principal of both the white and Negro schools. Gayle had announced this was done to accomplish "better administration and supervision."

Martin charged this was "a deliberate reprisal against teachers, pupils and parents, to try to intimidate them.

"This is flouting the court's authority," declared Martin, "and to my mind, that alone is contempt of court."

To Discuss City Salaries

LaRue Van Meter, new commissioner of revenue of the City of Falls Church, said yesterday he will go to Richmond, Va., Tuesday to consult with the State Compensation Board on salaries for his office. With him will be new City Treasurer James E. Ferguson, whose office also will be considered. Van Meter said they also will determine the number of employes each office may have.

200 Meet To Protest Montgomery Curriculum

Parents Criticize School Instruction In 'Dish Washing And Jelly Making'

Approximately 200 persons attended a mass meeting in the Kensington Armory last night, called to protest the Montgomery County school curriculum.

Speakers were members of the Parents League for Curriculum Improvement. They spoke bitterly of what they termed "progressive education" in the schools and attacked public school instruction in such things as "dish washing, sock washing and jelly making."

One speaker, Carl W. Binker of Rockville, Md., defended the parents' right to evaluate the curriculum, even though they are not trained educators. Some criticism of the group had been voiced because the protesting parents are not trained in education. Binker quoted one member of the group as saying: "I'm not a hen, but I know when an egg is rotten."

Robert B. Parke, the group's publicity chairman, said "It cannot be said of the 'progressive' system of education that a rose by any other name would smell as sweet: 'progressive' education simply smells, period."

Both Parke and Binker charged the county classrooms serve as a laboratory for educational experiments, and the basic tools of learning are ignored.

"We feel it is the school's job to give the child tools to evaluate, not to give them a predigested philosophy of life," Binker said.

"A high school diploma in this county doesn't necessarily have 15 cents worth of validity," he added.

Scattered applause marked some of the points made by the speakers.

Again defending the parents' right to complain, Parke said the present charges were preceded by "several years of intensive study and research."

The parents group is circulating a protest petition to the County Board of Education, and claims 3000 signatures have already been collected.

A half-hour period of general questioning from the floor followed the speeches. Only a few persons in the audience spoke in defense of the county school system. The meeting lasted three hours.

Another meeting on county school problems will be held tonight at 8 at Leland Junior High School, Chevy Chase, Md.

The forum will spotlight controversial topics of school curriculum, teaching methods, choice of textbooks and teacher pay raises.

Speakers will include Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, State superintendent of schools; Dr. Edgar M. Douglass, assistant county school superintendent; County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr; State Senator Roy Tasco Davis; President Brooke Johns of the County Board of Commissioners; President H. Stanley Stine of the County Board of Education, and Nathan R. Gilbert, president of the county PTA Council.

Gov. Tuck Calls For Calmness in School Problem

By The Associated Press

Governor Tuck called tonight for "the utmost calmness and tolerance" in handling the problem of equalizing public school facilities for whites and Negroes in Virginia.

Many Virginians, the Governor's formal statement said, have been "shocked" by the actions of "certain persons posing as leaders of the Negro race" who have been "advocating and urging" the violation of provisions of the Virginia constitution calling for segregation in the school system.

The Governor said segregation in schools "will continue to be observed" in accordance with the constitution.

Conceding that "facilities are unequal in many instances," Tuck said the localities "will be encouraged to correct these inequalities as rapidly as practicable."

He noted, however, that inequalities exist among white schools and that "there is no such thing as absolute equality in the schools."

$2000 Cash Taken From Two Safes

Early morning yeggs yesterday hauled $2000 from two downtown safes.

About $1500 in cash was looted from the safe in offices of the Columbia Cab Co., 448 New York ave. nw., Thomas W. Fowler, president, reported. Access to the safe, found open, was gained without any apparent force.

At the B. F. Goodrich Co., 443 Ky st. nw., experts chiseled off the back of a safe and made off with $500 in cash. The yeggs rolled the 1000-pound safe into a rear workroom for the chiselling operation, James R. Pope, manager, reported.

Veterans' Group Sued

Jack Kyle, former national commander of the Regular Veterans Association, yesterday asked District Court for $50,000 damages because he has been denied credentials to attend the association's annual convention.

His suit also asked that the association be enjoined from holding the convention, scheduled for September 17 through 21 at Denver, Colo. Kyle, who is owner and operator of an office equipment company at 1431 I st. nw., declared the credentials were refused because of the "personal jealousy" of association officers.

ABC Proposal Studied

A proposal by the District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board requiring tavern and restaurant owners to maintain separate books on food and liquor sales was tabled yesterday by the Commissioners for further consideration. The proposed regulation has been protested by many tavern operators as a serious bookkeeping handicap.

Auctioneer Rule Rescinded

The District Commissioners yesterday rescinded a regulation permitting them to waive a statutory six-months residence requirement for out-of-town auctioneers to operate sales here.

The regulation was adopted last April to permit a New York firm to sell the personal property of the late Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean. It has been under fire by District auctioneers, the local chapter of the Better Business Bureau and the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

The action yesterday now makes it mandatory for any out-of-town auction firm to establish at least six months residence here before being permitted to run a sale.

Blood Supply Drops

Because of heavy demands from hospitals on the Red Cross blood bank over the Labor Day holidays, the blood center at 1730 E st. nw., usually closed Saturdays, will be open this Saturday from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. to receive donors.

Demand for blood has been unusually heavy, especially for Type O, Dr. John B. Ross, center director, said. In many instances, several pints have been required for one patient, Dr. Ross declared.

Correction

Dedication of two neon signs at the Central Union Mission, 613 C st. nw., will take place tonight at 8:30 p. m. The Washington Post erroneously stated yesterday that the dedication would take place last night. The Washington Post regrets the error.

One of the signs will be dedicated at the C st. entrance to the mission, the other at 624 Indiana ave. nw. The signs were presented by Mrs. Edna Thomas Mooney, Miss Effie Brodnax, Mrs. Lora Orebaugh, and the Women's Evening Auxiliary of the mission. Among those speaking at the ceremony will be Senator Arthur Capper (R., Kans.).

Snyder Praises Pennsy's 82,000 U. S. Bond Buyers

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder yesterday paid tribute to more than 82,000 employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad who are buying savings bonds through the payroll savings plan.

In a citation handed Pennsylvania's president, M. W. Clement, in a ceremony at Union Station, Snyder said:

"This patriotic and wholehearted effort is helping each employe provide for his own future security . . . It sets a most commendable example to all Americans."

A total of 82,535 employes of the railroad participate in the payroll savings plan.

K St. Viaduct Will Be Named For Whitehurst

A section of the K st. elevated highway will be named for Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of District highways for many years, who died last week.

The District Commissioners decided yesterday to call the new viaduct running from Key Bridge and Canal rd. to Rock Creek over K st. the Whitehurst Freeway.

The action was taken on the motion of Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young, who noted that the official "was responsible more than any one man for the magnificent system of highways and bridges" here, and that this project "was especially close to his heart."

Secretaries to Sponsor Servicemen Cruise

A moonlight cruise for servicemen from camps and bases in the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia will be held at 8 tonight aboard the S. S. Potomac.

The cruise will be sponsored by the Congressional Secretaries' Club. Government workers who will be escorted by invited servicemen will assemble at 7 p. m. at Harbor Police Headquarters.

Edmund D. Moneuse

Edmund D. Moneuse, 55, of 705 Upshur st. nw., retired operator of the Capital Ambulance Service, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital following a prolonged illness.

Mr. Moneuse came to Washington 17 years ago and was manager of the Chambers undertaking company's ambulance department before starting his own ambulance service.

Prior to coming to Washington, Mr. Moneuse was associated with his father in the kitchen equipment business in New York City.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Maybelle P. Moneuse, and two daughters, Mrs. B. J. Madigan and Mrs. N. J. Camardi, both of Washington.

Requiem high mass will be sung at St. Gabriel's Church, 26 Grant Circle nw., at 9 a. m. Monday. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Ocean City, Md., Sept. 9 (AP).—Two proposals for a State veterans' bonus were submitted to the resolutions committee of the Maryland American Legion Convention here today.

One resolution, proposed by the Frostburg Post and indorsed by the Maryland department's mountain district, recommends payment by the State of up to $50 to World War II veterans.

A second bonus proposal was said to have been submitted by a Baltimore City unit.

Mrs. Clarence Marks of Hagerstown was named le chapeau of the auxiliary to the 40 and 8, the Legion's fun organization.

Mrs. Anne Plumley of Hyattsville and Mrs. Evelyn Brooks of Cumberland were elected first and second demi chapeaux, respectively.

It was announced by the Legion auxiliary that Mrs. Jessie Smith of Lonaconing is the only candidate to succeed Mrs. Nellie Lynch of Baltimore as the department president.

Footprints Of Abandoned Baby Checked

The Washington Post

HER MOTHER SOUGHT—This young lady—about 3 weeks old—is kicking her heels up at Gallinger Hospital, where she is being cared for while police search for her mother. The infant was abandoned in Union Station Wednesday night.

Police yesterday hoped that footprints of an abandoned baby would lead them to the infant's parents.

Prints of the 3-week-old girl's feet were taken at the Woman's Bureau here. These will be matched with records of all hospitals in the vicinity which imprint the feet of newborn children.

In addition, drug stores will be checked for sales of a violet solution used for treatment of heat rash in children. The infant had been so treated. Otherwise, the child appeared to be healthy.

The baby wore pink bootees, a white dress and was covered with a red flannel blanket when found by an attendant in a toilet booth in Union Station Wednesday.

Lane to Speak at Silver Spring

Gov. W. Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland will speak at a dedication ceremony in the Montgomery Blair High School Stadium on Saturday in Silver Spring as part of the "Avenue of Progress" celebration.

The State's chief executive, with other dignitaries, will join nearby Maryland businessmen and residents in celebrating completion of the one-million-dollar underpass and repaving of Georgia ave.

The stadium dedication ceremonies are being sponsored by Allied Civic Groups and will follow a ribbon-cutting ceremony at the underpass at 2 p. m. and a two-hour parade along Georgia ave.

Chairman Arthur Burke of the parade committee, said yesterday there will be 59 units and five bands in the parade. It will form on 13th st. just west of Georgia ave. and proceed north on Georgia ave. to disperse at the Montgomery Blair Stadium at Sligo Creek pkwy. and Wayne ave.

There, beginning at about 4 p.m. the ceremonies will be highlighted by the Governor's speech, a brief address by President Roy B. White of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and crowning of Miss Mary Jane Owens as "Miss Silver Spring."

When opened on Saturday, the underpass will boast two 36-foot drives, with 6-foot sidewalks on each side and a 10-foot island in the center. The clearance is 14 feet.

First car through the new viaduct will be one in which Governor Lane will be a passenger. The parade will follow immediately.

Members of the Silver Spring Board of Trade will discuss their organization's role in the development of the Georgia Avenue underpass over the television program, "Civic Washington Speaks," tonight at 8 o'clock on Station WNBW.

In Georgetown Hospital, both with possible skull fractures, were: Stanley Mercer, 25, Stockport, Ohio, and Richard Young, 18, Fleming, Ohio. Condition of both was listed as "serious."

The foreman, Dana Beebe, 28, of Watertown, Ohio, said the scaffold gave way from the rim of the silo, where it was secured.

Future School Needs Studied In Arlington

If Arlington County keeps growing at its present rate, its population will swell from the current 123,832 to a total of 166,000 by 1954, the Arlington School Board said yesterday.

Taking its figures from a school census conducted in the county this spring by the U. S. Census Bureau, the board used the population total to illustrate its need for expanded school facilities.

On Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the Thomas Jefferson Junior High School, 816 S. Fillmore st., the board will hold a public meeting to set an amount for a school construction bond issue. It is expected to be about four million dollars.

But the board said it was not basing future school needs on the 166,000 population figure for 1954—an annual increase of 8000 persons.

Instead, it is figuring Arlington's future growth on the basis of slower, prewar expansion. By that standard, Arlington would have a population of 142,000 by 1954, or 3000 new residents annually.

In elementary schools, this slower increase means in public school population, which the board feels is the most critical area, children would increase from this year's 8600 to an estimated 13,050 by the 1953-54 school year.

The classrooms needed to take care of them would increase from this school year's 210 to 408. At the same time, the teacher load per classroom would drop from the present average of 41 to 32 in 1953-54.

Board to Honor U. S. Employe

The Junior Board of Commerce yesterday announced a plan to award a plaque to a male Government employe in the Washington area for outstanding services during 1948.

It will be known as the Arthur S. Flemming Award in honor of the United States Civil Service Commissioner who retired August 30 to become president of Ohio Wesleyan University. The winner will be entered in competition for the national Junior Chamber of Commerce Good Government Award, made to the individual who has contributed most to good government from among nominees selected in every State and the District.

The board is asking members of the Federal Personnel Council to enter nominees from 21 to 35 from Government departments and agencies represented in the council, between November 1 and December 15. 25 Consulate Employes Board Ship for Russia Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 9 (AP).—Twenty-five employes of the closed Russian consulates in New York and San Francisco clambered up the gangplank of the Russian ship, the Nikolaev, to sail for home today.

The men, women and children came in two buses from New York. They carried their own handbags to the ship and all but one of the group had only "no comment" to questions about their future.

New York Also Wants Divorcee in Check Case

A former Bethesda, Md., divorcee, who is the mother of six children, yesterday was held under $1000 bond on a charge of cashing a $50 check under false pretenses.

She is Mrs. Isabel Marion Lebling, 48, who listed her home address as 675 Park ave., New York. Police said she also is wanted in New York on a similar check charge.

Municipal Court Judge Aubrey B. Fennell continued her case to September 30 at the request of the United States Attorney's office, which asked for more time to complete its investigation.

Mrs. Lebling was arrested Wednesday at the Shoreham Hotel, where she had registered August 31 under the name of Marx J. Adams. Police said they received the first complaint about her the day she registered. Officials of the Union Trust Co. gave them a check which she cashed after signing the name of Mrs. John W. Guider, wife of a Washington lawyer.

Investigators found other checks which she cashed after signing the names of Mrs. Peter J. Nee, jr.; Mrs. Frank E. Mason, Miss Margaret F. Reilly and others, according to Det. Sergt. John Luskey, of the police check squad, who arrested her. None of the women whose names she used, knew her, he learned.

The check which led to Mrs. Lebling's arrest was one she cashed August 6 at the Riggs National Bank after signing the name of Mrs. F. X. Callahan, sister of Daniel Callahan, vice president of the bank, Luskey said.

Luskey said he has been informed she also gave checks, signed with other names, to the Hamilton and Raleigh Hotels. He does not know how long she might have been in Washington before she registered at the Shoreham.

Mrs. Lebling was unable to make bond yesterday and was taken to the District jail. Her former husband, a Bethesda real estate man, said he has had no connection with her since their divorce in 1946.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys
If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Bosox Score 8 in Third, Blast Yanks Again, 9-4

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

IT IS ASSUMED by the prize ring's cognoscenti, which I understand to be a fancy word for know-it-alls, that 34-year-old Tony Zale must knock out the Frenchman Marcel Cerdan or there will be a new welterweight champion of the world on the evening of September 21 at Jersey City.

POVICH

The fight is scheduled for 15 rounds as required in all title bouts but Zale's own timetable calls for an earlier termination. Despite his handlers' proclamations that the aging champion is equal to a 15-round test with Cerdan, they admit there is no sense risking that long a fight against the energetic Frenchman who is favored by youth.

If a knockout is, indeed, the only way Zale is to retain his title then it appears he has no pushover in the hard-chinned Cerdan. In 110 professional fights, Cerdan has never been knocked out, and the only time he was ever off his feet was a few months back Anton Raadick had him down. Cerdan has been claiming since that it was more of a push than a punch that tipped him over.

HOWEVER, CERDAN has never encountered any puncher like Zale. Rocky Graziano was never knocked out until he confronted Zale. And then Graziano was thoroughly knocked out, not once but twice in their three engagements. The last seen of Graziano, he was flat of his back with his toes turned up, with Zale in a neutral corner waiting to conk him again if necessary, which it wasn't.

It was Graziano's punching power that skyrocketed him into top contention for Zale's title. Rocky never claimed to be a boxer, but he could hit and he was a threat to knock out anybody he met. In the enthusiasm for Graziano's hard hitting, however, one fact was overlooked: Zale could hit harder than Rocky, and did. If Cerdan gets hit by Zale, he will have been hit by the hardest thing that ever hit him.

In fact, Billy Soose gave the most accurate description of Zale's punching power after one bout with Tony in which he was the victim of the champ's body punches. "When Zale hits you in the body," said Soose, "it's like somebody sticking a red-hot poker into you and leaving it there. It keeps hurting for a long time."

I DISLIKE DEALING in the subjunctive, but if it is true that Cerdan has never met as hard a hitter as Zale it is equally true that Zale has never been confronted with as busy a fighter as the Frenchman. No slur on the French is intended, but it must be observed that Cerdan does not fight like a Frenchman, traditionally on the precise, cautious side.

Cerdan all but blew Georgie Abrams out of the ring in the first four rounds in Madison Square Garden a year ago, and Abrams is one of the top stylists. Fighting like a rough, tough American kid Cerdan swarmed all over Abrams in those early rounds and Abrams had to call on all of his ring lore to withstand him. By the time Abrams did solve Cerdan's perpetual motion style and was managing to outbox him, the Frenchman had the decision.

America thus far has not seen the real Cerdan, according to his manager, Lucien Roupp, who says "Your people will see a surprising Cerdan this time. Now he is ready. In his other American bouts he was a winner but he was troubled by injuries. Now he is in his best health. We are not worrying. Monsieur Zale should be worrying."

OF THE THREE fights Cerdan has lost, two of them have been on fouls and in the Frenchman's camp at Loch Sheldrake, N. Y., they are taking precautions against that. On the heavy sandbag that hangs from the ceiling during Cerdan's workouts, the head and body of a fighter is painted, and just at the belt line is the word "foul." Cerdan is learning to keep his punches up.

Unlike Graziano, who banked completely on his own heavy swinging against Zale and was twice knocked out, Cerdan is a lively figure in the ring. He's in constant motion with his shoulders moving and his head weaving, and Zale will have no easy target in contrast to his Graziano fights.

Right now, Cerdan is proud of his unmarked facial features despite 110 bouts, No welts, no cuts, no scars. Of course, the skeptics can always add "and no Zale in there with him, as yet."

Indians Go 13 Innings To Defeat Tigers, 3-2

Cleveland, Sept. 9 (AP).—Eddie Robinson singled in the thirteenth inning tonight to drive in a Cleveland Indians' run that beat the Detroit Tigers, 3 to 2.

For the second night in a row, Sam Zoldak earned an extra-inning victory by fine relief hurling for the Tribe.

A crowd of 43,373 celebrated "Ken Keltner night," and it was Ken who walked and scored the winning run.

Zoldak, who gave one hit in 3 1/3 innings last night, yielded only two in 4 1/3 tonight. Virgil Trucks, the loser, had two out when he walked Keltner. Then Thurman Tucker singled to center, and Robinson's base hit to right scored Keltner from second.

Bob Feller and Hal Newhouser matched brilliant pitching through the first seven innings, but Feller gave way for a pinchhitter in the seventh and Newhouser bowed out the same way in the ninth. Each had seven strikeouts, enabling Feller to tie his teammate Bob Lemon for the major league leadership with 129.

The Tigers turned rapid Robert's only walk into a run in the third when Connie Berry and Dick Wakefield followed up with singles. The Indians tied the score in the seventh when singles by Larry Doby, Walt Judnich and Jim Hegan filled the bases and Doby scored on Bob Kennedy's fly to center.

Doby's single extended his hitting string to 20 consecutive games.

A walk, sacrifice and Joe Gordon's single sent the Tribe ahead in the eighth, but Detroit came back in the ninth to even things at 2-2 on George Vico's double and Johnny Lipon's single to left with two out.

Nats Rained Out; 2 Today

The Nats' eight-game losing streak remained intact last night as rain washed out the third game of the current series with the Athletics.

This afternoon and tonight, however, the Griffs get a chance to extend their losses to 10 straight, which would be high for the season, when they meet the A's in another of those twi-night affairs.

The supper-time part of the bargain attraction starts at 6 p. m. The second game will be called at 10:45 p. m., regardless of the inning, to permit the Macks to catch an 11:15 train for Boston.

Sid Hudson will pitch for the daylight portion of the doubleheader with either Ray Scarborough or Milo Candini working under the lights.

Shortstop Sammy Meeks and Pitcher Calvin Cooper, both from Washington's Charlotte farm, joined the Griffs last night. Meeks will probably see action this evening.

'Skin Luncheon Group Meets at 1:30 Today

The luncheon committee of the Touchdown Club's Washington Redskin homecoming Monday at 12:30 p. m. in the Statler Hotel will meet today at 1:30 p. m. in the club's dining room. All members are asked to be present.

Bucs Chase Walters, Beat Redlegs, 6-1

Cincinnati, Sept. 9 (AP).—Pittsburgh's Pirates kept in the running for the National League Pennant by beating Cincinnati, 6 to 1, today in a game in which Bucky Walters, new Reds manager, took himself off the mound after a spell of wildness.

Elmer Riddle, formerly of the Reds, allowed only five hits in winning his twelfth game. He has lost nine.

Walters, working for his 199th victory in the majors, has not won a game this year and has been beaten three times. It was his first start since he became manager last August 6.

Highs Kickoff Season Tonight

Beating the colleges by a week, the Washington area high schools open their football season with two games tonight.

Gonzaga plays Mount Vernon at the Alexandria school's stadium, at 8 p. m., and Washington-Lee of Arlington invades Cumberland, Md., to meet Fort Hill High.

Gonzaga opened with a 26-13 victory over Mount Vernon last year. The Mounts still have Ken Everitt, Virginia's leading high school scorer of last season.

Everitt took the opening kickoff in 1947 and scooted 89 yards for a touchdown.

Fullback Tomy O'Keefe and Halfback Johnny Hogan are expected to spark the Gonzaga attack.

W-L defeated Fort Hill, 27-20, in their opener last year. Tackle Biff Johnson is the only letterman back from last year's W-L club which won 4 out of 10 games.

What a Life, Boy!

HE'S IN A LATHER—Jimmy Bivins is all lathered up, but not over his fight Monday with Ezzard Charles. He's just plain happy as a lark as he soaps up in the shower after his workout yesterday at Turner's Arena. Charles will drill at Turner's today 3 p. m.

Publicity Men Crossed Up, Bivins Loafs

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Jimmy Bivins made his publicity men look bad yesterday.

The tub thumpers had prepared a nice, gooey story about how Bivins "sipped through a brisk drill, powdering his sparring partners with lethal punches" at Turner's Arena, but Bivins didn't do any such thing.

Instead, the Cleveland heavyweight, who arrive here yesterday to complete preparations for his fight Monday with Ezzard Charles, simply loafed through his workout.

Handlers Remain Calm

While the publicity men viewed the situation with alarm, the Bivins handlers were calm.

"He's just afraid of being overtrained," chorused Manager Leonard Shane and Chief Trainer Ray Arcel. "He'll take a day off Friday and box for the last time Saturday. Watch him then."

Although his slow workout left much to be desired by the crowd of 300 who watched the show, Bivins was on the cocky side after his session.

"Just About Ready"

"I'm just about ready," he smiled. "How does Ezzard look? Didn't want to do to much out there today. Too hot, for one thing. Another thing, I've been training for about six weeks and don't want to leave my punch in the gym. Don't get paid for it there.

"I'll go six with Bob Ames (sparring partner) Saturday. I'll cut 'loose then, but not all the way. Saving that for Ezzard Monday."

About 1000 general admission tickets ($3) were sold at the Arena yesterday shortly after they were placed on sale. Sale will continue until Saturday at 6 p. m., when all tickets will be taken to Griffith Stadium.

Variety Club sponsors announced that all reservations must be picked up at Turner's by 6 p. m. Saturday.

Binks Outdoes Self, Sacrifices Into Triple Play

Toledo, Sept. 9—George Binks who lost a fly ball in the sun and cost the Washington Nats an important game in their stretch bid for the 1945 American League pennant, was up to his old tricks here tonight.

Binks, now playing for Toledo, of the American Association, came to bat against Indianapolis with two runners on base and orders to sacrifice. He sacrificed . . . himself and the two runners by bunting into a triple play.

His bunt was a pop fly to Pitcher Jack Hallett, who tossed to Shortstop Russ Peters to double Ex-Nat Ellis Clary scampering back to second. Peters completed a triple play by throwing to First Baseman Les Fleming and catching Butch Woyt off the bag.

Ninth Victory in Row Boosts Lead to 3½

Boston, Sept. 9 (AP).—Boston's pennant hungry Red Sox increased their American League lead to three and a half games over the runner-up Yankees today, thumping the New Yorkers 9-4, thanks to an eight-run spree in the third inning.

It was the ninth successive Sox victory and their twenty-fourth in their last 27 games.

A paid throng of 28,002 dolefully watched the McCarthy Maulers spot the Yankees three runs and then chortled as their favorites walked and batted their way to their eight runs.

Bob Porterfield, starting Yankee pitcher, went to pieces in the third. He got the first batter on a pop-up and couldn't retire another. He gave up three walks and three hits before he was removed for Tommy Byrne who was equally ineffective.

Byrne walked Billy Goodman, the first batter to face him and was lifted for Ed Lopat after getting three balls and no strikes on the next hitter. Four more Sox hitters faced Lopat before the Yankees could retire the side.

Kinder Goes All of Way

The game, in which Ellis Kinder went all the way for his eighth victory, started off as if the Sox were going to present it to the Yankees.

After George Stirnweiss had been thrown out, Tommy Henrich poled a long hit to centerfield which trickled off the fingertips of the running Dom DiMaggio for a triple.

Kinger struck out Hank Bauer but Johnny Pesky threw low to first after fielding Joe DiMaggio's bouncer, Henrich scoring on the error.

In the second inning, Billy Hitchcock booted Bobby Brown's roller and the Yankee third sacker reached first safely and scored on a triple down the right field foul line by the right-handed batting Gus Niarhos.

The Yanks added a legitimate tally in the next frame on singles by Henrich and DiMaggio and Yogi Berra's fly out.

Rommel Ejects Niarhos

Niarhos was ejected from the game by Plate Umpire Ed Rommel in the sixth inning for tossing his glove in the air during an argument over a decision at the plate.

Johnny Pesky, who had doubled with one out, came all the way home as Ted Williams pushed a slow grounder toward right field in an effort to outwit the extreme shift used by the Yankees.

The ball just glanced off the glove of Shortstop Phil Rizzuto, who was playing on the right side of second, for a hit.

Snuffy Stirnweiss retrieved the ball and quickly threw home. The sliding Pesky beat the throw and crashed into Niarhos.

Williams legged it safely to second. The Yankees, led by the furious Niarhos, argued that Pesky pinned Niarhos to the ground, interfering with him.

The victory was the 11th for the Sox over the Yankees in 16 games.

Barney Hurls No-Hit Game, Wins by 2-0

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—Rex Barney, strong-armed 23-year-old right-hander of the Brooklyn Dodgers, tonight pitched the first no-run, no-hit game of the 1948 National League season with a 2-0 victory over the New York Giants.

Barney struck out four. Only four Giants reached base against him, two via walks and two on errors. Seven balls were hit to the outfield.

Barney's second masterpiece is the first by a Dodger hurler since Ed Head blanked the Boston Braves without a hit April 23, 1946.

It also is the second in the majors this season. Bob Lemon of the Tigers hurled a hitless game against the Detroit Tigers last June 30.

The last time the Giants were held hitless was 33 years ago when Jimmy Lavender of the Chicago Cubs shut them out, 2-0, in the first game of a double-header on August 31, 1915.

The last National League no-hitter was turned in by Ewell Blackwell of the Cincinnati Reds against the Braves June 18, 1947.

The remarkable feature of Barney's performance was that he did not need any extraordinary assistance from his teammates as is usually the case in no-hit performances. There were no outstanding plays by either the Brooks' infielders or the outfielders. There was no need for them.

The vaunted Giant sluggers, who set a major league home run record of 221 last season and had propelled 149 out of the park this season, hit only five balls hard.

The victory moved the third place Dodgers within 3½ games of the first place Boston Braves. The fifth place Giants dropped 6½ games off the pace.

The triumph was Barney's thirteenth of the season. He has lost 10. Earlier this year he came within a whisker of achieving a no-hitter when he blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 1-0 on August 18, with one lone hit.

Breechen, Musial Give Cards New Life in 4-0 Shutout

St. Louis, Sept. 9 (AP).—Stan Musial and Harry Brecheen put life back into the St. Louis Cardinals tonight as they defeated the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 0, before 11,403 fans.

Stan hit safely four out of four trips, including a triple. He batted in two of the St. Louis runs and scored the other two himself.

Brecheen fanned 10 Cubs while limiting them to six hits for his sixth shutout of the season.

Chicago failed to reach second base on Brecheen until the ninth when Peanuts Lowry got there on his single and one by Hal Jeffcoat. Roy Smalley and Phil Cavaretta were chief victims of "The Cat's" strikeout ball, each swinging vainly or being called out on three occasions.

Bears Beat Boston, 28-14

Hershey, Pa., Sept. 9 (AP).—The Chicago Bears cut loose with three touchdown passes tonight to defeat the Boston Yanks 28-14 in an exhibition football game before an overflow crowd of 17,351 at the Hershey Stadium.

The Bears alternated their trio of passers, Sid Luckman, Johnny Lujack and Bobby Layne, with telling effect and all three clicked with touchdown heaves.

Lujack, former Notre Dame All-America, was the first to toss a scoring aerial. It came just one minute before the end of the half and went 43 yards into the waiting arms of Jim Keane, who stepped over the last marker.

Luckman hurled a 38-yard pass to Jim Boone for a tally in the third period and Layne, former Texas star, caught Don Kindt with a short one in the fourth and he raced 35 yards to payoff territory.

Marshall Says Harry Gilmer Will Make Debut Against Green Bay Packers Saturday Despite Threat of Suit

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 9.—Owner George Marshall of the Washington Redskins tonight removed any lingering doubt as to whether Harry Gilmer, rookie backfield star, will play against the Green Bay Packers here Saturday.

Marshall said emphatically that Gilmer will play in the exhibition game.

Gilmer, former Alabama passing ace, was the center of a recent controversy when he declined to play in the Chicago Cardinal-College All-Star game sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Gilmer refused to play unless the Tribune insured him for the full amount of his Redskin contract. He was reported to have signed a five-year contract with Washington for approximately $80,000.

The wiry little back, being groomed as an understudy to Sammy Baugh, did not play in the first two Redskin exhibitions because of a leg injury suffered in an intra-squad scrimmage.

Arch Ward, Tribune sports editor, said the Redskins and their opponent would be liable to a fine of $25,000 each if Gilmer were used in any exhibition game. He said this penalty was set up in the contract between the National Professional Football League and the Tribune Charities.

League Commissioner Bert Bell ruled recently, however, that Gilmer was correct in declining to play because of the Tribune's refusal to insure him for the full amount of the contract.

In Chicago, Ward said "the National Football League violated its contract with the Chicago Tribune Charities when Commissioner Bert Bell issued his ridiculous ruling qualifying his boy for preseason games."

Ward said further:

"If he plays Saturday, the Green Bay Packers and the Washington Redskins also will have violated the contract with the Chicago Tribune Charities. The terms of the contract covering the Gilmer incident are specific.

"It was recognized when the contract was drawn that a situation might arise in which a club owner with no sense of responsibility to the football public might prefer for his own selfish interests to invent excuses for withholding a boy from the All-Star squad.

"The entire matter will be handled by the law department of the Chicago Tribune Charities," Ward said.

Marshall said at a press conference here today that Gilmer will make a limited appearance in the Saturday game.

"Harry Gilmer is not in condition to play football at this time." The Redskin owner said in a statement. "But Harry feels that he owes it to the people of Birmingham (his home town) to appear.

"As a consequence, the coaches and myself have given him permission to take part in several plays in the game."

Nolan Ousts Bowie on 19th Hole

Defending Champion Bobby Brownell sidetracked C. A. Slater, 4 and 3, and Ralph Bogart, 1 up, yesterday to advance to the quarterfinals of the D. C. Amateur Golf tournament at Columbia Country Club.

Bogart, the turney co-medalist threw quite a scare into Brownell by going three up on the first eight holes, but the slim former G-Man calmly cut his Chevy Chase rival down. When Bogart flubbed an eight-foot putt on the eighteenth, Brownell was in.

Brownell faces Howard Nordlinger of Woodmont in the quarterfinals today at 1:40. Others who gained the quarterfinels yesterday are Parker Nolan who plays Don Miller, Billy Griffin, who faces Jim Gardiner, and Billy Shea who meets Bob Morris today.

Semifinals Saturday

Semifinals are slated for Saturday. The two finalists will hook up in 36 hole match play Sunday morning.

After beating Col. Paul Clifford, 5 and 4, in the first round, Comedalist Buddy Bowie was eliminated 1 up in a thrilling 19-hole match. Parker Nolan, prewar Maryland State Amateur king, administered the licking.

The two were even at 73 after touring the first 18. Nolan then fired a birdie three on the extra hole to win.

The Bogart-Brownell match drew most of the gallery. With his driver his best weapon, Bogart played par golf over the first eight holes and took a 3-up lead.

Brownell Pulls Even

Then Brownell began to hit the middle of the fairway and won the ninth, eleventh and thirteenth to pull even. He hit his peak on the 154-yard sixteenth when he holed a birdie deuce. Brownell's tee shot was 8 feet from the cup, and helped put him in the lead.

Bogart wasn't licked yet, though. He hammered in a birdie three on the seventeenth to pull even again.

On the eighteenth, Bogart's approach landed on the ledge of a sand trap. His chip shot was too long by 8 feet. Brownell, who was on the green in two, sank a 1-foot putt for four. Bogart's 8-foot putt, which would have given him four, was short by 3 inches.

Receiving Barns Stay

Trainers Now Responsible For Doping Cases in Maryland

Baltimore, Sept. 9 (AP).—The Maryland Racing Commission changed its rules today and put responsibility for the doping of horses back on trainers.

They may be ruled off Maryland tracks and their licenses suspended if postrace urine and saliva tests show their horses were drugged.

Maryland's controversial "receiving barn," with its prerace saliva tests, will be retained but there will be no special guards for each horse.

Under the receiving barn system, horses entered in a race are brought to a special stable about two hours before post time. They are given saliva tests and held under close guard until they step on the track for the parade to the post.

If the so-called mouse test of their saliva — the efficiency of which is also a matter of controversy—show drugs, the horse is scratched. The state stewards assume responsibility for the horse from the time he enters the barn and there is no action against the trainer.

Stuart S. Janney, jr., chairman of the commission, said the new regulations have the approval of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association.

The commission canceled a public hearing it had caled for next week on the changes. Janney said if there is a demand for one it will be held after horsemen have a chance to operate for a time under the new procedure.

The new rules were adopted because the commission discovered several horses which passed prerace tests this summer at some of the State's half mile tracks showed signs of doping in postrace tests.

Gilmer Plays On Saturday

about his feats, the Governor of Alabama and the Mayor of Birmingham have breathlessly watched him play.

Seeing a professional football game will also be new to Birmingham fans whose only other glimpses of the pro sport were in pick-up games, one of them involving Red Grange's All-Stars.

Three other members of the Redskins will be missing from Saturday's game. Halfback Eddie Saenz was left in California with a broken ankle; Halfback Howie Livingston still favors a damaged leg, and Halfback Dick Todd is in Washington resting from a slight concussion received in the 46-20 loss to the Cardinals in Denver.

The Redskins arrived in Birmingham this morning some 12 hours later than planned, due to a train wreck which blocked their journey outside of Chicago.

Saturday's game will start at 2 p. m. (4 p. m. EDT).

Carrier Boys Will See Redskin Picture

The moving picture, "Hail to The Redskins," will be shown to city and suburban carriers of The Washington Post at the Columbia Theater Saturday morning at 8:30 a. m.

Many of the great stars—past and present—appear in the picture. These include Sammy Baugh, Sid Luckman, Bob Waterfield, Steve Van Buren, Andy Farkas, Steve Bagarus, Wilbur Moore and others in brilliant action shots.

200 Entered In Swim Event

A record 200 entries are ready for the President's Cup Regatta swimming races which begin Saturday at 2 p. m. at Indian Spring Country Club.

The swimming events continue Saturday at 7 p. m., and Sunday at 7 p. m.

Among those who'll compete are Marie Corridonof who finished second to Ann Curtis in the Olympic 200-meter freestyle trials; Patsy McWhorter, a member of the Olympic squad; and Joe Marino and Johnny Simpson who finished third and fourth in the National A. A. U. diving championships at Akron last week.

Also on the weekend Regatta slate are the canoeing races. They start Sunday at 1 p. m. near the Watergate and end at the entrance to Tidal Basin.

Teams which will be represented are defending champion Pendleton Canoe Club of New York, Philadelphia, Inwood, Yonkers, New York, Dedham, Mass., and the local teams, Dempsey's, Potomac and Washington.

Sensational Colts Try for No. 2 Tonight

Chicago, Sept. 9 (AP).—The Baltimore Colts and the Chicago Rockets, the two "soft touches" of the All-America Conference last season, collidge at Soldiers Field tomorrow night with the Colts in the guise of a cinderella club and the Rockets apparently the same old Rockets.

Paced by their sensational quarterback rookie, Yelberton Abraham Tittle from Louisiana State, the Colts will be gunning for their second straight league win after an exhibition conquest of the champion Cleveland Browns and a 45-28 loop opening rout of the New York Yankees last Sunday.

It will be the third league start for the winless Rockets, who bowed to the Los Angeles Dons, 7-0, and were smothered by the Buffalo Bills, 42-7.

Expected to make his first appearance as a Colt tomorrow night is Back Lu Gambino, acquired this week after being declared ineligible by the University of Maryland.

The probable lineups:

Chicago Rockets		Baltimore Colts
Kuffel	L. E.	Poole
Bruts	L. T.	Blandin
Pearcy	L. G.	Darvegeu
Lamana	Center	Gorley
Coleman	R. G.	Garrett
Johnson	R. T.	Arloe
McCarthy	R. E.	North
Vacanti	Q. B.	Tittle
Livingstone	L. H.	Hillenbrand
Prokop	R. H.	Pfohl
Simmons	F. B.	Mertes

Dons, Dodgers Play Tonight

Los Angeles, Sept. 9 (AP).—The Los Angeles Dons, seeking their second win, and the Brooklyn Dodgers, trying for their first, open the All-America football conference here tomorrow night before upward of 40,000 fans in the memorial coliseum.

Don Coach Jimmy Phelan shifted his backfield starters today when he named Jeff Durkata, former speedster from Penn State, for the opening wingback berth to replace Harry Clarke, newly traded to the Chicago Rockets for Tackle Bill (Earthquake) Smith.

The contest affords an interesting angle in the appearance of the Brooklyn halfback, Bob Chappuis, and Don Right End Len Ford, both teammates on Michigan's great 1947 team.

Judge Can't Obtain Tickets, Gets Even by Fining Scalper

Boston, Sept. 9 (AP).—A District Court judge who couldn't get a ticket himself for the Red Sox-Yankees game last night fined an accused ticket scalper $520 today.

Police said Eugene Finn, 29, had 28 bleacher tickets for the game—even though upward of 25,000 fans were turned away.

Judge Frankland W. L. Miles, one of the disappointed, voiced his annoyance from the bench:

"How you get 'em, I don't know," he told Finn. "But in my opinion this is a lowdown business and not fair play to the baseball fans of Boston."

Testimony revealed the prevailing price for tickets among speculators ranged between $2 and $3 for 60-cent bleacher seats and as high as $15 for $1.80 grandstand seats.

Colorado Shooters Win

Lander, Wyo., Sept. 9 (AP).—Colorado marksmen, led by Gov. Lee Knous, beat Wyoming shooters to the draw yesterday to win the annual one-shot antelope hunt.

Each team of five killed three antelope while Arkansas trailed with two kills. The judges gave Colorado the victory because kills made by its team were made earlier than those by Wyoming.

Trainer Suspended

Winnipeg, Sept. 9 (AP).—Trainer-Owner Lou Marks of Lexington, Ky., was suspended today for 30 days by the stewards at Polo Park on the grounds that Neko, long-shot winner of Tuesday's sixth race, had been stimulated.

Welsh Faces 2d Seeded Billy Talbert

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 9 (U.P.)—American tennis stars, who have captured just about every major international prize this year, were highly favored to win their own National singles championships which begin tomorrow at the West Side Tennis Club.

Three members of the victorious United States Davis Cup team—Frank Parker of Los Angeles, Bill Talbert of New York, and Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, Fla.—and Wimbledon Champion Bob Falkenberg of Hollywood, Calif., ruled top choices to battle it out for the title. The quartet is seeded 1-2-3-4 in that order among the American competitors.

Talbert is the only one of the top four who will see first-round action tomorrow. He is expected to have little difficulty disposing of Barney Welsh of Rockville, Md. Top-seeded Parker, Mulloy and Falkenburg drew first-round byes.

Earl Cochell of San Francisco and Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, two of the four lower seeded Americans who are given an outside chance of upsetting the dope because of brilliant performances in recent Eastern tournaments, also will play first round matches.

Fifth-seeded Cochell is pitted against Ed Moylan of San Francisco, while seventh-seeded Seixas meets Edward McGrath of New York. Harry Likas of San Francisco, seeded sixth among the Yanks, and Dick Gonzalez of Los Angeles, seeded eighth, are in the second round as the result of byes.

In the women's division, top-seeded Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., Wimbleton queen, will open her defense of her crown in a first-round match against Charlotte Decker of Washington, D. C.

Third-ranked Mrs. Margaret Osborne du Pont of Wilmington, Del., will face Nina Irwin of New York in another first-round match and fourth-seeded Mrs. Patricia Canning Todd of La Jolla, Calif., will play Sylvia Knowles of Newport, R. I., second-seeded Doris Hart of Miami drew a bye into the second round.

D. C. Places First in Traffic Court Contest

Washington won top honors yesterday in a Nation-wide contest for improvements in practice and procedure in Traffic Courts.

The Nation's Capital tied for first place with Milwaukee for cities over 500,000 population in the American Bar Association's first annual contest, covering 579 cities in the United States. Awards were made to six population classes.

Four major improvements in safety and law enforcement which grew out of annual Traffic Court conferences in Washington were cited as contributing to this city's status at the top of the list.

Nathan M. Lubar, former State director for the District of Columbia of the American Bar Association and now a member of the Commissioner's Traffic Advisory Board, said the introduction of the new traffic code which will "modernize the whole system of enforcing traffic laws in the city," was a basis for the award.

Another outstanding achievement, he said has been the placing of the collateral system under the jurisdiction of the Traffic Courts, rather than under the Commissioners, for the first time in 20 years.

A traffic school for violators, which offers a course in safety education, was pointed out as a third worthy accomplishment in the District's traffic program.

The fourth is a regular schedule of Traffic Court conferences between District officials and members of traffic safety groups for studying problems of law enforcement. The public is frequently present to take part in a question-and-answer discussion.

Citizens Ask Speed On Hine School

The Southeast Washington Citizens Association last night urged early completion of plans for building a new Hine Junior High School on D st. between 7th and 8th sts. se.

In a resolution, the association called on the Board of Education to appropriate money in advance of the closing next spring of the Richard D. Wallach School, which now occupies that location, so that it may be razed to make way for the new building.

The present Hine Junior High School is located at 7th and C sts. se., where last night's meeting was held.

Parish School Enrollment Sets Record

District parochial schools opened yesterday and counted a record number of children.

While figures incomplete, the Washington archdiocese educational office predicted last year's enrollment—12,000—would be exceeded by 2000. Some schools were forced to turn away children because of registrations already 20 per cent above capacity.

The same crowded picture is true of parochial schools in Arlington and Alexandria and Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties.

The Rev. John S. Spence, education director of the 29 parochial and four private Catholic schools in Washington said the heavy enrollment is general throughout Greater Washington. The archdiocesan office here also has charge of schools in five Maryland counties.

Father Spence also expects an increased enrollment in the District Catholic high schools, he said. Last year's enrollment of 3800 may increase by 500, he said.

In the District, public school night classes will begin Monday at 7 p. m., with registration. Courses range from homemaking to trigonometry, Classes also are offered on Wednesday and Thursday evenings and are open to all adults. Students may register on those days also. Public day school students must have written permission, in advance, from the principals of the day schools in order to attend night classes.

Night courses may be taken at:

White schools—Bell Vocational School, Central Evening School, Chamberlain Vocational School, McKinley Evening School, Webster Americanization School and Western Evening School.

Negro schools: Cardozo, Armstrong, Margaret Murray, Randall, Francis, Garnet-Patterson, Phelps and Dennison.

For information on homemaking classes call the homemaking office, NA. 6000, Branch 614. Information on other courses is available at the Evening and Summer School office, CO. 2683.

British Report Jet Plane Beats Speed of Sound

London, Sept. 9 (NYHT).—Great Britain became the first nation to report that it had succeeded in pushing a jet plane through and beyond the speed of sound, in a terse announcement today from the ministry of supply.

An American plane, the XS-1 has already surpassed the speed of sound, but the XS-1 is a rocket plane, not a jet, and can neither take off under its own power nor make sustained flights. Presumably the British jet, the De Havilland 108, can do both. A rocket plane is one that carries all components of its fuel, while a jet draws oxygen from the air.

WE ARE THREE—a manager, a cook, a houseman; we know everything about running a large house or business, but have no cash to start one of our own. We even have lots of house furniture, including linen, washing machine, ironer (but no china or glass); so if accommodation given we could furnish a place. Is anybody in a position to employ and give us an opportunity to run his rooming or guest house or a small family hotel? If so, please write Box M-789, Washington Post.

Amvet Head Quits Builders' Group

Harold Alan Keats, new national commander of Amvets and a home building contractor, said yesterday he had allowed his membership in the National Association of Home Builders to lapse because he was "disgusted."

Keats

Keats, 35, who said he had been a general building contractor for the past 11 years at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., declared he had "tried to go along with the NAHB," but when they ignored his questions about housing he decided not renew his membership last year.

"I took this considered action," Keats said at his first press conference since his election last Sunday in Chicago, "because I was disgusted with the evasive tactics and economic double-talk of the home builders who have yet to give a straight answer to the housing cries of so many Americans.

"Over and over they have promised to come up with a workable solution for the low-cost housing needs of the ill-housed through private enterprise alone. They have not delivered."

Keats said at his press conference in the Hotel Willard that he had "the utmost faith in private enterprise," but "supplemental Federal help must be forthcoming in those areas of low rental construction where it is unprofitable for private enterprise to function."

He described the housing bill passed at the special session of Congress as inadequate, and recommended modernization of building codes "on the local levels."

Asked if this wouldn't cause trouble with local unions and building groups, Keats said, "I don't know, we're only keeping our eye on the ball."

He urged creation of a committee to investigate the economic possibilities of returning scrap to this country, and also suggested that veterans who were not in a position to take advantage of the educational benefits offered by the GI bill should receive additional housing loan credits.

Rent Protest Meeting Set At Greenbelt

Citizens of Greenbelt, Md., will meet at 8:30 o'clock tonight on Braden Field in a mass meeting to protest proposed rent increases for the Federal housing project.

The meeting has been called by the Greenbelt Cooperator, the town newspaper, to protest rent increases asked by the Public Housing Administration, which operates the project.

Among the speakers will be Mayor Thomas C. Canning, members of the town council, Town Manager Charles C. McDonald, Michael Salzman, president of the Greenbelt Mutual Home Ownership Corporation, whose 1200 member families are attempting to buy their homes in Greenbelt, and Sally Meredith, editor of the Cooperator.

The citizens contend the proposed rent increases actually would amount to 53 per cent and point out that Charles C. Cormack, PHA community manager, whom they credit with authorship of the new schedules has admitted the increased rents are not needed to cover operating expenses. Cormack said the increases would make Greenbelt rents comparable to other housing in the area, naming Naylor Gardens at 30th and Naylor rd. se. in particular.

D. C. Will Get 5-Digit Phones By Next April

Telephone company officials said yesterday they hope to complete the new program calling for addition of a digit to the numbers of certain exchanges by midnight April 23, 1949.

The exchanges affected by the plan, which is scheduled to extend throughout the city in time, include Lincoln, Ludlow, Kenmore and Locust.

"Unprecedented" growth of telephone subscribers leading to creation of new central offices has necessiated the change, it was said.

Under the new plan, the digit "3" will precede the present numbers in the affected exchanges. Thus, for example, Lincoln 9975 will become LI. 3-9975.

5 Suites Offered Cooperatively

The $200,000 eight-unit apartment building at 2500 Massachusetts ave. nw., adjoining the former Japanese Embassy, is being sold on a cooperative basis, Mrs. Shannon Clark, owner, revealed yesterday.

Mrs. Clark, wife of Rear Admiral Joseph J. Clark, bought the building last January

Only six of the eight apartments will be sold, Mrs. Clark said, adding that she intends to retain two for the use of her family. Another apartment, currently vacant and undergoing remodeling has been sold already.

Present occupants of the five available apartments will be given first opportunity to purchase.

Court proceedings were necessary several months ago to give Mrs. Clark the two apartments for her own use.

In both cases, the tenants appealed the decision and the cases are now under consideration by the Municipal Court of Appeals.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl Is Torn Between Love of Her Fiance And Desire to Pursue Careerist Gamble That Would Block Marriage; What to Do?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl 19; I've had a good family life, two years of college and everything within reason that I've ever wanted. Now my first real problem has appeared and I am very much bewildered.

Several months ago I met Dave, with whom I fell in love, and now we are engaged to be married. Until recently I was very happy in the thought of being his wife, but now I have strong doubts as to whether I should marry him.

An opportunity has presented itself for me to go to California to live and make a career for myself. This appeals to me greatly, except for the fact that I would have to give up Dave to accept it. I believe I love Dave as much as I am capable of being in love, and I know that I couldn't find a man who would be a better husband.

Is She Romantic or Too Practical?

DAVE has good character, good looks, a steady job and is ambitious. He would do anything in the world for me; but I don't see life through rose-colored glasses, and in fact am so practical about him and myself that I wonder if I could make him really happy and be happy with him.

My life hasn't been average so far, and I don't want an "average" marriage. I feel that Dave and I are compatible; but not that he is the only man in the world for me. I've always wanted a man who has all his sterling qualities, but with perhaps a bit more imagination and glamor.

Am I being a romanticist to think I could find such a person? Or am I not really in love, to consider leaving Dave thousands of miles behind and starting a life without him? I have a strong feeling for him and would miss him very much; but is that love? I must make a decision soon, so please advise. N. E.

Unrealized Quest for Independence

DEAR N. E.: The real meaning of your bewilderment is that you don't know what you want, beyond a desire to escape the tedium of living at home, subordinate to parents, and/or grinding away at getting an education in the higher brackets of learning.

That's why you are hovering between a choice of marrying Dave or taking a flyer at having a career in California. Both opportunities have an escapist appeal for you at present, when weighed against the humdrum prospect of plugging away at a college course until it's completed, two years hence.

In my opinion you are a very adolescent 19, which is to say, less mature and more vacillating even than your age would warrant, and possibly you've been "babied" by parents to a degree that can't be remedied unless and until you leave home to undertake adult-type responsibilities without their firsthand aid or interference.

Needs Framework for Finding Self

NOW that I think of it, you make no mention of your parents' views when stating your "problem," which suggests that you and they may be subjectively at war about your urgent striving to attain adult prerogatives; and if such is the case, my advice to the whole family is to settle on a reasonable compromise.

Rather than marry Dave in the immediate future, on the risky basis of a few months' acquaintance, and rather than abort your education to try your luck at earning endeavors, it were more

Until He Can Afford Steaks

Planning Will Stretch Your Meat Dollars

By Norma Foust Lanum

FEED your man well! That's an age-old formula for matrimonial bliss. But how can you do it, today's homemaker asks, when hubby's pay envelope doesn't afford enough for the favorite masculine dishes, steaks and chops?

The answer is just a little planning. With calorie counting, strict budgeting and new recipes you can bring him meals even Mom couldn't match when prices were half as high. That's what a group of Washington wives are learning in a class on "How to Meet Your Meat Problem." The course is sponsored by the Red Cross Nutrition Service and meets every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon at Walsh House, 2020 Massachusetts ave. nw. The instructress is Mrs. Milton E. Miles, chairman of the Nutrition Service.

Typical of the students attending these sessions is a bride of seven months, Mrs. Robert T. Haase. She learned to cook at home from her mother and thought she was doing fairly well.

"But that was a far cry from being left entirely on my own, having to plan everything we eat and do all the marketing," the young matron confessed.

Buying meat was her big problem. "At first I got a little panicky at the butcher's counter," she said, "but now I'm beginning to recognize the best buys." After the meat saving course she'll know just how much animal protein she and her husband really require and she'll be able to figure the exact amount to buy in order to get the necessary food value.

Nutrition Arithmetic

The first session of the meat class was devoted to nutrition arithmetic. Mrs. Haase learned that even though she has only two to cook for she can save many an extra penny by planning meals for a week or even two weeks in advance.

For example, if she bought a 4 or 6-pound chuck roast and butchered it at home she could salvage meat for main dishes for as many as eight meals for her small family.

"I would never have thought of making soup for just my husband and me," Mrs. Haase admitted. But after the soup cooking demonstration at the meat class she's convinced homemade soups are excellent budget stretchers.

How to Plan

Class members are taught how to plan meals—with pencil in one hand and calorie chart in the other; how to get the most for their dollar at the butcher's counter, and how to cook meat, meat "extenders" and meat substitutes so that hubby's appetite for steak is forgotten forever, or at least until he can again afford it.

But the instructress doesn't dismiss the meat problem here. Modern wives can save a little extra if they take care in serving the meat. For instance, when the housewife serves a roast, she shouldn't put the whole piece on the serving platter and let the family whack away at it until they can't eat any more, that is not if she's really interested in cutting down food bills.

It's much smarter to slice the roast in the kitchen, allowing a fair sized serving for everyone. The remainder of the roast can be saved for another main meat dish while the family fills up on the vegetables and salad.

Another tip Mrs. Miles passes along to her class members is not to ask the butcher for a soup bone when they plan to make soup. Just ask for regular bones. They're much less expensive and have the same amount of flavor. Then if some extra meat is desired, just add a few leftover scraps.

Yes, there are pointers and pocketbook short cuts in every phase of meat preparing. And when they're taught in practical courses like this, every housewife should be able to serve nutritious fare and still keep within her food budget.

By Tom Kelly—The Washington Post

REMEMBER when porterhouse steak sold for 29 cents a pound? In those days you could have meat for dinner every day and still have money left in the grocery allowance for other basic foods. But today it's all that the average woman can do to serve her family meat just occasionally. To help Washington housewives keep a grip on their purse-strings and still serve nutritious meals the Red Cross is sponsoring a course in "How to Meet Your Meat Problem."

Shown above, Mrs. Denys Smith (standing) and Mrs. Clifford Hulme spend part of the course's first session glancing over meat advertisements in 1932 newspapers. The class members, over 40 of them to date, meet every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon in the laboratory-lecture room in the basement of the old Walsh House that has been taken over by the Red Cross. They learn all phases of meat buying, preparing and serving, with the stress on thrift. The enrollees include young brides who feel defenseless against today's meat prices as well as veteran homemakers always anxious to pick up new pointers on stretching the food budget. The Red Cross is accepting new applications for the course and for a similar one which will be conducted in the evenings for working housewives. For more information call the Red Cross Nutrition Service, Hobart 6800

MRS. MILTON E. MILES, instructress of the Red Cross class on "How to Meet Your Meat Problem," devotes the first afternoon of her course to nutrition arithmetic. You gain nothing from strict budgeting, she asserts, unless you know beforehand the basic food requirements of each member of your family

About Washing Chintz Drapes

I would like to wash some glazed chintz drapes rather than have them dry cleaned. Will you tell me how I can preserve the glaze or replace it if laundering is likely to lose it? If you suggest starch, what type would be best? My drapes are lined.

C. S.

Glazed chintzes all tend to lose their sheen with use and washing—even with dry cleaning they will in time become less lustrous. The glaze cannot be restored at home, but by washing and ironing as directed below they should look well for some time.

If the drapes are very soiled, soak them for several hours or overnight in cool water to remove and loosen the soil. Wring and place in the washer of lukewarm water and mild soap flakes. Wash only long enough to clean them. Rinse thoroughly, wring and starch lightly. Use a starch which comes in dry form and prepare it as for boiled starch according to the directions on the package. As it cooks, add to the starch a square or two (depending upon how much starch you need) of the wax-like product which comes in a small blue box and has a delicate fragrance. It is sold where laundry starches are sold and it helps to give a satiny glaze to fabrics when ironed.

Dry the drapes thoroughly, hanging in such a way that they dry straight. When thoroughly dry, sprinkle, roll tightly and allow to stand several hours or overnight. When you iron them, use a hot iron and iron on the right side using heavy pressure to bring up the glaze. The material should be fairly damp for the best results. Iron the glazed side until thoroughly dry, press the lining and hang straight again to dry hems, seams thoroughly. Stretch seams and hems as you iron to keep the curtains straight.

My granddaughter decorated my wallpaper with lipstick! What to do? E. D.

If the paper is not new or just freshly cleaned, clean the area around the stains with the dough-type cleaner to avoid a ring when a paste is applied to the stains to remove them. To make the paste, mix cornstarch with carbon tetrachloride or any one of the well known brands of spot removing cleaning fluids. Cover the marks with a thick layer of this and allow

Working Girl Should Enjoy Lunchtime

By Ida Jean Kain

Lunchtime can be a happy interlude in the day's occupation. But enjoying lunchtime is an art, and it's well worth cultivating. I interviewed some smart working girls, and got their ideas on how to have fun at lunch and save wear and tear on the nervous system.

One suggested variety in luncheon companions. Always eating with the same group can become as monotonous as always ordering the same food. Another believes in eating at a different place once a week and making an occasion of lunch. The building cafeteria may be all right three fourths of the time, but now and then break routine: Another suggestion—on days when work and people seem to be crowding in, take time out for a breather. Have lunch alone and enjoy a large slice of peace and quiet.

Shop Talk Banned

One girl revealed that she and three colleagues had organized a society for the prevention of shop-talk at lunch. They get together once a week and have a fine time discussing everything imaginable—except work. The group is a closed corporation for, as she explained, it's hard to find people who'll just relax and eat and be sociable.

To enjoy the lunch period, shift into neutral. Don't run in high, making it a rush hour. Some girls use lunchtime for everything but eating. They buy hats, hose and trinkets — and maybe exchange them the next day—and tear back to the office, breathlessly triumphant. Then comes the 3 o'clock

WIFE STAYED HOME—Elton M. Manning, 2626 14th st. nw., worked by himself to "do up" 30 cans of peaches. It was "husband's night" at the D. C. Canning Center

TERRY FILLS IN—Daddy was sick, so Terry Lee, 3½, came along with his mother, Mrs. Norman Shelton, 6122 N. Washington blvd., Arlington. Mrs. Shelton put up 26 cans of peaches at the District center, earlier canned 104 cans of corn and 36 of string beans at the Herndon, Va., cannery.

To Fill Family's Winter Larder

He Too Can Toil Over Hot Stove At District's Canning Center

By James B. Graham
Post Reporter

After "slaving away over a hot stove all day," local housewives can place their husbands in the same spot in the evening—on Thursdays and Fridays at least—the husbands willing.

If the wives will supply the husbands (and the necessary fruits or vegetables), the District Community Canning Center will furnish the hot stoves.

The center, located at 1640 Wisconsin ave. nw., keeps late hours on those nights to accommodate husbands and/or working wives.

Several dozen hot, tired, but diligent husbands toiled away among string beans, tomatoes and peaches last Friday night to add to the little woman's winter larder. And not a one among them cut a finger or burned a thumb.

Gordon P. Angle, an employe of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics and a three-year veteran of the canning center, summed up the situation very well, saying: "We all get a big kick out of this work, and I have to do something with the vegetables I grow which we can't eat during the summer."

Proud of Applesauce

Angle, who lives at 503 Arlington Village, Arlington, was canning tomato juice at the time. From two bushels of tomatoes he produced 34 cans of juice.

He did it all by himself, Mrs. Angle, who works at the State Department, said. She came along only to supervise and to keep him company.

The Angles have prepared a total of 175 cans this summer, including peaches, string beans and applesauce, as well as the tomatoes. Angle was particularly proud of his applesauce. The 55 cans he derived from two bushels of the fruit constituted an exceptional yield, he bragged.

Supervising the 80 persons who are allotted canning time each day is 54-year-old George Christy, a veteran of 15 years canning experience. An employe of the District of Columbia since 1933, he has been at the canning center during all of its six years of operation. He is assisted by seven employes who operate the various pieces of canning machinery, clean the premises and make appointments.

Peaches His Specialty

One husband, Elton M. Manning, of 2626 41st st. nw., was on his own. His wife stayed home with the children, he said. Manning, an exterminator, was putting up about 30 cans of peaches for winter eating.

This is the second year he has availed himself of the cannery and he is sold on it. "It helps others as well as us," he declared.

Manning referred to the tithe deducted by the cannery for use of its equipment. One can of each ten is taken when the cans are

Circus Premiere Setting For Another of Hollywood's Ermine, Champagne Parties

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 9.—The gayest outing hereabouts was the gala premiere of Ringling's Circus, impressarioed by a group of stars to raise money toward a 100-bed wing in local St. John's Hospital. A score or more movie headliners put on individual circus acts and a whole section of seats were sold for $100 apiece.

Preceding the performance, Peter Rathvon, one of the bigwigs in RKO, and his wife gave a circus supper at their enchanting house high in the hills back of Hollywood. The terrace overlooks the valley, and tucked below the terrace is a swimming pool, with its accompanying dressing rooms. Entering the driveway, circus atmosphere hit the eye. The walls were covered with giddy posters, a Good Humor wagon was parked next to the kitchen entrance and the main door was opened by a butler dressed as a clown. It was broad daylight when the guests, some in evening dress, some in circus getup, assembled. Edging the terrace was a real popcorn wagon, complete with whistling gas jet and striped pink and white paper bags, a grill where hamburgers and hot dogs were cooked, a huge table covered with dishes filled with salads and relishes, a huge punch bowl filled with pink lemonade which proved to be champagne.

In the Limelight

A MEXICAN strumming a guitar sauntered among the guests. The host was dressed as a ringmaster, complete with top hat, whip and walrus mustache. Among the more colorfully attired was Atwater Kent, the amiable millionaire who devotes his whole time to giving parties. He wore a black and white checked suit, straw sailor, loud tie and a little finger ring set with coffee diamonds and rubies. Half the ladies in Kent's immediate vicinity kept a thoughtful eye on the sparkling bauble.

Rosalind Russell and Louella Parsons, who made a radio announcement at the circus, were gotten up to kill—Miss Russell in sweeping cerise chiffon stoled with ermine, a rhinestone-set beanie sprouting birds of paradise atop her dark hair; Miss Parsons in white sprinkled with silver sequins plus a halo of white tulle with an immense white aigrette springing rigidly two feet into the air.

—Sonia Henie, though in conventionally cut black satin, whooped it up with a halo of pink feathers, and Jeanette MacDonald matched her deep tan with a white dress with inverted tan panels. Barbara Bel Geddes was just about the only actress minus a bangle or sequin. In pale pink chiffon encrusted with satin flowers she looked like any pretty young girl, except for a strange dark foundation makeup, a mink stole with convenient pockets at each end.

Stars on Parade

AT THE circus the stars enjoyed themselves thoroughly. The first move was an opening parade, all atop elephants, starting with Margaret O'Brien and ending with the nature boy himself on the caboose pachyderm. In between was Sabu, Greer Garson, such pretties as Celeste Holm, Esther Williams, Connie Moore, Eleanor Powell.

Hedda Hopper, her elegant nether extremities encased by black tights, sat in a howdah tapping out her column. Walter Pidgeon, who's the most unspoiled of stars, hung from his knees on a flying trapeze. Lex Barker, the new Tarzan, rode solo on an elephant. Bill Powell and his wife, Diana Lewis, put on a Punch and Judy act.

Lucille Ball did a bareback riding act on a real horse, while Ronald Reagan, Edgar Bergen had the time of their lives as barkers. Danny Kaye and Harpo Marx chased each other round the ring between numbers, Kaye carrying a small plant, Marx with a watering pot. At each turn, Kaye zipped behind a curtain, emerged with a larger plant, one of his garments missing. At the final turn, Kaye staggered out in his shorts clutching an eight-foot aspidistra.

Bob Hope Referees

MEANWHILE Bob Hope refereed a boxing match between "Gorgeous George," a local character who goes in for velvet trunks and other nifty trappings, and Bert Lancaster, who is reputedly the new Clark Gable. Hope's assistant was a midget who dashed between the boxers' legs and Hope himself, attired in striped pants and top hat, and interrupted the fisticuffs at every crucial point by stepping up with a telephone, announcing either Lancaster or Gorgeous George was wanted on long distance.

It was wonderfully hysterical, and over $175,000 was cleared for the hospital. Later, such as had any strength left repaired to Romanoff's for supper.

Bulgarian Fete Celebrates Liberation Day

The reception held at the Bulgarian Legation yesterday afternoon was the fourth anniversary of Liberation Day in Bulgaria and the first party to be held at the legation since the recognition of the Bulgarian government last November.

A similar celebration was held August 23 at the Romanian Legation. Liberation Day in both countries marks the overthrow of the Nazi regime.

Yesterday's party was given by the Bulgarian Minister and Mme. Mevorah. Cocktails and a buffet supper were served between the hours of 5:30 and 7:30 o'clock. Guests were drawn for the most part from diplomatic circles.

Among those who accepted invitations were the Ambassador of France, Henri Bonnet; the British Ambassador, Sir Oliver Franks; the Minister of Italy, Mario di Stefano; the Ambassador of Burma, U So Nyun; the Ambassador of Russia, Alexander S. Panyushkin; the Ambassador of India and Lady Rama Rau, the Ambassador of Pakistan and Mme. Ispahani, the Polish Ambassador and Mme. Winiewicz, and the Swiss Charge d'Affaires, Werner Fuchss.

Also, the Swedish Charge d'Affaires, Alexis de Aminoff; the Hungarian Charge d'Affaires, John Florian; the Charge d'Affaires of Israel and Mrs. Heyd and the Ambassador of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Outrata.

Do You Know How to Wash Fine Gloves?

DO YOU know how to wash your fine doeskin, chamois or washable leather gloves? Many women do not, say experts of one of the country's largest glove manufacturing companies (Kislav), who perfected the washability process for doeskin gloves.

Never attempt to wash leather gloves unless they are stamped "washable," they say, and never try to wash leather gloves which have been dry-cleaned. Do not let your gloves become too soiled before washing them. Then proceed as follows:

MAKE SUDS . . . Use special glove wash preparation or mild soap and luke warm water. Suds gloves up and down as you would a handkerchief. If soap is used, rinse in clear, warm water.

PAT OUT MOISTURE . . . Never squeeze or wring out gloves. Pat out excess moisture between folds of a thick, fluffy bath towel.

BLOW HARD . . . When excess moisture is removed, turn back cuffs and blow into gloves to smooth them. Then straighten fingers and hang over towel to dry. Keep away from heat!

SOFTENING PROCESS . . . When gloves are nearly dry, put them on and work them gently on the hands. This makes them soft, pliable.

A PRIM little blouse for a trim little suit. Whether you're school, office or home bound this fall, you'll want a blouse or two in your wardrobe. This one, of white rayon crepe, is feminine and dainty, will look well with a simple skirt or dressmaker suit. Tiny rows of tucks on the front are interspersed with bands of the same lace that trims the neckline and cuffs. Available in sizes from 32 to 38, at Joseph R. Harris

Clinics Offer Aid

Child's Incorrigible Conduct May Call for Psychiatric Aid

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

There are behavior problems which may be beyond the capacity of the parent or personal physician to solve. A parent is always too close to the problem, and too wedded to her own methods to see how they might be improved.

Such parents should make greater use of the services of psychiatrists, psychologists and psychiatric social workers to aid them in solving puzzling, incorrigible conduct.

A psychiatrist is a physician who has had special training in behavior problems, social and family relationships. He brings this knowledge to the aid of children who are manifesting conduct that is outside the range of the natural, the typical or the developmental.

Tell You Why

A psychologist is also a specialist in human behavior but not necessarily a physician. He can interpret the why of children's behavior and is especially helpful in doing those testings of skill and performance which give the child an intelligence rating and thus clarify the why of his behavior.

The psychiatric social worker studies the child, his home and his parents and finds in these interlocking relationships the threads which are twisted. She sees with the unbiased eyes of an outsider and her estimate of a situation goes a long ways to uncover the mystery of the child's disturbing behavior.

Where to Find Them

Now, where shall these services be found, you ask? Consult first your classified telephone directory under Clinics. Then your nearest college or university can help you to find psychologists who are skilled in I. Q. testing. And your own doctor, or local hospital may be helpful.

Some such clinics are under the auspices of the local Board of Education and they would give information about them. If connected with the social agencies of the city, the Community Chest would be the proper place to inquire.

Parents should be more familiar with the services such clinics have to offer and make wider use of them. The pity is that there are not more of such helps to be had.

Muted, Sophisticated Tones Lead in Color Popularity

Knowing that American women love color and have definite color wishes when they decorate their homes, House and Garden makes a study of current and coming colors each year and announces the results in the September issue.

Current preferences are discovered through the Rahr Color Count. This year the results are more significant than ever before because an infinitely larger number of votes were cast: 400,000 in all, with 115,000 women participating. House and Garden found that people are growing tired of the tan and beige scale, and that maroon and wine tones are on the wane. "In their place are a variety of cool water-greens, blue-greens, and a clear high-pitched yellow-green that has some of the freshness and excitement of the first leaves of the willow."

The ten Current Colors, as published by House and Garden in its September issue, are:

Forest Green
Avocado Green
Sprout Green
Geranium Red
Sweet Pink
Purple Heather
Citron Yellow
Kingfisher Blue
French Blue
Stone Gray

Colors coming up, already appearing in the palettes of pace-setting decorators and designers, called forecast colors by House and Garden, are on the whole muted and sophisticated in tone. There are 12 of them:

Bracken Green
Willow
Bright Navy
Sandalwood
Copper
Madeira
Mustard
Brick Flame
Charcoal Purple
Quartz Pink Parchment

House and Garden's suggestions of best ways to make color count stress "continuity" and "surprise." The unifying thread of color from one room to another, thus relating each room to the next, creates a feeling of continuity. Matching floors and walls also achieves it. Then comes the surprise element—fresh, changeable accents that give each room its individual climate.

Survey Counts Women's Kitchen Hours

The average American housewife spends 35 per cent of her waking hours in the kitchen, according to one expert in the autumn issue of Mademoiselle's Living magazine. The average husband stands a better chance of keeping her happier (and getting better meals) if he supplies her with the latest equipment and makes sure the kitchen is decorated in bright colors, the writer adds.

it to remain on the stains until dry, then brush away. This can be repeated if it seems the oily part of the lipstick has not all been removed the first time. When the oily portion is removed, sponging the stain with denatured alcohol will possibly remove remaining color. If the color is not completely removed with the alcohol, then you could bleach it out by applying household bleach as it comes from the bottle. This will remove the color in the wallpaper, but the color can usually be filled in quite easily, when the paper is thoroughly dry, with crayons or water color paints. Apply the bleach with a paint brush, being careful not to apply so much that it runs down the wall. Be sure to have a blotter handy to catch any excess.

How do I remove rust from a bathtub? E. D.

If the stain has been caused by a dripping faucet which has also roughened the surface, you possibly cannot completely remove it, but one or more of these treatments should lighten it. Make a poultice of cleansing powder and kerosene and allow to remain on the stain over night. Also, stains can be taken out by soaking with weak laundry bleach. Moisten a cloth with the weak bleach solution and place over the spot, allowing to stand until cloth is dry. If stain is not all removed, repeat. If these treatments are not completely successful, there are on the market rust removal preparations which are very effective. They can be purchased in hardware stores and the houseware's departments of most department stores.

Could you tell me which is the simplest and cleanest way to wash diapers at home? M. C. S.

Wash diapers in the washer using very hot, soapy water. To a washer full of water add one cup of household bleach to whiten and disinfect them. When thoroughly washed, rinse three times to remove every trace of the bleach. Dry them out-of-doors, if possible. Vigorously shaking each diaper as you hang it will also help to keep them soft.

slump. They'll never marry the boss!

But even worse than the shoppers are the girls who bring the office to the lunch table. Leaning agitatedly forward, they hash over their mornings—even before ordering—and keep it up straight through dessert. Another species of shop talkers are the high-powered executives who feel they must utilize every minute. Eating is incidental—their main dish consists of indigestible details on revising the work schedule, clearing up the backlog of correspondence, etc. Heaven protect us from on-edge eaters!

Misguided Workers

The nose-to-the-desk girls are misguided too. They are perpetually in a state of subdued frenzy—"Haven't time to go out; just bring me a sandwich and a cup of coffee." Yet it has been proved that a person works more smoothly if she breaks the work and takes time out to relax.

A well-balanced meal, with digestible conversation, can increase afternoon efficiency, protect disposition and beauty, and—who knows—might help a gal get a well-balanced meal ticket!

Calories? Well, if you're trying to take off 10 pounds, keep the calories on the safe side of 500. You can have a good lunch for 450 calories . . . and reduce. If you need to gain, round out the lunch and relax. And if you're a happy medium—congratulations!

Park Tours Scheduled This Week

A tour of Washington's Civil War defenses, an "Indian hunt," "jungle jaunt," bird observation walk and canal barge trips are scheduled this weekend by National Capital Parks.

The annual tour of the principal forts and battery positions which encircled Washington during the Civil War begins in special buses leaving 1416 F st. nw. at 9 a. m., or private cars meeting them at MacArthur blvd. and Chain Bridge rd. at 9:30. Picnic lunches should be carried. The tour ends at 5 p. m.

Evidences of Indian habitation will be hunted near the University of Maryland from 3 to 5 p. m. Sunday, the group meeting at the United States Bureau of Fisheries Building on the campus. Chartered buses leave 1416 F st. nw. at 2:15 p. m. Dr. W. F. Jeffers of the university will direct the search and display his collection of Indian materials found in this region.

The Roosevelt Island Jungle Jaunt will be held from 2:30 to 5 p. m. Saturday, directed by Park Naturalists Kenny Dale and Robert Herr. The group meets at the foot of Wisconsin ave. nw. There is a 25-cent ferry fee for transportation to the island.

The D. C. Audubon Society will assist Park Naturalist Drew Chick in conducting a bird observation walk along the C. & O. Canal parkway from 7 to 8 a. m. Saturday. Autumn migrants should be seen. The walk begins at Stop 30 on the Glen Echo carline, MacArthur blvd. and Walholding rd.

The canal barge leaves Foundry Branch dock at Canal rd., Foxhall rd. and M st. nw. at 2 p. m., and will return from Lock 5, Brookmont, at 4:30 p. m. Saturday and Sunday. Lock 5 is near Stop 24 on the Glen Echo carline. Barge tickets may be purchased at 1416 F st. nw. during the week. A park naturalist or historian will narrate the trips.

Dad Helps With Canning

finally checked out after the last step in the procedure.

Cans thus derived are distributed to various institutions maintained by the District.

Aside from this, the only charge made is 4 cents, cost price, for each can used.

Mother Brings Escort

Pinch hitting for his father, sidelined by illness, was 3½-year-old Terry Lee Shelton of 6122 N. Washington blvd., Arlington. Terry's father, Norman Shelton, a salesman for the Heurich Brewery, had been sick all week, but his mother came anyway last week to get her canning done.

As Mrs. Margie Shelton said, she had the appointment, and if it wasn't keep, she would have to apply all over again and, lose at least a week's time.

Terry Lee sat on a stool, an empty crate, the work bench and finally a chair, "helping his mother. He did try to peel a peach for her, too, but mother didn't think much of that. So, munching a cookie (or several), he supervised the job.

166 Cans a Day

Mrs. Shelton, who put up 26 cans of peaches, was just adding the finishing touches to a busy day. Earlier, she had canned 104 cans of corn and 36 of string beans at a similar cannery in Herndon, Va. She went there, she said, because the corn season is over at the Wisconsin ave. cannery.

Christy explained that different products are scheduled for processing each day. He expects to see 80,000 cans turned out by the plant before October 15 when it will cease operating for the year.

Reservations may be obtained by calling DI. 600, EXtension 2523, and please don't come without having a reservation, Christy warned.

ALONG with a lot of face lifting, the Sheraton has appointed a new chef de cuisine. His name is Francois La Fuerne. Among gastronomic distinctions Francois claims is the fact that he has served royalty. When King George VI visited this country, La Fuerne was assigned to prepare his whole menu.

Francois was born in Illinois of French parents. At 19 he apprenticed to Chef Jean Stratton of the Broadmoor in Colorado Springs. Since that time he's worked in some of the better hotels in the country and in 1943 he joined the Wardman Park staff.

To get back to the face lifting at the Sheraton. According to plans now made, a street entrance will be made for the Georgian room. If you've ever had to wander through the labyrinth of halls in quest of repast at the Sheraton you'll realize that this is a step in the right direction. Until the entrance has been made, dinner will be served in the lounge.

Tomorrow night you can have your music and dancing early or late. Johnny Long will bring his orchestra into town for a date on the Mount Vernon moonlight cruiser. They'll go out for the first time at 8:30 and return at 11:30. The second cruise will be scheduled for midnight and will last until 3 a. m.

Speaking of orchestras, there will be a couple of other changes around town this week. Warren Davis and his orchestra took over the Wardman Park Metronome Room Wednesday night. Tonight will be the last night for Basil Fomeen, one of the nicest fellows you could meet in the music business, at the Carlton. He'll be replaced by Phil Wayne and his orchestra, with Pat Crowley as vocalist.

BILLIE HOLLIDAY, one of the hottest jazz singers in the country, opens at the Bali tonight for a limited engagement. Billie has sung with Artie Shaw, Count Basie and Louis Armstrong, among others.

The Balalaika will open for the season next Thursday night. The name is now the Continental Balalaika. A few other things have been changed. The bandstand will be larger, and there'll be more American food on the menu, in addition to the old Balalaika favorites. The orchestra will be a string affair with a few female faces gracing the stage. A girl violinist has been booked for a featured spot.

"Wimpy" Hall, manager of the Watergate Inn, has taken to popping a bit of philosophy onto the luncheon menus at the inn. Sometimes it's advice to the lovelorn, another time a comparison between his first love and his first taste of Dutch apple pie (in which the former comes out second best) and occasionally a bit of a gripe about the unpredictable temperaments of chefs. It adds flavor to the menu and who knows, "Wimpy" may find himself a columnist if he doesn't watch out.

At luncheon the other day we were informed of a new policy at the soon-to-open Club Cairo. After a couple of years of up and down reputation (mostly down), new owners took over and are going to do their best to give the public a square shake for his entertainment dollar. The minimum will be low, no cover, reasonably priced food (we saw the menu), and ditto on the drinks. They'll have a lot to live down, but if they keep their policies they should do well. Former owner Sam Schanker is about to open a grocery store in Virginia. That was his line before he took a flier into the club business.

This Will Explain Why Managers Get Gray

In addition to food, Normandy Farm sells a lot of "atmosphere." Stuff like candles stuck in bottles, with the drippings carefully permitted to accumulate on the bottles for many months. It's very artistic or something.

Anyhow, a few nights ago Normandy Farm was rented for an evening to an organization which promised to do its own cleaning up. The gang had a wonderful time.

When the party was over, they thought they'd do something extra for the management—so they industriously scrubbed all the bottles clean.

The management is trying hard to restrain itself, and look pleased.

MISCELLANY

Dorothy Kilmer, the girl who was accidentally crippled by a policeman's bullet, has lots of time to read now. She likes detective mysteries and also admits (with a pretty blush) that she sure goes for love stories. Let's send her some, care of Washington Sanitarium, Takoma Park, Md. . . . The Monroe Community Council is sponsoring a moonlight cruise on the S. S. Potomac tonight, to raise money for playground equipment for the children in the neighborhood. The time is 8:30, and tickets ($1.15) may be had from Dorothy M. Herbert at Hobart 0145 or at the pier . . . Ginny LaMaster of 321 34th st. nw. puts a new twist on a recent pun and coyly asks whether Henry Wallace is going to change his middle name to Eggard . . . The Women's Council of the Montgomery County Jewish Community is sponsoring a children's theater party at the Hiser Theater in Bethesda this afternoon (shows at 1 and 3 p. m., 35 cents) . . . Ruth Frishman of Kensington, Md., had a little trouble figuring out what was going on when her 3-year-old announced breathlessly that the neighbors had just installed a beer stove in their back yard. It turned out to be a coke stove, and to a 3-year-old coke and beer are practically synonymous. If it isn't white like milk or colorless like water, then it must be for grownups.

SOME VIEWS ON CLEWS

Vernon E. Bundy of 1543 44th st. nw, protests my spelling of "clew" and submits that in whodunits it's "clue" and when one speaks of the lower corner of a square sail it's "clew."

Personally, I agree. But The Washington Post's proofreaders do not, and the first thing a reporter learns in this business is to spell 'em the way the proofroom spells 'em."

Each paper has its own "style," which includes such things as capitalization, punctuation and spelling. This is necessary because there are so many optional spellings and usages permitted that some form of standardization must be found.

Good examples are such words as "gray" and "grey," "subpena" and "subpoena," "canceled" or "cancelled," and a host of others. If our dictionaries would ever catch up with the changing times, maybe those of us who depend on them would find ourselves in greater agreement.

BALANCING ACT

A news headline says: "Federal Reserve Board Orders Larger Bank Reserves."

I'm a law abiding citizen, and I'd dearly love to obey that order. But these days, it's a struggle just to stay even.

In fact, I think the Nation's biggest problem today is one of fiscal equilibrium—keeping a proper balance at the bank.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Seven assorted kittens, 8 weeks old; some are six-toed." (Annapolis 2611, Extension 557 between 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.)

TWIN BILL

Hilda A. Hill of 2124 K st. nw, is back from New York with another double feature for our collection. An 8th ave. theater offered:

"Passion in the Desert" with "Beauty and the Beast."

The other day we carried an item about Betty Koontz, the airline hostess who was surprised to find a woman with a 5-day-old baby on her flight.

It turned out that the "mother" hadn't just come from the hospital, because the baby had been adopted.

But Mrs. Howard F. James of 117 N. Alfred st., Alexandria, Va., can top that story. Her son Larry was born on October 5, 1946—at a time when the James family couldn't find suitable housing in Washington.

So when Mrs. James left the hospital on October 12 she boarded an airliner to Akron (Howard's home town) and mother and son had a fine ride through the clouds—with no ill effects.

There might have been an even better story available, except that the housing situation seems to have improved in the past two years.

The Jameses just brought their brand new daughter home from Arlington Hospital in 3½ days—but this time they didn't need any airliners to get to Alfred st.

POLITICAL DEFINITION

A communist is a fellow who makes capitalists see red.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Until he read it in the newspapers, Niles Trammell, president of NBC, didn't know that the Amos 'n' Andy show, one of the oldest shows in the network, was switching to CBS . . . Leo Cherne, of the Research Institute of America, who flies his own plane, has been giving flying lessons to Joe Turnesa, the golf pro at Grossinger's, in exchange for golf lessons. "Better pay more attention to my flying lessons than I give to your golf lessons," Cherne warned Turnesa, "because my missing the fairway won't be as fatal as your missing the runway" . . . By all means see Admiral Byrd's Antarctic exploration film.

Mack Gordon, the songwriter-movie producer, recently was divorced by his wife, Cookie, for whom he originally wrote "Lookie, Lookie, Lookie, Here Comes Cookie." Because of the housing shortage in Beverly Hills, Gordon couldn't find an apartment for himself. They therefore continued to live in the same house. But to avoid any gossip or the question of the finality of the divorce, they employed a bodyguard to be in constant attendance at the divided house—until the day Gordon found another place to live.

Shelley Winters, who played the role of the waitress murdered by Ronald Colman in "Double Life," was given star-billing last week, in "Larceny." Until now, although no proper role had been given her, the film executives knew of her capabilities. Bill Goetz, head of Universal, introduced her to J. Cheever Cowdin: "Meet Shelley Winters—star of Stage, Screen and Schwab's Drug Store" . . . Frances Heflin's son, who was born in Paris, now lives with her in London, where Miss Heflin is playing in "The Glass Menagerie." The baby's food comes in containers from New York, the milk comes from England, and the baby's father, Pianist Sol Kaplan, brings eggs and fresh bananas from Paris. "Our boy," said Miss Heflin, "has dual citizenship and an international stomach" . . . A new honest note has crept into press-agentry for the new Broadway season: The press-agent for "Sundown Beach" formally notified the critics: "The producer tells me the curtain will rise at 8:30 sharp but I've been caught in those things before, so I won't promise." The press-agent for Morey Amsterdam's "Hilarities" cautioned the critics that the show "is designed as a vaudeville entertainment at popular prices rather than as a characteristic Broadway revue."

When Gen. Sir Hubert Ismay was offered a peerage, Winston Churchill asked him not to take it. Churchill advised Ismay to stand for Parliament instead, "and then you will become my political chief-of-staff, working as capably and as hard as you did as my wartime chief of staff" . . . Ismay remembered how hard he had worked under the drive of the 74-year-old Churchill. And the next day he accepted the peerage and became a member of the House of Lords.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Vacation at Home Upset—By Pigs

By Drew Pearson

Well, I had a swell vacation—at least until the pigs got loose.

Before the vacation started I had studied road maps and dreamed up all sorts of tours. I figured on going out to see my daughter in California, and my wife's aunt in New Mexico. I bothered Karl Bickel about the best way to reach his hideaway in Ontario, Canada, and corresponded with Sumner Welles about a trip to Bar Harbor.

Pearson

But in the end I decided that, with real fireworks likely to break out in Berlin this winter, I ought to take a look at things beforehand, so I got steamship reservations for Europe and went through the red tape of an American Military Government permit to visit Germany.

When the sailing date rolled around, however, I just didn't get on the ship. I didn't go on that ship, nor the next ship; in fact, I didn't go at all. I decided that a vacation was for the purpose of doing what one wanted to do most, so I just stayed right at home and enjoyed the Maryland countryside.

That's what I did during all of my vacation—just enjoyed my home and let General Clay worry about the Russians. Only time I left Maryland was to take two trips into the District of Columbia and one trip into the neighboring State of Delaware.

Staying right at home proved to be wonderful—that is, until the pigs got loose. Here are some of the things I did:

Filled the silo. My son-in-law, who used to be a diligent silo filler when he was courting my daughter, was absent this time; and even my radio agent, Jackson Leighter, never known to do a stroke of work during the rest of the year, carefully sprained his ankle just before silo-filling time. Despite the drones, however, we had such a big corn crop that we filled not only the main silo, but had to put up two temporary silos of paper and chicken wire.

Went to church—What with getting up at 6 a. m. Sundays to prepare a radio broadcast during most of the year, I don't get to church as often as I should. Especially enjoyed the sermon of Bishop John E. Hines of Austin, Tex., who preached at Bethany Beach, Del. His Delaware neighbors tell about a car getting stuck in the mud outside the church and when several people brought planks to get it out, one man remarked: "If that board doesn't do it, I'll go inside and get the pulpit" . . . "Shhh," cautioned another, "that's the preacher over there" . . . "Yes," was the reply, "and I'm the bishop."

Decided not to plant any more corn—Having sat on the banks of the Potomac and watched thousands of tons of topsoil wash down from the cornfields of Maryland and Virginia, I finally decided to do my part by planting no more corn. Despite strip-farming and contour-plowing, both of which we practice religiously, any cornfield, unless on level ground, is bound to wash away the most priceless gift nature gave us—our topsoil. So, from now on, we are filling our silo with alfalfa.

The farmers of Iowa, where the ground is flat, can supply the Nation with corn.

Met a gradually disappearing species—the country doctor. Young Dr. Garrett Hume got out of the Army and decided he wanted to help his fellow men by practicing where doctors were scarce, hung out his shingle at Georgetown, Del., and has been answering calls on an 18-hour schedule ever since. So, in an age when more doctors gravitate to the city and specialized medicine, here's hats off to the country doctors, like Garrett Hume, who stay out where distances are long, where fees are low and where people need them most.

Most of the foregoing diversions were enjoyed during the first part of my vacation—before the pigs got loose. I might note in passing something obvious to most women readers—that this stay-at-home vacation didn't go down too well with Mrs. P. After all, when you've kept house, cooked and planned meals for a year, it's only natural to want to let a hotel manager worry over the food and the servant problem during your husband's vacation.

However, Mrs. P. was a good sport, and, among other things, enjoyed her garden, especially one plot of lawn she had worked hard to keep green and on which we sometimes played deck tennis.

This is the point where the pigs came in. It was, of course, my fault. I had seen them roaming around loose, and I had been warned by the lady who is much righter than I am that they might descend on the lawn. However, they were such nice little pigs, and they so obviously enjoyed their freedom, that I put off catching them for a day.

That day turned the tide of my vacation. That evening the pigs decided to play deck tennis. I don't know which of them won, but I know I lost. In thirty minutes that lawn—pride of Mrs. P's heart—looked like a plowed field.

I took one look at it and decided General Clay in Berlin was to be envied. Why, oh why, had I not followed my earlier plans and gone to Germany!

Did you ever put together a picture puzzle the size of a quarter acre? Well, I did, beginning at five the next morning—a picture puzzle consisting of little pieces of turf—octagon-shaped, triangular-shaped, or shapeless. In fact, I spent the rest of my vacation patching that lawn, watering it, tamping it, praying over it.

However, there's a compensation in everything.

Some men spend several hundred dollars to have a gymnasium instructor put them through knee-bending exercises. I got the knee-bending exercises and it didn't cost me a cent. And in the end Mrs. P. said she was almost glad we had pigs. They had proved her husband's 5 a. m. devotion.

Needling

There is no need to needle folks. . . . In earnest or in fun . . . But there are some who constantly . . . Belittle everyone . . . Who like to poke at people for . . . The things they do not say . . . And try repeatedly to push . . . Their prominence away . . . They either want to show how smart . . . They think they really are . . . Or else they just are jealous of . . . Another rising star . . . In any case they have no right . . . To pick on other folks . . . And ridicule them with remarks . . . Or ill-considered jokes . . . Indeed there is no surer way . . . To start a bittered strife . . . And in the last analysis . . . To lose a friend for life.
